Tire Council Urges Studs In Winter Tires

Motorists with stopping problems during tricky winter weather too often have them solved by trees and other cars. Smart drivers solve the problem by buying safety studded tires in states where they are permitted.

Tire industry safety council reports stopping ability for a car traveling at 20 miles per hour on glare ice at 25 degrees is conservatively improved by as much as 19 per cent when studded tires are on the rear. Safety studded tires on all four wheels show a 31 per cent improvement.

"Safety studded snow tires definitely make a major contribution to increased highway safety during hazardous winter driving conditions," says Ross R. Ormsby, chairman of the council.

Ormsby points to a recent study conducted by the Cornell aeronautical laboratory for the Minnesota department of highways which found that cars with studded tires were involved in fewer accidents than other cars, and that the tires improved vehicle directional control, loss of which was termed a primary factor in winter driving accidents.

In addition, the report stated when cars with studded tires were involved in an accident the accident tended to be less serious, and the injuries to occupants and damage to the vehicle was less severe.

Concerning vehicle control, the national highway traffic safety administration of the U. S. department of transportation says when cars have studded tires on all four wheels "cornering performance can be improved by as much as 25 per cent. That is, with all four wheels studded, an automobile might safely negotiate at 20 miles per hour a highway curve which would produce a breakaway skid at 16 miles per hour, using regular tires."

Studded tires are presently legal in most states with the only exceptions being Minnesota, Louisiana, Mississippi and Hawaii.

The council advises, however, stud should be installed only in tires designated for studding, and studs should be installed only by a tire dealer, service station or garage.

Also, the U. S. department of transportation cautions against the use of "overstudded" tires, that is tires with more than 150 studs. This precaution is principally applicable to imported studded tires in as much as the construction of U. S. tires generally limits them to less than 150 stud holes.

Tires should be studded only when they are new—before they have been run on the road. Once tires have been used, dirt and foreign matter work their way into stud holes and can result in improper seating of the studs.

Sales Tax On Vehicles Is Explained

All purchasers of motor vehicles (including trailers) must complete a purchaser's certificate and pay the four per cent sales tax at the time of the transfer, Minnesota Department of Public Safety Commissioner W. R. Hoglund reminded car buyers today.

There forms may be obtained from duputy registrars or from the motor vehicle division in the highway building. They also may be obtained by mail.

Hoglund reminded buyers of some details to watch for. One is that the form must be completed on all sales, whether between licensed dealers and buyers or between individuals.

There are several types of sales that are exempt, but the form still must be filled out. The most common of these include vehicles purchased by governmental units, religious or educational organizations, disabled veterans purchasing with VA funds, and transfers within the family without monetary consideration.

The form must be completed and sales tax paid on home-manufactured vehicles being registered for the first time. In this case, the owner must show amounts expended for materials, labor and other manufacturing costs to arrive at reasonable value of the vehicle (including home-made trailers).

Persons who buy vehicles from dealers may deduct the trade-in allowance before figuring the tax on the purchase. Or, if individuals swap vehicles, tax is paid only on the amount that is paid "to boot".

Hoaglund also reminded buyers that it is a good practice to keep a copy of the purchaser's certificate for future reference and for income tax purposes.

Wage Earners Should Adjust Tax Withholding

Internal Revenue service today urged all wage earners to adjust their income tax withholding. George O. Lethert, Internal Revenue service district director for Minnesota, said the revenue act of 1971 will cause overwithholding for many wage earners unless a new income tax withholding exemption certificate (Form W-4) is filed with their employer.

Lethert said new withholding provisions of the 1971 tax law apply to all wages paid after Jan. 18, 1972, and employees should file new exemption certificates as soon as possible to avoid unnecessary reductions to take-home pay.

The changes in withholding reflect the increases in the standard deduction and in the personal exemption provided by the 1971 act, and are designed to eliminate the major causes of underwithholding that many taxpayers experienced in 1971.

The withholding tax rates are adjusted so that single employees earning up to $25,000 a year and married employees, whose spouses are not employed, with earnings up to $31,000 a year can generally expect to have their full tax withheld.

The new law also introduces "special withholding allowance" for one-job individuals and families and liberalizes the provisions governing additional withholding allowances for taxpayers who itemize their deductions (for charities, taxes, etc.).

The director said that, generally, an employee should do these things: Claim all of the withholding exemptions to which he is entitled for himself, spouse, dependents, etc. Employees who formerly underclaimed exemptions in order to counterbalance the underwithholding in the withholding system will probably find that is no longer necessary or desirable;

Claim the new "special withholding allowance" if single and he doesn't earn more than $25,000; or if married and his spouse does not work and he has only one job from which he earns not more than $31,000.

Claim the "additional withholding allowances" shown in the table on the back of the withholding exemptions certificate (Form W-4) if his itemized deductions are substantially larger than the standard deduction.

However, single employees who earn more than $25,000 and married employees who earn more than $31,000 may want to roughly compute their 1972 tax and withholding based on expected earnings for the year to see if enough tax will be withheld. Then, if their withholding is not sufficient, they can increase it in order to avoid having to make payments or a declaration of estimated tax. They can do this by underclaiming their exemptions or asking their employers to withhold additional dollar amounts, or both.

The Internal Revenue service is mailing to all employers a new employers tax guide (Circular E) which contains the new withholding provisions and tables and also provides an initial supply of the new withholding exemption certificates which their employees will need. An order blank for additional forms is included.

Record 8,648 Board Airline Here In '71

North Central airlines in Thief River Falls boarded 831 passengers here in Decmeber to give the company a record boarding number of 8,648 passengers for 1970, compared to what had been the previous high number of boardings in 1970 of 7,623 passengers.

The new record was an increase of 1,025 passengers, or an increase over 1970 of 13.45 per cent, local airline officials said. They also reported that air freight, air mail, air express and surface mail loaded aboard planes at Thief River Falls totaled 90,937 pounds for the year.

In December, 831 passengers boarded here, while 883 passengers arrived; 1,009 pounds of air mail were loaded, and 5,990 lbs. of air mail were taken off the airline's planes. Air express totaled 55 pounds off-loaded and 1,601 pounds arriving. A total of 7,465 pounds of surface mail arrived here.

Officials said that 30,888 pounds of air freight were delivered by the airline to the city's municipal airport, although only 5,319 pounds of air freight left the city.

System wide North Central airlines reported traffic records for 1971, with 865,736,212 passenger miles flown, a gain of 7.4 per cent over 1970, and 3,793,333 passengers carried, according to David E. Moran, vice president for traffic and sales.

For the second consecutive year, the company boarded more than three and three-quarter million passengers, Moran noted, and 1971 increases were viewed as most encouraging, since 1970 traffic benefited from a strike against another carrier serving some North Central cities.

Another record established in 1971 was on November 28 when North Central flew 16,776 passengers, a new daily high in the company's 24-year history. Cargo, including air freight, express and mail, reached 9,473,014 ton miles flown for the year.

North Central has consistently achieved near top operating performance honors in the airline industry. For the year, 26,895,322 of its 27,267,213 scheduled miles

Retailers Must List Phosphorus In Detergents

Minnesota Pollution Control Agency (MPCA) has mailed letters to more than 3,700 statewide retailers selling household laundry, dishwashing, detergent, and pre-soak compounds to remind the dealers of a new law passed by the 1971 Minnesota legislature requiring that all such dealers post a list of the phosphorus content of the products they sell.

Attached to the letter was a list of about 350 products, certifying the amount of phosphorus contained in each. The list will be updated by the MPCA periodically and mailed to all retailers requesting such a list.

The law states that it is illegal in Minnesota to sell, or possess with intent to sell, household laundry and dishwashing products unless the phosphorous content of each product has been certified to the MPCA by the manufacturer.

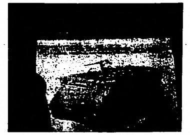
It also requires that no such compound be sold unless a list containing the product name and its phosphorus content is "prominently displayed near the product display." The list should be displayed by February 15, after which the MPCA will begin enforcing the law.

Adjustment Not Included On Tax Tables

Optional sales tax table for Minnesota, printed in the forms package, does not include an adjustment for the increase from 3 per cent to four per cent effective November 1, 1971, according to the Internal Revenue service.

If you itemize your deductions, and intend to use the optional table for determining your Minnesota sales tax deduction, you should add five per cent to the published table amounts.

Any sales tax paid on the purchase of an automobile in 1971 may be added also to the amount in the table.



PRIVATE JERRY M. SKAAREN, route 3, is pictured with a chart depicting the M-59 armored personnel carrier. The local National Guard company will receive 18 of the vehicles next month, with two of them in Thief River Falls, one at Crookston, and the others being left at Camp Ripley for use in the Guard's training excercises there. Pvt. Skaaren is currently undergoing basic training at Fort Leonard Wood and will then go to Fort Knox, Kentucky, for eight weeks of wheeled vehicle mechanic school.

National Guard Now Mechanized

Local National Guard unit underwent reorganization recently and became Company B, 2nd Battalion (Mech.) 136th Infantry. Main change resulting from the reorganization is that the unit will now be equipped with 18 armored personnel and weapons carriers (APC's) for use in transportation and protection.

The elements of the company are located permanently in Thief River Falls and Crookston. Of the 18 armored personnel carriers, two will be assigned to Thief River Falls and one to Crookston. The other 15 will remain at Camp Ripley, training home of the Minnesota National Guard.

It is expected that the armored personnel carriers assigned to Thief River Falls will arrive here February 7, delivered by military truck.

Reorganization means new training for some members of the local unit. However, there will be only a small change of actual specialty assignments resulting from the addition of a maintenance section of ten men.

Pvt. Jerry M. Skaaren, route 3, Thief River Falls, departed for active duty for training January 5 at Fort Leonard Wood, Mo. He is the first recruit from the company to report for training as a tracked vehicle mechanic.

He will complete basic infantry training at Fort Leonard Wood, and then after completing one week of special civil disturbance training will proceed to Fort Knox, Ken., for eight weeks of wheeled vehicle mechanic school and eight weeks of tracked vehicle mechanic school.

He will be on active duty for a total of 31 weeks, which is ten weeks longer than the usual period of active duty for training required to qualify in other specialties that the unit has normally required.

The personnel carriers to be used here are of the M-59 type produced by General Motors. They will eventually be replaced by a new type designated the M-113. The carriers are armored with sheet steel and are equipped with the M-60, 7.62 millimeter machine gun for crew protection. Each is powered by a separaete in-line six cylinder water cooled engine on each track.

Because it is a tracked vehicle, the carrier is able to pivot rather than simply turn. It has a weight of 39,000 pounds with a top land speed of 32 miles an hour and a speed of 4.5 miles per hour in the water. Fuel consumption is one mile to the gallon. The machine is designed to carry a squad of ten men plus the driver, and is capable of ascending a 60 per cent grade.

Sergeant First Class Harvey Hanson said that there are at least two men in the company with previous active duty service who are familiar with armored personnel carriers, and said that an active driver-training course for the vehicles will be conducted soon at Detroit Lakes.

Company B. is commanded by Capt. Ronald P. Anderson. The executive officer is First Lt. Genn C. Darst, who is also the installation commander at Crookston.

Change Dates On Feed Grain Program Signup

Opening date for signups in the 1972 feed grain program has been changed to February 3, Wallace Sparby of the ASCS office announced this week. The new signup period will be February 3 through March 10.

Sparby said the opening was postponed to allow compilation of questionnaires sent to farmers in all states to get estimates of 1972 plantings. He said results of the questionnaires may have some bearing on recommended changes in some aspects of the 1972 program.

Sparby said certain crops have now been approved for planting on set-aside acres with corresponding reductions in feed grain payments. The reduction rate policy has been changed to accommodate smaller farmers.

Crops which may be grown on set-aside acres are castor beans, crambe, guar, mustard seed, plantago ovato, sesame, safflower and sunflower.

The payment reduction will be equal to the applicable county base deduction rate. Last year a flat deduction of $10 an acre was made.

Sparby also said feed grain producers may still appeal to have current bases of corn and barley up-dated if they overplanted these bases in both 1970 and 1971. This can be done providing that the one base such as corn was overplanted, and the barley base was underplanted.

He added however, that a corn base increase will bring an acre-for-acre reduction in the farm's barley base. The county office has corn and barley acreage histories on file for all farmers who participated in the 1970 and 1971 feed grain programs.

Farmers who overplanted corn bases in 1970 and 1971, but did not participate in the feed grain program will have to prove planting to the satisfaction of the county ASCS committee if they appeal to have bases updated.

Fire Destroys Terry Wells' Mobile Home

Mr. and Mrs. Terry Wells lost their mobile home and all personal possessions in a fire late Saturday afternoon. The trailer was located at the Ray Oen trailer park south of Thief River Falls.

No cause has been established for the blaze and there was no one home at the time. Wells is employed at Home Lumber company and Arctic Enterprises. His wife and two small children are reportedly staying at the home of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Bernard Wells of rural Goodridge.

The mobile home was said to be nearly new and well covered by insurance, although all personal items were destroyed.

City Council Faces Heavy Agenda Tuesday

Thief River Falls city council faces a heavy workload, according to its agenda for tomorrow night. The agenda covers a wide range of topics, reported Gerald Wigness, Thief River Falls city clerk.

At a special meeting last Wednesday the council awarded the contract for gasoline for city vehicles to the Mobil Oil company for 14.3 cents per gallon. Identical bids were submitted earlier by Mobil and the Farmers Union and Standard Oil companies. It was agreeable to the council and to the bidders that a name be drawn from a hat to award the contract.

Also at the special meeting the council passed a resolution confirming that no industrial wastes would be dumped in the sewage lagoon nearing completion at the municipal airport, as requested by the environmental protection agency. Built at an approximate cost of $30,000, most of the amount will be paid for with funds from state and federal agencies.

To begin the Tuesday night session, there will be the second reading of an ordinance on controlling cats and dogs in the city. There will be the first reading of an ordinance prohibiting open burning. This is to put the city code in line with state law. Open burning will be banned in the state July 1, but the city ordinance will take effect as soon as it is passed in three to four weeks.

Other ordinances to be read for the first time include one to set at nine the number of legal holidays for city employees instead of the current 11. This is another move to put the municipal code in line with state law. An ordinance amending the rate for electricity consumed over 100,000 kilowatt hours per month will also be read for the first time.

The council will also accept bids for a brush chipper, a device that shreds tree trimmings into fine chips for easier disposal. The brush chipper will be used by the parks and recreation department.

Wigness also said that the council would be confronted with a notice of claim for loss stemming from an incident recently when a local woman slipped on an icy sidewalk and suffered a broken leg. She is asking $5,000 in compensation.

Also to be discussed is a request from the Thief River Falls board of education that it be granted an unloading zone near either the old Carnegie library or Northwestern Regional library. Hours when unloading zone restrictions would be in effect have not been determined and will be discussed by the council and school officials.

City planner Kermit Crouch, of the Minneapolis firm of Hodne-Stageberg, Inc., will propose to the council that he attend all city planning commission meetings. These meetings are normally held on the first Monday of the month. Members of the planning commission are Glen Peterson, president; J. J. Womack, vice president; and Clarence Stromberg, Les Ihle, Don Barron and Al Bakken. Mayor A. E. Jacobson serves as an ex officio member, as does city engineer Doug Stewart. The city council will also name an ex-officio member from the council to fill the place of Gerald Wigness on the commission at the meeting.

Crouch also intends to request that the city revise its data base, which lists the number of people in the city and their socio-economic status, according to the 1970 census to make it more usable to the city council and for palnning purposes. The data base currently shows that Thief River Falls has 65 per cent of Pennington county's population.

Crouch will also suggest the development of a "Southeast Sector Plan" to aid in the development of that area, which is expected to see a great deal of progress in the near future, according to Wigness. Cost of all three suggestions of the planners is reported at approximately $11,000.

Also to be discussed at the council meeting is a proposal for a new intake project for the city's water treatment plant, and a meeting with the Thief River Falls Chamber of Commerce parking committee.

Corporate Farm Reports Due By March 15

All farming corporations in Minnesota must file a corporate farm report by March 15, announces Pennington county extension agent Terry Courneya.

Reports are available at county extension offices troughout Minnesota and the secretary of state's office in St. Paul.

The report is required by a law passed by the 1971 legislature to determine the amount and intensity of corporation controlled farming in the state.

A University of Minnesota study completed in 1970 put the number of Minnesota farm corporations at about 500—possibly half or two-thirds of them family farms.

Allocation of $28,415 was made by the board of directors of the Thief River Falls United Fund to its participating agencies at a meeting of the board last week.

Fred Dallmann, treasurer, reported that contributions or pledges to the 1972 United Fund had totaled $50,073.78 for the highest total ever in local United Fund history. Last year a total of $47,261.30 was raised.

Fifteen participating agencies were included in the board's allocation of $28,415, according to Mrs. James Carlson, secretary of the organization. The allocation committee includes board members James Fremstad, James Nepper, Donald Lindquist, Lloyd Myster, James Matson, Arthur Heinze and committee chairman Dallmann.

Allocations for 1972 include the following, with comparative figures for 1971 listed in parentheses: Association for Retarded, $2,200 ($1,900); Lake Agassiz Boy Scout council, $4,800 ($4,500); Children's Home society, $825 ($784); Friendship club, $350 ($350); Pine to Prairie Girl Scout council, $3,450 ($3,000); Kenny Rehabilitation foundation, $2,065 ($2,095); Minnesota Correctional service, $110 (not included in 1971);

Also Minnesota Society for Crippled Children and Adults, $3,350 ($3,304); Minn-Kota chapter of the Red Cross, $2,745 ($2,731); Salvation Army, $2,155 ($2,124); and United Service organization, $470 ($450).

Special allocations were made to United Health services, $5,000 ($5,000) Discovery Place Child Care center, $750 ($2,000); TR-Finettes, $200 ($200); and United Way of America, $155 ($145).

Agencies considered by the board but for whom no allocations have been made as yet include heart and cancer research funds for the University of Minnesota and Mayo foundation, camperships for retarded persons, Falls day activity center, sheltered workshop, Camp MOE, Minnesota Association for Mental health, Cerebral Palsy of Minnesota, Cystic Fibrosis, Kidney foundation, Diabetic clinic, Glaucoma clinic and senior citizen project.

Last year a total of 28 agencies and projects were funded by the Thief River Falls United Fund. Over $16,000—or approximately 35 per cent of the total—was spent in the immediate Thief River Falls area. The fund raising cost of the United Fund is approximately four per cent as compared to 20 to 40 per cent for some agencies.

The fund board meets monthly to act on its business. Other members of the board in addition to the allocations committee are Dr. Ross Taylor, who heads the United Health service committee, Mrs. Carl Reed, Mrs. Lowell Collins and James Lambert.

Anyone in need of services from any of the participating agencies is asked to write to the United Fund secretary at P.O. Box 276. The board is interested in other worthy charities, comments—suggestions—and recommendations.

The local United Fund board uses the recommendations of the Minnesota community research council as part of its guide in determining fair share for its non-local charities. The council provides information about charitable appeals made in Minnesota, issues reports on state-wide solicitations and indicates whether or not the soliciting organizations meet council standards. Art Heinze, United Fund board chairman, is a member of the board of trustees

The bride is the daughter of Ed Overton of Goodridge and the groom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Norman Jorgenson of this city.

The altar was graced with spiral candelabra and decorated with greens, red roses and silver wedding bells. Baskets of red and white carnations were set on each side of the altar.

Organist was Mrs. Ronald Huset and pianist was Mrs. Wendell Jorgenson, sister-in-law of the groom. Vocalists were Rev. and Mrs. Blane Houstbn who sang "The Lord's Prayer" and "Life's Pathway We Tread" during the candlelight ceremony.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, was escorted to the altar in a floor length gown of Angelskin peau de soie and trimmed with Chantilly lace. The empress styled gown included a demi bell silhouette high collar and Camelot sleeves. Her bouquet was red roses on a white Bible and accented with lily of the valley and silver tulle.

Keep Your Cool Advises Winter Driving Expert

"Keep your cool" this winter was the advice issued today by the man who should know about keeping cool, the secretary of the committee on winter driving hazards of the National Safety council, Raymond Prince.

Prince, whose job involves coordinating the council's annual winter driving test project at Stevens Point, Wis., said that safe winter driving is largely a matter of "keeping cool" under trying circumstances.

"Safe driving during winter weather conditions requires the same skills and precautions that are demanded at any time of the year—plus the added difficulty of coping with indadequate traction and reduced visibility," Prince pointed out.

He said that few drivers realize or compensate for the extremely poor traction on ice and snow-covered pavements until they get into a real tight spot.

"The council's tests have shown, for example, that the braking distance on glare ice may be as much as nine or ten times the normal dry pavement distance, meaning that it can take from 150 to 200 feet to stop after applying the brakes at a speed of only 20 mph," Prince noted. "In contrast, the normal braking distance at this speed on a dry pavement is only about 17 feet."

So, whenever the pavement is slippery, and especially when you think it may be but don't know for sure, Prince advised that the first thing a driver should do to "keep his cool" is to get the "feel" of the road. This can be done by trying the brakes or "gunning" the engine momentarily to see whether the wheels skid or spin. If the car has any tendency to skid or "fish-tail," then it's time to slow way down and do all maneuvering—steering, braking and accelerating—with a delicate touch.

"If you do find that the pavement is slippery," he continued, "then you should increase your following distance to give yourself adequate room to slow down or steer out of trouble."

Other suggestions for keeping cool during adverse driving conditions were listed by Prince as follows:

1. "Pump" your brakes to slow or stop—don't jam them on. An intermittent pumping action three to five times per second keeps the wheels rolling and helps maintain steering control.

2. Have good tires with good treads. Better yet, use snow tires which provide half again as much pulling power in snow as regular tires.

3. Always carry reinforced tire chains in the trunk of your car for use during severe snow and ice conditions. They provide four to seven times as much traction on snow or ice as regular tires.

4. Keep your windshield and windows clear at all times. Replace streaking wiper blades. Be sure that your windshield washer solution contains adequate anti-freeze.

Bemidji Holds Lectures On Non-Violence

Series of lectures on non-violence will continue during winter quarter at Bemidji state college from 7-8:30 p.m. in room 113 at the classroom building.

Seven lectures by BSC faculty members have been scheduled starting last Thursday and continuing each Thursday thereafter. First lecture will examine the ethical dimension of non-violence, with Waddah Naar of the BSC department of philosophy speaking on the question, "Should the U.S. Disarm Unilaterally?"

Raymond Jensen, chairman of the Asian studies department, will discuss "Gandhi and Non-Violence" January 27. "Non-Violence in the New Testament" will be discussed February 3 by Reverend Robert Villwock of the United Ministries in Higher Education.

Dr. Evan Hazard will examine the biological aspects of non-violence when he discusses the question, "Is Man Violent by Nature?" on February 10.

February 17 John Phillips of the psychology department will discuss "Psychology of Human Aggression", and Dr. John R. Griffith of the economics department will concentrate on "The Military-Industrial Complex" in his February 24 lecture.

Final session on March 2 will present a new film produced in Minnesota by the World Federalists entitled "Man's Next Giant Step: World Peace through World Citizenship".

The series is open to all students, faculty and interested people from the community. It is sponsored free of charge by the Campus Ministry of BSC, with cooperation of participating faculty members. No pre-registration or registration is required.

New Classrooms Planned For BSC

First priority for the site of the proposed business classroom building at Bemidji state college will be across Birchmont drive from Birch Hall on the site now occupied by tennis courts.

Dr. R. D. Decker, president of BSC, announced the location of the proposed building this week after a conference with the long range planning committee of the college.

The committee and a building planning committee is currently working with architects in designing the building. The 1971 legislature appropriated $75,000 to plan and design the building.

The second priority is the southeast corner of 14th and Birchmont in the vicinity of the Bangsberg Fine Arts Center and the third priority is the northeast corner of 14th and Birchmont in front of Deputy Hall. All three areas are currently owned by the state of Minnesota.

In announcing the "old" tennis court location for the proposed building, Dr. Decker said it would be in the center of the campus and would be compatible with the pedestrian flow of students from the new classroom building to the dormitories and other buildings on campus.

In reporting the decision of the long range planning commission, Dr. Decker, said that the building should be constructed on this site without destroying the complete view of the lake from Birchmont drive and Birch Hall.

"This chosen site also contains some beautiful Norway pine, and it is a shame that they must go, however," he explained, "they are past the age of full maturity and appear to be close to the dying stage."

The building will contain 40,000 square feet and is being designed by Griswold and Rauma, architects. It will contain offices and classrooms for the business education, business administration, and economics departments and computer terminals for use in business and economics courses.

Members of the building committee are John Glas, vice president for administrative affairs; Dr. Milton Will, chairman of the department of business and administration; Prof. Donald Zuehlke, chairman of the department of business education; Dr. Eben Calder, Dr. Frank Stapleton and Prof. Jan Norton. Dr. Charles Austad is chairman of the long range planning committee.

• The dramatic increase in benefit payments is illustrated by these figures: Total private health insurance benfits paid in 1950, $1.3 billion; in 1960, $5.7 billion; in 1970, a record $17.3 billion.

CADET Burton A. Prichard has been named commander of the 615th Air Force ROTC cadet group at the University of North Dakota, Lt. Col. Kenneth D. Caughron, professor of aerospace studies, has announced. Cadet Prichard will be responsible for all activities of the cadet group, which includes about 200 cadets. He was selected for the position on the basis of his scholastic and leadership abilities and interest in AFROTC activities. A senior majoring in chemistry, he is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Phil Prichard of Thief River Falls.

Commissioner Critizes Ag Secretary Butz

"Declared opposition by U.S. Agriculture Secretary Earl Butz to pending approval by Congress of increased wheat and feed grain price supports shows clearly that he is still opposed to our family farmers and rural America," Minnesota Agriculture Commissioner Jon Wefald charged today.

He added, "this should make it plain that the philosophy espoused by Dr. Butz leaves little room for the survival of rural Minnesota and rural America as we now know it."

Commissioner Wefald said the raising of wheat and feed grain price supports is essential to assure the future of family farming and the rural community.

"Price supports are the only minimum income guarantee that family farmers have, and that guarantee is years behind the income gains made by practically every other segment of our economy through federal action and policies. The $2-billion increase in farm price supports is long overdue and a far cry from the $70-plus-billion defense appropriation," Commissioner Wefald insisted.

Changes by Secretary Butz the price support increase would "wreck farm export prospects and sabotage the government's farm surplus control program" were termed by Commissioner Wefald as "political camouflage," adding, "Farmers have to live too, and they can't live on export and production statistics."

He assessed Secretary Butz action as "a renewal of the blueprint for rural disaster he helped design and implement during the tragic administration of the U.S. Agriculture program by Ezra Taft Benson, when 38 per cent of our farm population was driven off the land."

Commissioner Wefald said that if Secretary Butz is allowed to reactivate the Benson plan it will give certainty to Butz' forecast that the nation will lose one third of its remaining farm population, or 40,000 of the now 120,000 farms in Minnesota.

The Minnesota agriculture spokesman also sharply criticized Secretary Butz for "inconsistencies," pointing out that while opposing price support increases for family farmers the federal chief also opposed cutting the $55,000-per-crop ceiling on the subsidy to big farmers. Wefald recalled that when Butz' appointment was announced the new secretary publicly chided his predecessor that "corn prices are too low." He said the secretary's forecast of a "record" $16.7-billion farm income will still be less than the $17.1-billion actual record set in 1947—a quarter century ago!

Propose Rule To Protect Mail Order Buyers

Attorney General Warren Spannaus today submitted testimony to the federal trade commission in support of a rule which would require full refunds on mail-order purchases if the pre-paid merchandise is not shipped within 21 days.

Spannaus' written testimony stated that the volume of complaints received by his office concerning late delivery or non-delivery of mail-order merchandise and the difficulties involved in dealing with out-of-state offenders dramatically points to a need for federal legislation.

According to Spannaus, the proposed rule would require mail-order sellers to ship merchandise within 21 days from receipt of payment unless the seller clearly discloses in all solicitations a different estimated shipping time, or obtains the buyer's written consent to a specified delay.

If merchandise is not shipped within 21 days from receipt of payment for the order, the seller would have to promptly refund all money to the buyer unless a different time for delivery was advertised or agreed to. Violation of the rule would be grounds for a cease and desist order of the FTC, according to Spannaus. Magazines and other serial deliveries are not covered except for the initial shipment.

Spannaus indicated that public hearings on the proposal will be held in Washington, D. C., later this month and that it may be some time before the proposal goes into effect. Citizens must still be wary, of course, in prepaying for mail-order merchandise.

Spannaus advised citizens to check into the performance record of the company before sending money through the mail for merchandise and suggested that citizens check with the local Better Business Bureaus or postal authorities for information as to the performance history of a particular mail-order company before sending money.

Complaints about late delivery or non-delivery of mail-order merchandise should be sent to the Consumer Division of the Office of the Attorney General at 102 State Capitol, Saint Paul, Minn. 55155.

Two From Here Will Attend Resource Meet

Dave Strong, community information coordinator for the day-night unit at Northwestern hospital, and Ken Froshheiser, city policeman, will attend a junvenile officer and community resources seminar conducted by law enforcement officials Wednesday through Friday in Minneapolis.

The Institute is sponsored by the University of Minnesota and will feature a number of juvenile judges and police officers from around the state.

Also on the program is George Shepard, Chief of the youth development and delinquency prevention administration of the department of health, education and welfare. Two members of the governor's commission on crime prevention and control, Peter Franklin and Edward Mattson, also will speak to the group.

"Every law enforcement officer realizes the pressure of constant changes taking place in the law enforcement field," according to Dick Grefe, program director. "This situation creates a need for programs that allow officers to review periodically their field and update themselves on current changes.

Interstate Highway Is Nearly Done

More than 32,392 miles of the 42,500-mile national system of interstate and defense highways are now completed, according to Arthur C. Tomlinson, executive vice-president of Minnesota AAA. Construction on another 4,115-miles is under way. The figure represents an increase of 1,797 miles over the total at the end of 1970.

Citing a report from the federal highway administration, Tomlinson said that 600 miles of the almost 915 miles designated for Minnesota have been completed, and another 293 miles are now being built.

Another 108 miles now in use in Minnesota is adequate for current traffic, but will require further improvements to meet federal standards to accommodate traffic anticipated 20 years beyond their design period. Over 490 miles already meets those standards.

The interstate system is designed to carry more than 25 per cent of the nation's traffic, including both civilian and defense vehicles.

It is financed through the highway trust fund, which received $1.465 billion of highway user tax revenue during the three months ending September 30, 1971. Of this, 72 per cent came from taxes on motor fuel.

Internal Revenue Service

Q—My landlord has just raised my rent, but won't show me any records justifying the increase. Can I refuse to pay?

A—Tenants may refuse to pay added rental charges unless the landlord makes available records showing the base price for the units, and the reason for any increase between the base price and the maximum price he was allowed to charge during the freeze. The IRS has cautioned landlords against raising rents—even within price commission guidelines—unless they keep complete records on rental practices and make the records available to tenants whose rents are to be increased.

Q—Do wholesalers have to comply with the base price posting requirements applicable to retailers?

A—No.

Q—Does an employer have to apply to the internal revenue service for permission to make retroactive payments for services performed during the freeze by employees receiving less than $2 per hour straight time or for one-time fringe benefit increases which came due for employees during the freeze?

A—No. In these cases, employers may make retroactive payments on their own determination, subject only to compliance checking by the internal revenue service.

Q—Are state unemployment compensation payments subject to controls in Phase II?

A—State unemployment compensation payments are not wages or prices within the meaning of the governing statute and are not controlled. This is true whether or not a particular state's program is funded in whole or in part by employer contributions.

Q—Do the economic controls apply to college tuition charges?

A—Yes, tuition, as well as room and board are covered.

Q—Do prenotifiers and reporting firms use the same form to notify the price commission of price increase?

A—Yes. Form PC-1 (PC-1R for retailers and wholesalers) should be used by both firms with annual sales of $100 million or more to notify the price commission in advance of price increases and file quarterly reports and those firms with annual sales between $50-100 million that are merely required to report quarterly. The price commission will process requests for price increases only if submitted on those forms or facsimile copies. These forms are available at internal revenue service offices.

All other manufacturing, service and professional firms who do not have to file From PC-1 to validate their price increases, but must maintain records of such increases in their files may find the form useful for computing and recording in the files any price increases put into effect.

Q—Service charges such as utility, parking meter and bridge tolls were subject to Phase I while licenses and fines such as vehicle licenses and parking tickets were exempt. Does the same situation apply to Phase II?

A—Yes. Unless specifically altered by regulation or published rulings, policy rulings issued by the cost of living council and interpretations issued by the office of emergency preparedness continue to be applicable after Nov. 13, 1971.

SETTLING THOUGHTS

Upset stomach, heartburn, acid indigestion, gas—the stomach seems to be the cause of many ills. But the problems mentioned above are not so much caused by the stomach as they are a result of what you've eaten. The stomach really is an amazing organ, and according to the makers of Di-Gel antacid tablets and liquid, it's also one of the most misunderstood parts of the body. The food you eat, depending on its quantity and quality, stays in the stomach 3 to 5 hours during the early stages of digestion. Stomach upset and gassy acid buildup are caused when the digestive processes aren't functioning properly, or when you've eaten too much of the wrong kinds of food.

State To Adopt New System Of Crime Reporting

Minnesota is one of five states selected to implement a new system of crime information reporting and dissemination, and Thief River Falls will be the sight of the first seminar on the program, Minnesota Department of Public Safety Commissioner W. R. Hoaglund announced today.

Training of law enforcement officials and court personnel will start on January 25 and continue throughout the year in all parts of the state.

Under the new system, all law enforcement agencies and courts in the state will report all class one and two criminal offenses and court actions to the criminal apprehension division over teletype on a daily basis.

Presently reports are submitted monthly in writing. The information received will be fed into the crime bureau computer and be available for instant retrieval by requesting agencies. In addition, the bureau will transmit information back to the agencies in monthly and quarterly summaries.

"Principal advantage of the new system," Hoaglund said, "will be updating of all criminal actions and immediate retrieval for law enforcement agencies or courts. Once in the computer, the information will, upon request, be transmitted directly to the teletype and out to the requestor."

Minnesota, along with California, New Jersey, Florida and Michigan, volunteered to pioneer the new system. At the end of one year, the experience of each of the pilot states will be analyzed for the adoption of procedures to be used nationwide.

As officials of each enforcement agency complete the training, that agency will immediately switch to the new system. It is anticipated that the entire state will be on the new system by the end of 1972.

Seminars for the first six months have been scheduled for 11 areas of the state, each to accomodate 40 students. Starting dates and locations are as follows: Thief River Falls, January 25; Virginia, February 8; Aitkin, February 22; Fergus Falls, March 7; Little Falls, March 21; Granite Falls, April 4; Rochester, Arpil 18; Windom, May 2; Mankato, May 16; Hutchinson, May 30; and St. Paul (Arden Hills), June 13.

During the first three sessions, two days will be devoted to law enforcement officials and one day to court personnel. Later sessions may be lengthened by one day if the need is apparent. Additional seminars in other parts of the state will be scheduled for the second half of the year.

Turkey Growers Will Increase Poult Numbers

Minnesota retained its national turkey production championship with a record output in 1971 and growers have filed intentions to duplicate both feats in 1972, Agriculture Commissioner Jon Wefald reported today.

In 1971 Minnesota growers raised 18,420,000 turkeys, one per cent more than in 1970. That represented 15 per cent of the nation's total turkey production and was 1,619,000 birds or one per cent ahead of second-place California.

This year Minnesota growers intend to increase production by five per cent, or an indicated new record of 19,396,000 turkeys. According to latest statistics from the state-federal crop and livestock reporting service of the Minnesota department of agriculture, the 20 major states' turkey growers plan only a one per cent increase.

Turkey hatchery statistics for Minnesota and Wisconsin support the indicated production increase. The hatch of turkey poults in the two states for the week ended January 1 totaled 302,000, up 54,000 or an increase of 21.8 per cent compared to the same week a year ago. That rate compares to an 11 per cent increase in hatching for the nation's ten major turkey states.

Commissioner Wefald said the new figures also reveal that the Minnesota and Wisconsin hatcheries produced 20.8 per cent of the nation's total turkey poults during the first 11 months of 1971.

Both grower intention and hatchery statistics reflect increased consumer acceptance of and demand for the wide variety of year-around convenience food products processed from heavy breeds of turkeys. These products include frozen dinners, turkey rolls, roasts, steaks, breasts, parts, smoked turkey snacks and sausage.

Minnesota growers intend to raise 13,478,000 heavy breed turkeys, three per cent more than last year, and will hike light breeds by ten per cent, to 5,918,000. Among the turkey poults hatched the last week of 1971 in Minnesota and Wisconsin were 190,000 of the heavy breeds, up 63.8 per cent from the same week a year earlier.

Tell Safety Belt Requirements For New Cars

"Buckling up" will be made easier for purchasers of new cars manufactured since January 1 of this year, Minnesota Department of Public Safety Commissioner W. R. Hoaglund said today.

"Under a new federal motor vehicle safety standard, improved safety belt systems must be installed in passenger cars manufactured after January 1, 1972. The standard requires automatic locking or emergency locking retractors for lap belts, a three-point design, and a warning system for unbuckled drivers and passengers in the outside positions in both seats."

An automatic or emergency locking retractor provides for a safety belt assembly which will give the occupant freedom of movement when the assembly is worn. This allows the person to reach across the car or to other points in the seating area without unfastening the belt. The automatic or emergency locking device is activated upon sudden deceleration—a quick stop, collision, etc.—holding the occupant firmly in the seat.

"This new requirement should make use of the belt much more convenient for those who object to restriction of movement with present type rigid retractors, Hoaglund said.

The three-point design will also encourage more widespread use, since just one movement will be required to fasten the complete shoulder and lap assembly.

The warning system will apply to just the driver and outside seat passenger in the front seat. When these seats are occupied and the belts are not fastened, the warning system activates both an audible buzzer and a flashing light as soon as the ignition is turned on and the gear shift placed in the drive position.

"Studies show that only from 20 to 30 per cent of the motoring public uses lap belts and only about four per cent uses shoulder belts. The principal reason for non-use is the inconvenience of present belt assemblies. We are hopeful that these new requirements will increase safety belt usage, thereby saving hundreds of lives and thousands of injuries," Hoaglund said.

Unemployment Rose In State In December

Minnesota's seasonally adjusted unemployment rate rose to 5.3 per cent for December, two-tenths of a percentage point more than in November and four-tenths of a point more than in December, 1970, Commissioner Emmet J. Cushing of the Minnesota department of manpower services said today.

The number of unemployed Minnesotans was 88,200 in December, 6,000 more than in the previous month and 5,700 higher than a year ago.

The national seasonally adjusted unemployment rate for December was 6.1 per cent, up one-tenth of a percentage point from November.

The increase in unemployment from a year ago appears to be concentrated among persons who have exhausted benefits and new entrants into the labor force who are encountering difficulties in finding jobs because of general economic conditions.

Cushing said the total of 1,546,700 persons employed in Minnesota in December was 38,900 fewer than in November with employment in each industry following expected seasonal trends. Employment in December 1970 was 1,558,900.

December employment in manufacturing industries was 8,300 below December, 1970 with practically all of the decline occurring in the durable goods sector.

Employment in non-manfacturing industries rose by 6,400 over a year ago, primarily the result of increases in transportation and government employment. The increase in employment in the transportation industry reflected the settlement of a major dispute, while government employment gains are a continuation of long-term trends in local governmental units.

Production workers in manufacturing industries earned an average of $156.75 per week in December, compared with $152.42 in November. The average hourly earnings increased from $3.82 in November to $3.88 in December. The change apparently is a reflection of the easing of wage and price controls.

The seasonally adjusted average work week for manufacturing in December was 40 hours, compared with 40.1 hours in November and 39.4 hours in December, 1970.

Military Salary Boost Affects Unemployment

Recent military pay increase will result in higher unemployment compensation for many returning servicemen, Assistant Secretary of Labor Malcolm R. Lovell, Jr., has announced.

New jobless pay schedule is effective for claims first filed for unemployment insurance by ex-servicemen on and after January 2, 1972. The new schedule was developed jointly by the department of labor and defense.

Under the new schedule, former Army privates first class filing claims, for example, will receive $55 for up to 26 weeks in California, $56 for up to 26 weeks in New York, and $58 for up to 30 weeks in Pennsylvania, compared to benefits of $45, $44 and $47 respectively under the present schedule. Benefits are subject to existing state laws.

The veteran also may draw up to 13 additional weeks of extended benefits after January 2 with all states (except Kenucky) participating.

Lovell urged veterans to file their claims soon after separation from active duty, if they are unemployed, since delay could cause a reduction in benefits.

He said that some veterans who formerly were ruled ineligible for unemployment benefits because of insufficient base-period wages should return to their state unemployment insurance offices to refile their claims after January 2, as they may qualify under the revised schedule.

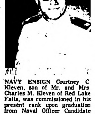
Lovell said all state agencies have been requested to check their files and notify such veterans that they may now qualify.

During fiscal 1971, Lovell said, 615,800 returning servicemen received about $301,800,000 in unemployment insurance benefits to tide them over until they got jobs. In fiscal 1970, 350,000 ex-servicemen drew $203 million in benefits.

Benefit rights are determined under the law of the state where the returning serviceman first files his claims after separation from service.

Claims may be filed in any of the more than 2,400 local public employment service and unemployment insurance claims offices.

About 400,000 Vietnam-era veterans (20 to 29 years of age) have been placed in jobs, training, or schooling since the President's program to assist veterans find jobs or training for jobs was launched nearly six months ago.



NAVY ENSIGN Courtney C Kleven, son of Mr. and Mrs Charles M. Kleven of Red Lake Falls, was commissioned in his present rank upon graduation from Naval Officer Candidate school at Newport, R.I. He is a 1970 graduate of the University of Minnesota.

Keep Meetings Open

Following editorial is from the East Grand Forks Record:

Back in April, we advised you that Senator Robert Ashback of North St. Paul had introduced a "meet and confer" law (S.F. 469) that provided for closed meetings between public employees and employers.

At the time, we stated our opposition to the bill because it was in direct contradiction to the spirit intended in the open meeting law presently recorded in the Minnesota Statutes (471.705). This law states that: ". . .all meetings, including executive sessions, of the governing body of any school district however organized, unorganized territory, county, city, village, town or borough and of any board, department or commission thereof shall be open to the public."

Senator Ashbach's proposal was subsequently amended and up to last week, we thought that the closed meeting provision therein had been removed—but we were wrong.

In Chapter 33 of the new State law controlling public employer-employee bargaining procedures there is a provision for closed meetings. Section 9, Subd, 2 of the new law to become effective July 1, 1972 states:

"All negotiations, mediation sessions and hearings between public employers and their public employees or their respective representatives shall be public meetings except when otherwise provided by the director." "Director" refers to the state Director of Mediation Services. (Underlining ours).

We sincerely hope that the Director will never use an occasion to close a meeting between public officials and public employees to the public. To do so could set a precedent that could eventually lead to all facits of government activities. And, in the long pull, it could lead to the destruction of our democratic process.

A Poor Proposal

The following editorial is from the Morris Sun and deals with the value added tax:

More government services and lower taxes appear to be the public desire at the present time. Such an achievement is almost an impossibility but that fact does not prevent the politicians from dreaming up all kinds of schemes which appear to have such a utopian effect.

A common thread running through many of these proposals is the substitution of a hidden tax for a visible tax. The person who ultimately pays the tax doesn't see it because it is hidden in the price of the goods or services he buys. If direct taxes such as property taxes, income taxes and, to a lesser extent, sales taxes, can be replaced by hidden taxes, a person can feel that he has had substantial tax relief and actually end up paying more.

The most recent scheme which popped up during the last session of the Minnesota state legislature and which is bound to be given consideration in this year's session of Congress is the so-called value-added tax. In general terms, a manufacturer adds up his total sales and subtracts therefrom the cost of raw materials used and pays a tax on the difference. For the purposes of computing the tax, it makes not one whit of difference whether or not the manufacturer made a profit. The tax is still due.

Obviously, under such a situation, the manufacturer has only one choice. He adds the amount of the tax plus the tax on the amount of the tax to his sales price. The consumer, be he rich or poor, ends up paying the tax. In the proposals advanced, there are no exemptions for clothing, food processors and the other usual exemptions found in sales tax laws.

Unfortunate as the direct effect of the tax would be, there are also some detrimental side effects. By its very nature, the tax would fall most heavily on those industries which employ substantial labor, those industries in which little material is used and lots of labor is consumed. The proposal seems like a poor way to deal with the sizable unemployment problem facing this nation today.

Nor will it help American industry compete in the world market. A value-added tax would simply increase the price of American goods in foreign markets as well as in U.S. markets, making foreign made goods more attractice and American made goods less attractive pricewise. As mentioned earlier, those industries which use the most American labor would be hardest hit.

All this fails to deter the politicians who see a chance to hoodwink the taxpaying public into believing that taxes have been reduced when just the opposite is really true. The Congress would be far better advised to review the vast federal programs, weed out the outdated ones and use the resources for a modest beginning on what may be deemed to be the most pressing needs of the day.

If such a program were rigorously pursued, the continuing economic expansion in this country could make possible some slight tax reductions while permitting additional resources to go to better government services.

The Same Rules

Comments on the wage-price freeze in its second phase are contained in this editorial from the Pope County Tribune at Glenwood:

Government, at all levels, is as much to blame for inflation as industry and labor.

And if Phase II of the President's economic plan is to work, the government is going to have to abide by the same rules as business and labor.

If an increase of 5.5 is going to be standard for the nation as a whole, then government should also be restricted to that figure when it comes to raising taxes and costs of government services to the public.

The increase of 24 per cent to the U.S. Postal Service on third class postage was in our opinion totally inflationary and unwarranted. The Pay Board in our opinion also "goofed" when they awarded pay boosts well over the 5.5 figure to the coal miners and railroad signalmen.

Then last week they rejected a wage settlement of well over 5.5 per cent to the aerospace industry. Their action, while we applaud, was certainly not consistent.

If Phase II is to work and if inflation is to be checked, then it's going to take a coordinated effort on the part of industry, labor and government. And if the President expects his program to work, he's going to have to see that government isn't the "straw that broke the camel's back" so to speak.

Phase II will work. The American people are solidly in favor of it, although there are times when it appears that big business and labor are against it. Labor leaders such as George Meany have left little doubt that they favor inflation and it's incumbent substantial pay boosts at regular intervals.

President Nixon can establish the tenor of the entire program, however, by seeing to it that the federal government holds its increases to the 5.5 figure. The 24 per cent hike granted to the U.S. Postal Service is clearly not in the best interests of the President's program.

Forgotten Failures

Following was written by Harold Helfer and appeared in the newsletter of the Mahube Community council recently:

He struck out 1330 times, a record in futility unapproached by any other player in the history of baseball. But that isn't what we remember about Babe Ruth. His 714 home runs completely obliterated the 1330 strike-outs.

Cy Young, perhaps the greatest pitcher of all time, accumulated 511 victories, a mark that never has been threatened. But what is generally forgotten is that Young actually lost almost as many games as he won.

One of the failingest men who ever lived was always trying experiments that were unsuccessful. Yet we never think of Thomas Edison as a failure.

At Ford Necessity, during the French and Indian War, a young American Officer capitulated to the enemy. But, George Washington is never thought of as the man who surrendered to the French.

People would feel a lot less sensitive about failures if they remembered it just doesn't matter, except as a guidepost for oneself. Success is a bright sun that obscures and makes ridiculously unimportant all the little shadowy flecks of failure.

Borrowed Nonsense

Mother and daughter were in the kitchen washing dishes while father and son Johnny were in the living room. Suddenly they heard a crash of falling dishes. They listened expectantly. "It was Mom," Johnny said at last. "How do you know?" his father asked. "Because," Johnny replied, "she isn't saying anything."

"Your methods of cultivation are hopelessly out of date," said the youthful agricultural college graduate to the old farmer. "Why, I'd be astonished if you even got ten pounds of apples from that tree."

"So would I," replied the farmer. "It's a pear tree."

GOVENOR Wendell Anderson signs the proclamation designating this week as Jaycee Week in Minnesota as Vern White, state Jaycee president, left, and Robert E. LaShomb, right, executive director of the Minnesota Jaycees, look on. First Minnesota Jaycees meeting was in St. Cloud in 1932. Local Jaycees are observing the week with special radio and television programs.

notes from the governor

It is clear that one issue of great concern to many Minnesotans, particularly residents of the northern part of our state, is the state law that prohibits the use of studded tires.

A great deal of research has been conducted in recent years to determine the damage caused to raodways by the little tungsten-carbide devices.

But while it is clear that studded tires do damage our roads, it also appears that under certain winter driving conditions the metal studs do contribute to motoring safety.

It was with this in mind last week that I asked our commissioner of highways, Ray Lappegaard, to make a concerted effort in the coming months to identify acceptable alternatives to the conventional studded tires.

Specifically, I asked the commissioner to take the following steps:

Investigate new methods or materials that improve vehicle traction but which avoid the severe damage to highways caused by the tungsten-carbide studs.

If a satisfactory alternative or alternatives can be developed, I will recommend passage of legislation that would amend the existing law which bans metal studs.

In the event a substitute for studded tires cannot be found, determine as precisely as possible the damage that would result if studded tires were permitted in our less heavily traveled outstate areas. This study would provide the basis for considering the possibility of allowing the use of studs in selected areas.

Finally, analyze the feasibility of requiring motorists who want to use studs to purchase a permit. Revenue from these permits would be used to repair roadways damaged by studs.

It is my strong hope that a solution to this problem can be found that will both enhance the safety of the motoring public and protect our roads.

4-H CLUBS

Kratka

Kratka 4-H met on December 10 at Kratka hall. Roll call was answered by answering what do you want for Christmas. It was decided to go caroling December 27 and to meet at the Downs home for lunch. No reports were given because of the Christmas party.

The Christmas program consisted of all 4-H members participating. The high light of the evening was when Santa Claus appeared with sacks of treats for everyone.

Lunch was served by Paulson and Culkin families. Randy Downs, Reporter.

Leaders Council

January meeting of the Pennington county 4-H leaders council was held January 3 in the courthouse meeting room. The meeting was called to order by President Norma Hanson. Flag and 4-H pledges were said. The roll call was taken with junior and adult leaders present. The secretary's report was read and approved. The treasurer's report was given. There is $1,218.42 in the treasury.

In a committee report, the awards committee stated that they had met but too few members showed up so no decision had been made on making the 4-H scholarship available to vocational school students.

Joan Rausch made a motion that the scholarship requirements be left as they are this year, but be changed for next year so the vocational students have a chance at receiving it. Discussion followed. The motion was seconded and carried. The public speaking contest for Pennington county will be February 5, the first Saturday in February at 10:00 a.m. The topic is "Brotherhood-The Humane Environment".

The 1972 interstate leaders forum will be March 20-25 at the National 4-H center in Washington, D.C. A motion was made, seconded, and carried, that we pay the entire way, $217, if one leader attends, and half of the cost if two attend.

The announcement was made that out of about 80 counties Pennington county is one of the nine that has kept their pledge to the National 4-H center up-to-date.

The meeting was adjourned. The leaders were divided into four groups for discussion of the 4-H program in Pennington county and how to make it better. Reporter, Lynn Finstad.

Although Charles A. Lindbergh state park is really a memorial to the famous flier's father, it is the latter's trans-Alantic flight which brings tourists to this unusual Little Falls site.

The one and one-half story frame home in which the flier was raised is the focal point of the 110-acre state park. Set on a high, stone basement and covered with clapboard siding, it has been restored with its original furnishings and mementoes from the "Lone Eagle's" youth.

Lindbergh's father was a respected Minnesotan. A farmer, lawyer and congressman rolled into one, he was first elected to the U.S. House of Representatives in 1906 and served with distinction for ten years.

Later, he was an unsuccessful candidate for the U.S. Senate and the Minnesota governorship. He was also the author of three books on banking and finance.

Lindbergh began his legal practice in Little Falls in 1883, and the home now contains furnishings and other objects which were a part of his law office there.

Although he requested that no stone be erected in his memory, that wish was circumvented when the Lindbergh family donated the home and lands to the state. Although much of the estate had been used for farmland and grazing, those areas were cleared and remaining woodlands left in their natural state. Restoration of the home began in 1935 as a WPA project.

The American Conscience

by Dr. RUDY SKOGERBOE

Some simple questions come to mind when I consider the 1972 political race. The questions are based on the idea that I am a working man and a worried taxpayer.

There is a peculiar silence concerning cost in all the wonderful ideas being proposed. Not only that, but when the present administration brings up an idea like Family Assistance Plans, the leading contender for the opposition, Mr. Muskie says, "It is not enough."

When our government already is spending 20 billion dollars more than it has each year and the proposed budget will increase that deficit to 30 billion, the opposition can only say, "It is not enough."

When Congress refused to limit the amount of money our government is pouring into a hostile United Nations, the only answer is, "It is not enough." The question which should be obvious to most of us is then, "How much is enough?"

When the cause of inflation is bankrupt spending by our government, and when leaders of both parties say this is so, why does it have to continue? Another way to say it is, "Will there be any candidate running for President and any other office that will talk about balancing the budget?" This in my opinion is what we should do. The reason for a campaign being geared only to more spending regardless of cost is that those seeking office believe that is what the voter wants. Besides writing letters, what can we do?

In February, usually, every state has precinct caucuses for the two major parties. Anyone is welcome to come and the meeting must be published. Delegates from each precinct can be elected to the county political conventions. It takes a little time and not a great amount of effort. I would welcome those who are now active in the taxpayer's associations and those who want to see some changes to be present at the caucuses. Choose the party you like best and make your ideas known. This is just about the democracy the voter has and it can be very effective. If you cannot go yourself, get someone from your precinct to represent you. This is practical grass roots political action.

Columnist Sylvia Porter reports in the New York Post that fifty-six Americans who made $1 million or more in 1969 paid no income tax at all. The graduated income tax is aimed at the middle American who pays most of the taxes. The San Diego Union reports that by 1980 if the present trend continues, "for every person in the provider group there will be 2.2 persons in the receiver group. The burden to be borne by productive taxpayers will be five times as heavy in 1980 as it was in 1960. The way for these problems to receive first rate attention is through the precinct caucuses. Why not give it a try?

An important message for people who prepare their own income tax returns.

Maybe you've been cheating yourself all these years.

Every year, between January and April, millions of people sit down to do battle with Uncle Sam. Some are "self styled" accountants. Others think they can save a few dollars doing it themselves—so why not.

The sad truth is, however, no matter what their reason was for starting, many of them end the same. On the short end.

You see, when it comes to income taxes, amateurs should depend on H&R Block. We have all the facilities to help you make "income tax time" a pleasant experience. To begin with, H&R Block now has over 6,000 conveniently located offices manned by thousands of specially trained personnel who are anxious to help you. They'll sit you down over a free cup of coffee and show you some things about your income tax that you might never have known existed. For example, do you know all about deductions for child care or casualty losses? And maybe you aren't aware that if your income increased last year, you may be able to save tax dollars by "income averaging."

Well, when it comes to income taxes, H&R Block is aware of just about everything because we're a company that eats, sleeps, and drinks tax returns 365 days a year.

Yes, maybe you can save a couple of bucks by doing your own return but it really may be costing you a lot more by not having your return done by H&R Block.

DON'T LET AN AMATEUR DO H&R BLOCK'S JOB.

H&R Block.

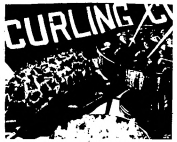
CURLING CLUB SNACKS



Anyone unfamiliar with the sport of curling might call it the "Fun with Brooms" game, but an experienced curler knows it requires skill and strategy. Curling originated over five centuries ago in Scotland and gets its name from the stone, which is always given a slight turn that causes it to rotate or "curl" as it slides across the ice. In a match, teams take turns sliding the stones over a stretch of ice toward the target circle. Two energetic players "sweep" the ice in front of the stone with brooms to influence the path of the stone as it moves across the curling sheet toward the target circles. The center of the circles, "the house" is the tee and stones are measured from the tee to determine the score.

Of course, food is part of the fun of a "bonspiel", and these snacks are Curling Club specialities. They can be easily prepared for a crowd of starving curlers after a match.

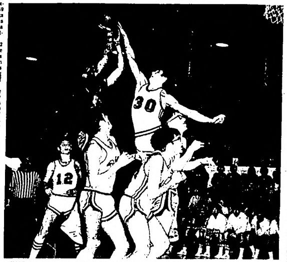
Prowler Cagers Beat EGF; But Lose To Littlefork



RANDE SMITH has to stretch to get above East Grand Forks' Kurt Knoff in Friday's Big Five encounter in the Lincoln high school gym. Smith scored 16 points and pulled down 14 rebounds as part of the Prowlers' 57-54 triumph over the Green Wave. Other players in the photo include "East Side's" Rip Thompson (12) Bryan Johnson (32) and Dave Rohy (44), along with the Prowlers' Tom Kays. Thief River Falls will be back in action tomorrow night (Tuesday) when the Prowlers travel to Warren for a conference clash.

Thief River Falls had the excitement of Friday's 73-59 triumph over East Grand Forks tarnished a bit Saturday night as the Prowlers suffered through a frustrating 57-54 loss at Littlefork-Big Falls.

The Prowlers fought for a 17-12 first quarter lead over the Vikings and managed to take a 33-32 halftime advantage when the Prowler defensive press resulted in three straight Viking turnovers and subsequent Thief River Falls field goals.

A cold shooting performance from the floor and seemingly unusual calls by the referees dropped the Prowlers to a 46-39 third quarter deficit before Thief River Falls tied the contest 54-54 with 32 seconds remaining in the game.

6-6 senior Tom Morris connected on the second toss of a two-shot foul with six seconds remaining for a 55-54 Viking lead and in the wild final moments Morris was credited with a basket at the buzzer for the final 57-54 margin.

Three players from each team hit double figures with the Prowlers' Kent Smith getting 14, Rande Smith 13 and Ordean Peterson 11. For Littlefork-Big Falls, Marty Cody scored 20, Morris 16 and Walt Jaakkola had 10.

The Prowlers shot just 26 per cent from the field (17 of 65) for the game, while turning in an anemic 20 per cent performance in the second half (7 of 35). The Vikings recorded a 40 per cent mark from the field. From the free throw line the Prowlers shot 74 per cent, compared to the Vikings' 36 per cent performance. Littlefork-Big Falls held a 47-30 rebound advantage.

While struggling through Saturday's agonizing defeat, the Prowlers might have reflected upon Friday's well-earned triumph over "East Side" when they overcame an eight point Green Wave lead with 12 straight points in the second quarter enroute to a surprisingly easy 73-59 win.

The large crowd on hand in the Lincoln high school gym witnessed the Kurt Knoff-lead Green Wave rush to a 19-13 first quarter lead when Knoff single-handedly broke down the Prowler defense.

With the Prowlers holding the ball with five seconds remaining in a 16-13 first quarter, Knoff stole a pass, dribbled the entire length of the court for a lay-up and connected on a free throw for a crucial three point play and a 19-13 "East Side" lead at the buzzer.

The All-State forward continued his acrobatic shooting performance in the opening moments of the second quarter for a 21-13 Green Wave lead, before the Prowlers went to work with five straight buckets and a pair of Tom Kays free throws for a 25-21 lead with 4:31 remaining enroute to a 36-26 halftime lead.

Knoff was the only obsticle in the Prowlers' way of turning the game into a rout in the second half as Lee Swanson's quint ran the fast break offense extremely well. Several different occasions found the Prowlers going in for easy lay-ups on three quick passes down the court after a Jeff Rhoden or Rande Smith rebound.

The Prowlers pulled out to a 14-point, 55-41, third quarter lead and led by as much as 20 points in the final stanza as they handed East Grand Forks its first Big Five Conference loss in two years. The Prowler win created a three-way tie for first place in the Big Five between Crookston, East Grand Forks and Thief River Falls - all holding one loss in league play.

The Prowlers shot 43 per cent from the field against the Wave, including a 52 per cent mark in the second half, while "East Side" recorded a poor 37 per cent performance. The Prowlers held a 48-32 rebound advantage with Rhoden grabbing 20 and Rande Smith 14. Rhoden, a 6-3 junior, turned in an outstanding performance with 25 points and 20 rebounds. Other Prowlers in double figures included Rande Smith with 16, Ordean Peterson 12 and Tom Kays had 11. Knoff was the only Green Wave player in double figures with 29 points.

THE PROWLER junior varsity took it on the chin twice over the weekend as East Grand Forks beat the JV'S 67-46 and Littlefork-Big Falls posted a 57-41 win in Saturday's preliminary game.

The Glenn Peters' coached Bees led East Grand Forks 17-16 after one quarter, but fel behind 34-25 at the half and 54-36 at the third stop. Randy Dallman was high point man for the JV's with 9 points. Gret Holtman poured in 16 for "East Side."

Thief River Falls trailed just 8-7 after one quarter in Saturday's preliminary contest, but fell behind 27-21 at the half. Littlefork-Big Falls held the young Prowlers scoreless in the third stanza to take a 44-21 advantage.

Dallman and Kent Christensen led the Prowler JV's with 9 points while Jim Treat had 15 and Greg Cariveau totaled 13 for the Vikings.

Kalinoski gained a reversal and a predicament in the last period for the win.

East Grand Forks tied the match 9-9 when veteran Joe Zak stopped Prowler freshman Daryl Myers 11-6 at 119 pounds. Zak took period leads of 4-2 and 9-4, before Myers tallied on a third period predicament and Zak countered with a two-point reversal.

The Prowlers climbed back on top 12-9 in the 126 pound battle when Joe Kezar edged Bryan Torrance 2-0 on a first period takedown in a meeting of sophomores.

The Prowlers' Dave Furuseth and "East Side's" Dan Zak wrestled to a 3-3 draw at 132 for a 14-11 match score.

Tim Wold gave the Prowlers a 17-11 margin in the 138 pound battle with a 4-1 win over Mitch Wavra. Wold broke a scoreless match in the second period with a reversal and the Prowler grappler added a third period predicament for his point total.

The Green Wave came back to tie the match once again when Jon Dostal pinned the Prowlers' Bryan Stieger in the 145 pound match for a 17-17 stand-off. Stieger led 4-2 before Dostal gained the fall with 10 seconds left in the first period.

LHS Athletic Squads Face Busy Week

Lincoln high school hockey, basketball and wrestling teams will all see early-week action either tonight or Tuesday as the squads start the tail end of their seasons leading to tournament competition.

The Lincoln basketeers will journey to Warren Tuesday for a Big Five Conference meeting with the Ponies while the Prowler wrestling squad will host Bemidji in the LHS the same night.

East Grand Forks will bring a 5-8 record into the arena tonight with a string of three straight triumphs over Grand Forks Red River (2-1), Crookston Central (6-2) and Roseau (4-2). The Green Wave has captured five of a possible eight points in region eight play this season. Included among the eight "East Side" losses was a 7-3 defeat at the hands of the Prowlers back on December 4.

The Prowlers are holding their own five game win streak with successive victories over St. Paul Hill (3-2), Bemidji (4-2), Roseau (4-2), Warroad (10-3) and Grand Forks Central (5-3).

Riding a current scoring streak, junior center Jeff Bottem has collected four goals and seven assists for 11 points while seniors Tom Wurst and Rory Anderson each have 10 points.

Lee Swanson's cagers also carry an 8-4 record after splitting a pair of weekend games. The Prowlers will be seeking their second conference win against the Ponies who carry a dismal 2-7 record after a 71-70 loss to Ada Friday night.

The Ponies are led by 5-9 co-captain Jeff Norman who scored a school record 34 points against Oslo earlier this season. The Prowlers are still blessed with balanced scoring with all five starters averaging in double figures. Senior center Rande Smith leads the Prowlers with a 15.0 average while Ordean Peterson and Kent Smith, the squad's junior guards, carry 13.8 and 13.4 averages. Jeff Rhoden reports in with a 13.4 and Tom Kays 12.5 average at the two forward spots.

The Prowler wrestling team, 4-5 in dual meets this season, will host one of the co-favorites for region eight honors, Bemidji, in the Lincoln gym Tuesday night, beginning at 7:30. The Lumberjacks are the defending region champs and are paced by 105 pounder Ricky Fulton, 138 pound Joel Trout and 155 pounder Tim Akerman. Coach Roy Nystrom's Redskins, despite getting just four shots on net the entire first period, grabbed a 1-0 lead with 9:08 remaining when senior defenseman Duane Meagher's quick wrist shot from 15 feet sailed past Prowler goalie Stan Ehrenstrom.

The Prowlers came back to tie the contest 1-1 on a power play goal with 5:52 left to play in the first period. Rory Anderson's hard slap shot from the right side was tipped in by teammate Mike Hamilton with six seconds left in the Redskins' only penalty of the night.

NORTHLAND GUARD Jay Forney drives through three Hibbing players for a lay-up in Saturday's junior college game in the Northland gym. Hibbing defenders Scott Johnson (30), Dave Anderson (12) and Tom Vucetich couldn't stop the 5-10 sophomore on this attempt. Northland won the conference game 120-96. The Northmen will be back in action tomorrow night (Tuesday) when they travel to Fergus Falls for a Northwest Division game.

Northland Bags Cardinals 120-96 In JC Cage Action

In a game which found the two teams combining to shoot 106 free throws, Northland blasted Hibbing 120-96 in a Minnesota junior college athletic association basketball game Saturday afternoon in the Northland gym.

Northland made the most of its 63 free throw opportunities as the Northmen made 44 gift tosses for a sparkling 70 per cent performance, while Hibbing connected on 28 of 43 charity throws for a 57 per cent mark.

Included in the foul-plagued affair were seven technical fouls assesed against the visiting Hibbing squad. Every member of both squads carried at least one personal foul at the end of the contest, with six players receiving earlier-than-usual rest.

The whistle-happy referees set the stage for the entire game when Northland's Dale Hanson was called for pushing with just eight seconds gone in the game. Hibbing's Tom Ronchetti gave the Cardinals their only lead of the contest with a single free throw before Hanson and Mike Rasch formed a two-man assult team that gave Northland a 7-1 lead in less than two minutes. The two freshmen continued the scoring blitz as they scored Northland's first 11 points. Rasch, a 6-0 forward from Hoffman, totaled 13 points in the game, with 10 of those coming in the first 4:53 of the contest.

Northland's lead fluctuated between 7 to 13 points throughout the first half as Tony Burke's rebound with two seconds remaining gave the Northmen a 55-44 halftime lead.

Hibbing came out the second twenty minutes with eight straight points for a 55-50 contest before the referee's managed to regain their wind and slow the contest to a mere walking affair.

Northland moved out to a 60-50 lead behind Burke and Willie Bayne and steadily moved out to a 23-point, 93-70, lead with 6:47 remaining in the game.

Freshman forward Jamie Tronnes made Northland's last field goal for a 109-91 lead with 1:17 remaining in the game before Northland scored its last 11 points from the free throw line. Northland scored six points in four seconds in the waning moments of the game as Jay Forney, Darrell Stromlund and Stan Leach dumped in free throws for the final 120-96 count.

Northland shot an impressive 51 per cent from the field (38 of 75) while Hibbing recorded a 43 per cent mark (34 of 79). The Northmen held a commanding 52-33 rebound advantage.

"I thought we hustled real well, and I was real pleased to score 120 points against them," said Northland coach Chet Engleman. "Hibbing was the sixth best defensive team in the state prior to the game, with an average of 67 points per game against them. Everybody hustled real well and we received real good performances from Burke, Rasch and Forney."

A DISCREPANCY in size shows up when Hibbing's 5-10 guard Fred Zbacnik tries to drive on Northland's 6-6 center Tony Burke in Saturday's game in the Northland gym. NSJC's Dale Hanson trails the play. Northland won the foul-slowed game 120-96 to raise its season record to 8-9.

Northland Skaters Sweep Lakewood JC 7-4 & 15-3

Northland junior college hockey team turned in its best performance of the season Tuesday and Wednesday, according to head coach Swede Lund, when the Northmen swept a two-game conference series against Lakewood junior college of White Bear Lake.

"We played extremely well in both games," said Lund. "We had real good defensive play, moved the puck better than ever before and we played real good forechecking games. We had short spells in each game where we let up a bit and they scored, but we bounced back and played real good hockey again in each case. It was by far the best we've played all year. If we can just keep the edge we have now, we could really challenge for the state-title this year."

Northland won Tuesday's contest 7-4 with seven different Northland players scoring goals. The Northmen had an easy time of it in Wednesday's finale behind Leo Marshall's five-goal performance as the NSJC skaters posted a decisive 15-3 shellacking of the Lancers in the Fridley arena.

In Tuesday's contest, Northland jumped out to a 3-0 first period lead behind goals by Mark Hughes, Bob Lundbohm and Gary Halvorson. The Northmen increased their margin to 7-2 in the second stanza with Rich Ellerbusch, Leonard Kotta, John Barger and Leo Marshall scoring. Northland then had one of those sport spells coach Lund spoke of, as Lakewood scored three third period goals within a six minute span.

Northland goalie Tom Matanich turned in a 28-save performance in the Northland nets while the Northmen peppered 32 shots at the Lakewood nets.

In Wednesday's late afternoon game (4:30), Northland grabbed a 2-0 first period lead behind two scores by Leonard Kotta, before opening up a 7-2 margin after two periods.

The Northmen led 5-0 on goals by Mark Hughes, Leo Marshall and Hughes again, before Lakewood scored twice for a 5-2 contest with 7:01 left in the second period.

Northland rammed home eight straight goals after the two Lakewood scores before the Lancers scored with 6:18 remaining in the game. Not to be outdone, Northland scored twice in the last four minutes of the contest for the 15-4 final.

Rodney Bolduc

Leo Marshall

With Northland holding a narrow 5-2 lead, Marshall and John Barger scored for a 7-2 lead going into the last twenty minutes when the Northmen received additional goals from Rodney Bolduc, Jeff Baumgartner, Bolduc again, twice by Marshall, Bolduc once more, Ellerbusch and Marshall ended the game's scoring on an assist from John Hellquist with 44 seconds remaining in the game.

For the two-game series, Marshall and Lundbohm each collected nine points. Marshall scored six goals and added three assists while Lundbohm scored one goal and had eight assists. Bolduc picked up seven points, on three goals and four assists, including the hat trick in Wednesday's game.

Northland's weekend series scheduled at Virginia against Mesabi was postponed and rescheduled for February. Next action for the Northland skaters will be Friday and Saturday night when the Northmen will host Itasca in the Thief River Falls sports arena. Game times each night will be 7:30.

At this point the Board recessed to convene again at 1:30 p.m., January 17, 1972 upon motion by Tasa seconded by Hanson and declared carried.

At 1:30 p.m. January 17, 1972 the Board reconvened after recess with the prime purpose of providing salaries for the various offices of the County. All Commissioners were present.

The matter of salaries was again taken up and various Officers were interviewed. It was agreed that the matter should be continued at the next regular meeting of the Board to be held February 8, 1972.

Commissioner Tasa introduced the following resolution and moved its adoption:

WHEREAS, Study reveals a great need in these Northwestern Counties for housing for the Elderly and Home Bound, and

WHEREAS, it appears the need for housing can best be met by a Multi-County approach to these needs.

NOW, THEREFORE, BE IT RESOLVED, that the Inter-County Community Council, Inc., of Oklee be commended for its foresight in this matter and be encouraged and urged to proceed as quickly as possible with organization of a Multi County Housing Authority to lend the best possible approach to the solution of this pressing need.

The foregoing resolution was duly seconded by Commissioner Anderson and declared carried.

Mention was then made of the letter that had been received from the Chamber of Commerce with a resolution asking for a solution to an apparent need for redistricting the County. Commissioner Tasa then presented the following: Moved by Commissioner Tasa that with regard to County redistricting the board consider the following, which would comply with the law.

1. That the Township of Rocksbury be divided (in half or possibly along the Red Lake River) and the west part be taken from District 5 and added to District 3 thereby causing District 3 to border District 2.

2. That Township of Star then be taken from District 1 and added to District 5, thereby causing Districts 1, 3 and 5 to be approximately equal in population.

3. That divided portions of Districts 2 and 4 (parts of which belonged to Districts 3 and 5 before being annexed by the city) then be added to Districts 1, 3 and 5 so as to leave each Commissioner District with approximately 20 per cent of the county population.

4. That this plan would tend to keep the work load equalized, due to the fact that rural area commissioners have direct responsibility for all roads, bridges, and ditch systems, while streets and drainage systems within the city are the responsibility of the city council.

Commissioner Hanson seconded the foregoing motion.

Chairman Olson, after reading the motion, stepped down from the chair and offered an amendment to the motion as follows: "And that this resolution be presented to the Thief River Falls City Council and to any other interested groups for their consideration before the County Board take action." The amendment was seconded by Commissioner Stenberg.

Vice Chairman Hanson then called for a vote on the amendment and asked that the Auditor call the role for a role call vote. The vote was recorded as follows: 1st District Hanson - Yes; 2nd District Olson - Yes; 3rd District Anderson - Yes; 4th District Stenberg - Yes and 5th District Tasa - Yes. The amendment was declared adopted unamiously.

Chairman Olson then asked for a recorded vote on the motion as amended and the following vote was recorded.

1st District Hanson - Yes; 2nd District Olson - Abstain with instructions that the Clerk record that the 'abstain' vote was recorded because of a lack of opportunity to study the proposal. 3rd District Anderson - Yes; 4th District Stenberg - Abstain with the Clerk instructed to record the abstain vote was recorded because of a lack of opportunity to study the proposal. 5th District - Yes. The motion was then declared adopted with the recorded vote of 3 votes in favor and 2 votes abstaining.

Moved by Anderson seconded by Stenberg that meeting adjourn to convene at 10:00 a.m., February 8, 1972. Carried.

Don L. Olson, Chairman
Pennington County Board
Attest: C. W. Rodekuhr, County Auditor & ex-officio, Clerk of the Board.

Ask Research On Diabetic Blindness

Appalling number of Americans forecast to be blinded by the eye disease diabetic retinopathy, and the measures being taken to counteract that forecast were the central issues at a recent symposium sponsored by the National Society for the Prevention of Blindness. Ironically this disease, which is also predicted to overtake cataract and glaucoma to become the leading cause of blindness in the coming decade, is virtually unknown outside certain medical specialties.

The dual goal of the symposium was to provide a forum for the exchange of views of those physicians prominently involved in research in, and treatment of, diabetic retinopathy and to point up the urgent need to attract the further professional and public interest necessary to secure funds for a full-scale research investigation. Fast becoming a major public health problem, diabetic retinopathy currently receives negligible research funding.

Six ophthalmologists and two diabetologists (diabetes specialists) participated in the meeting.

Scope Of The Problem

First speaker of the symposium, held in New York City in conjunction with the national society's annual conference, was Richard A. Field, M.D., diabetologist with the Retina foundation of Boston, and associate clinical professor of medicine, Harvard medical school. Dr. Field presented a statistical projection of the incidence of diabetic retinopathy, a study prepared in September 1971, by the Harvard school of public health.

The study estimates that compared to the current 154,700 persons blind from diabetic retinopathy, by the year 2000 a staggering 573,500 will be blind or severly visually impaired by the disease—more than the number blind from all causes today. (This figure is based on the assumption of a nine per cent yearly increase in the number of American diabetics, a percentage which has prevailed from 1958 to 1966.)

Dr. Field charged, "It has been our experience as a nation in the past to procrastinate on problems even when we see them coming in the future, and it's only after they become so burdensome and so acute and even violent that finally some response can be made."

The National Society for the Prevention of Blindness, in background materials presented at the symposium, noted that current studies estimate that 50 per cent of diabetics who have had diabetes for 20 years will develop retinopathy, blood vessel disease of the eye's retina; as will 95 per cent of those who have lived with diabetes for 30 years. The society emphasized that there is no cure for diabetic retinopathy, a disease classified into progressive stages—the last being blindness. Rurther, current therapy must still be considered "stop-gap" and "experimental", as corroborated by the symposium participants.

Society materials, in calling diabetic retinopathy a major public health problem, pointed out that there are an estimated six million diabetics in the U.S. today; that nearly one person in 20 is either an actual or potential diabetic; and that one-fifth of the population are "carriers" and have a 50 per cent chance of passing the trait on to their children, though they themselves do not develop the disease.

Broad Attack, More Research, Funds Needed

Symposium speaker Charles L. Schepens, M.D., president of the Retina foundation and associate clinical professor of ophthalmology, Harvard medical school, stressed that the problem of blindness due to diabetic retinopathy must be met by "a broad attack by many institutions, many teams".

And, he advocated, "there should be more and better centers organized to diagnose and treat diabetic retinopathy. Knowledge of such therapy as is currently available should be disseminated." He said that current treatment centers on photocoagulation, in which an intense beam of light is used to "spot weld" the blood vessels of the eye to keep them from hemorrhaging, and suppression of the pituitary, the body's "master gland".

As for future direction, Schepens urged that improvements in diagnostic methods be undertaken, advocating further development of techniques for photographing the entire interior of the eye; the use of monochromatic light to study the vitreous (the gelatinous substance filling the back portion of the eye); and improvements in reflectometry, the measuring of light wave reflections from inside the eye, to determine oxygen consumption by the retina.

"Oxygen consumption by the retina (the innermost lining of the eye, formed of sensitive nerve cells and fibers), we think, is a major factor in diabetic retinopathy," said Schepens.

"In terms of dollars," said Schepens, "I would suggest an immediate rock-bottom goal of $4.6 million for training and research related to diabetic retinopathy." HEW's national eye institute, one of the national institutes of health, has allocated $1.28 million for diabetic retinopathy research for the current fiscal year.

Early Detection Stressed

Other speakers at the symposium, and their major points, included:

Bradley R. Straatsma, M.D., professor and chairman, department of ophthalmology, UCLA school of medicine, Los Angeles: "We should, through education, encourage the person who may not be aware of a specific illness (diabetes) to seek medical attention, and we should advise him to obtain ophthalmic consultation at the very first indication of an eye problem."

Harold F. Spalter, M.D., Retina clinic, Columbia-Presbyterian medical center, New York City: "We must improve patient education. . .Too often we see in our offices for the first time the diabetic with very advanced diabetic retinopathy."

Frank W. Newell, M.D., professor and chairman, department of ophthalmology, University of Chicago, and vice president of the national society: "We need very much to have real focus placed upon the blinding aspects of diabetes because in many ways the medical aspects are very well managed, and blindness has emerged as the most serious complication of diabetes."

Irving H. Leopold, M.D., professor and chairman, department of ophthalmology, the Mount Sinai medical center, New York City, and vice president of the national society: "We have to encourage people to work in the field of diabetic retinopathy; and they have to be supported not with short-term funds but with long-term funds. If they're going to devote their careers to this field, they shouldn't have to worry about running out of funds in a year or two."

Arnall Patz, M.D., director, diabetic retinopathy center, Johns Hopkins medical center, Baltimore: "Interest has been stimulated at our center, and just within the past year and a half we've increased the number of diabetic retinopathy patients we're following from 150 patients to nearly 500.

Max Ellenberg, M.D., clinical professor of medicine, the Mount Sinai school of medicine, representing the American Diabetes association: "It should be kept in mind that retinopathy as developed by the diabetic is one manifestation of a generalized vascular lesion of the capillaries. . .I would agree, of course, that the eye, which allows direct observation, probably affords the best approach to research into the complications of diabetes."

Dr. Newell made the observation to those present at the symposium that it is ironic that diabetic retinopathy has literally been made possible only because of a life-saving medical discovery: "Fifty years ago came the discovery of insulin, which gave an average life span to those with diabetes—previously doomed to only four or five years of survival."

SBA Demands Compliance On Price Posting

Paul W. Jansen, Minnesota district director of the Small Business administration, said today that his agency has cautioned SBA borrowers throughout Minnesota to comply immediately with price-posting requirements under Phase II of President Nixon's economic plan.

Jansen said the SBA, acting as "an advocate of the small businessman", had warned the borrowers that compliance is mandatory and that violators would be subject to fines.

The warning, Jansen said, was contained in letters sent or more than 2100 borrowers in Minnesota administered by the SBA's Minneapolis office. "It was our feeling that many of our borrowers might not be familiar with the price-posting requirements which went into effect with the first of the year," Jansen said.

"Many of them, after all, cannot afford to be members of trade associations and watch-dog organizations which might keep them informed about Phase II and its ramifications.

"Thus, in accordance with President Nixon's desire that the SBA serve not only as a lending agency to the small businessman, but as his advocate, as well, we have attempted to inform them of the requirements they must meet."

Jansen explained that food retailers are required to display prominently, at the place of sale, base prices of all food items, except raw agricultural products.

In addition, all merchants must post a list of the 40 items in each store department which have the highest sales volume. However, if less than 40 items account for half or more of the department's sales, only these items need be listed.

Retailers with total sales volume of under $200,000 during the past fiscal year are required to post only the price of the 40 items with the highest dollar sales volume during that period or those which have accounted for at least 50 per cent of total dollar sales, whichever is least.

Jansen urged that questions about the Phase II requirements be directed to representatives of the Internal Revenue service.

Some Retailers Not Subject To Price Posting

Retailers with revenues of less than $200,000 annually are no longer subject to base price posting requirements, George O. Lethert, district director for Minnesota, said today. This decision was announced earlier by the price commission.

These retailers, while still subject to other price commission regulations, do not have to post signs listing the base prices or signs announcing the availability of base price information.

These retailers are still required to make available base price information if asked by customers. They will also still be subject to monitoring and spot checking by the Internal Revenue service, and documentation of base prices must be made available to IRS if requested.

Price Commission Chairman C. Jackson Grayson, Jr., said, "The commission believes this decision will remove an undue administrative burden on those small retailers who do not have the personnel or facilities to comply with the posting requirement. This is consistent with the intent of Congress as expressed in the economic stabilization act."

In other action, the price commission reported it has informed the American Pharmaceutical Association (APA) that the commission has reaffirmed its position that the sale of drugs is a retail activity.

The commission emphasized, however, that its decision should not be interpreted as an intention to detract from, reduce or remove the professional status of pharmacists.

The commission added that it had been advised by the Internal Revenue service of regulations that affect the APA. If a pharmacist places a standard compilation of wholesale legend drug prices plus a listing of his professional fee or markup with a 22 x 28 inch sign indicating the location of this information, he is in compliance with the regulations. The list must be in the pharmacy and accessible to the public without the aid of a store employee.

Parmacists still must post prices of non-legend drug items according to commission regulations. However, under today's ruling those parmacists doing less than $200,000 in business annually would be exempt from all posting requirements.

SNOWMOBILE interest in this area this week centered on the St. Paul 500 race which began Tuesday morning at Winnipeg and completed its first day of racing at Crookston. About half of the machines completed the first day of racing—highest percentage in the history of the race—although it was 37 degrees below zero at Winnipeg Tuesday morning. In the photo above, Jim Bernat of Roseau makes emergency repairs to his machine along highway 75 north of Warren. At left, Lawrence Labine of Argyle bounces over a crossing as he hurries after the leaders. A new winner is assured, since LeRoy Lindblad of Roseau, who won the past two years, had his machine break down on the first day of racing. Destination of the racers this afternoon is Walker, with two days of racing remaining.

School Considers Acquiring Arctic's Downtown Plant

Thief River Falls board of education discussed the possibilities of acquiring the downtown Arctic Enterprises building and remodeling it for several school purposes at the January meeting of the board on Tuesday. Architect Myron Denbrook of the firm of Wells, Denbrook, Adams, Inc., was present to outline possible remodeling plans and estimate probable costs.

It was evident at the meeting that acquisition of the building has been under consideration by the board and administration for some time, although Tuesday was the first time the question has been brought out in public meeting. It was noted that Arctic Enterprises has offered the downtown plant and site to the school district for $700,000 or about $6.60 per square foot for approximately 120,000 square feet of space.

Discussion at the meeting indicated that the board and administration plans to use the building, if obtained, for central office facilities, center school for high school age youngsters from this and other school districts, industrial arts and agriculture shops, school bus garage, storage and other items.

Denbrook estimated that it would cost a total of $782,000 to remodel the building to accommodate 600 students in a center school situation and prepare the structure for the other stated uses. Some of this could be done over a period of time as center school enrollment increases, thereby reducing the initial remodeling cost, he said.

On a per foot basis he estimated that conversion would cost $1.50 per square foot for school bus garage, $5.50 per square foot for shipping and receiving area, $3 per square foot for administrative offices, $6.50 per square foot for buildings and grounds offices and $9 per square foot for industrial arts and center school facilities.

The board took no definite action on the proposal other than to authorize payment of the architect for his work (no amount was given), and refer another copy to the administration for deliberation and refinement. A more detailed comparative cost study was requested for further deliberation by the board.

In other action Tuesday evening, the board defeated a resolution calling for an increase in the price of school lunches by five cents per lunch effective February 1. It was reported that the school district subsidizes the school lunch program by about $12,000 per year and that the increase would bring the program closer to paying its own way.

Proposed were increases of lunch prices from 25 cents to 30 cents for elementary, from 30 to 35 cents for junior and senior high school, from 35 to 40 cents for vocational school and junior college students and from 60 to 65 cents for adults. Voting in favor of the resolution were Curtis Charlson and E. C. Olson with Edgar Naplin, Kenneth Murphy

PROPOSED Senate District under reorganization plans of a three-judge panel would include the counties pictured above. It would match Sen. Donald Sinclair (Conservative) of Stephen against Sen. Roger Moe (Liberal) of Ada if both seek reelection. House District A within the senate district would include Kittson, Roseau, Lake of the Woods, Marshall and northwest Beltrami counties. Rep. Richard Fitzsimons (Conservative) of Warren would not have competition from an incumbent in that area. House District B would include Pennington, Red Lake, East Polk and Clearwater counties, with Polk county divided about two townships east of Crookston. This would match Rep. Andrew Skaar (Conservative) of Thief River Falls against Rep. L. J. Lee (Liberal) of Bagley. District C would include West Polk and Norman counties and match Rep. William Kelly (Liberal) of East Grand Forks against Rep. Willis Eken (Liberal) of Twin Valley. The plan was released Tuesday morning by federal court judges Gerald Haney, Earl Larson and Edward Devitt—the panel appointed to reapportion the legislature after Gov. Wendell Anderson vetoed the legislature's own plan for reapportionment. Senate appeals of the order to set aside the original districts and the right of the court to reduce the size of the legislature are in the courts. It is expected that no decision will be reached by the state supreme court before May or June.

City Asks Bids On Water Intake

Thief River Falls city council accepted plans and specifications from the city engineer Tuesday night for a new intake project located above the dam on the east side of the river to replace the present intake installation on Taft street. The intake plant will be much larger than the present one and will also have bigger pumps. Bids on the project will be opened February 22 at 3 p.m. This is the first in a series of planned improvements to update the city's water plant.

The council Tuesday night tabled many items on its agenda to allow more time to gather information on proposed ordinances and discuss planning matters with the city planning commission.

Second reading of a new ordinance regulating cats and dogs within the city was tabled so that city officials could consult the Minnesota League of Municipalities to find what ordinances other cities have regulating cats.

Also tabled was the first reading of an ordinance to make the municipal code conform to state law with respect to holidays. The ordinance would cut the number of holidays for city employees from 11 to nine. Council heard the first reading of an ordinance reducing the electric power rates for power consumed over 100,000 kilowatt hours per month. The rate would be 1.9 cents per kilowatt hour over 100,000 kilowatt hours each month.

Northwest Tel-e-lect of Minneapolis was the successful low bidder for a brush chipper for the park and recreation department. The firm submitted a bid of $4,721, with the machine to be delivered within six weeks.

The city council granted the local school district one parking stall to be used as an unloading zone on First street on the south side of the former Carnegie library for the 36 students who attend classes in that building.

The council tabled a proposal by the Hodne-Stageberg firm to have their representative attend meetings of the planning commission, review development proposals, including rezonings, special use permits, shopping centers, and various other development proposals, update the city's data base, and prepare a "Southeast Sector Plan". The council members will meet with the city planning commission next Wednesday to discuss the Hodne-Stegeberg proposals. (To have a representative of that firm attend each session of the planning commission would cost the city approximately $300 per meeting.)

Pennington ASC Has Active Year In 1971

Pennington county farmers participated actively in programs administered by the Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation committee during 1971, according to Wallace Sparby, director of the Pennington county office. The office had the additional burden of answering questions under President Nixon's wage and price freeze program, with this procedure requiring a large amount of time for office personnel.

The year was one in which a near record amount of grain loans was processed by the county office. Total grain involved was more than two and one-half million bushels, including 1,801,825 bushels of oats, 404,217 bushels of wheat and 298,692 bushels of barley. There were 759 farm-stored loans and total money disbursed on these loans was $1,725,944.

Annual storage payment on grain stored on farms under the Commodity Credit corporation storage program was $301,505. At the end of the year there were 2,322,272 bushels under reseal. Interest paid on grain loans in 1971 amounted to $14,512.

A record 140 granary loans were disbursed with total capacity of 976,471 bushels. At the end of 1971 there were 310 active granary loans with storage capacity of 2,298,502 bushels. Interest paid on storage structure loans during 1971 amounted to $6,562.

Wool incentive program involved 86 Pennington county farmers during 1971 with a total of $17,228.96 paid on wool and unshorn lambs sold in 1970, Sparby said.

Rural Environmental Assistance program (REAP), successor to the Agricultural Conservation program (ACP), placed emphasis in 1971 on problems threatening the environment. Priorities included reduction of pollution related to agriculture and long-range protection and improvement of basic soil, water, woodland and wildlife reserves.

Approximately 286 farmers participated in the REAP programs. Thirty-three farmers planted farmstead shelter belts with 84 acres of trees planted and 256 acres benefitted. Eleven farmers planted one-row shelterbelts which specifically provided wind erosion protection to 600 acres of land. Cost-sharing for tree planting practices totaled $9,979.

The county ASCS committee approved $32,394 for practices which included seeding down of legumes and grasses for the protection of soil from wind and water erosion. Seedings of legumes and grasses by approximately 200 farmers covered a total of 4,018 acres. Thirty farmers installed stock water pits on their farms, improving about 4,000 acres of grassland.

One farm installed a shallow water area for wildlife in 1971 and two farmers participated in the wildlife food plot practice. In the latter, grain was cut and stacked to provide winter food for wildlife.

In spite of emphasis on pollution abatement practices, only one project was completed because of the high cost. Cost-share payments were made to eight farmers for installation of water outlet structures to protect against siltation in ditches and rivers.

A total of 197 requests was referred to the Soil Conservation service for technical assistance last year, Sparby noted, and $3,355.44 was allocated to SCS for technical assistance on these practices. Only 26 farms received cost-sharing on drainage practices.

Pasture improvement practice was completed on 25 farms last year. It provides for clearing brush and small timber from land and removing rocks so that a proper vegetative cover may be

Announce Crops Eligible For 1972-73 Reseal

Crops eligible for reseal for the 1972-1973 storage period have been announced according to Marcel Dahl, chairman of the Marshall county Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation committee. Commodities applicable to this area are 1968, 1969, 1970 and 1971 wheat, barley and oats. 1971 crop rye is also eligible for reseal. Dahl stated this is the first time rye has been eligible for reseal.

Farmers with loans on these commodities will be given a choice in April and May to deliver, repay or reseal. All crops resealed must be in good condition and be stored in structures that will give protection from weather conditions, rodents and birds.

Dahl emphasized that keeping grain in good condition and safe storage is an important factor and is the farmers responsibility.

Farmers To Hear Information On Feed Grain Plan

Feed grain and wheat programs for 1972 will be discussed at a meeting to be held Monday at 8 p.m. at the Goodridge high school agriculture classroom, according to Wallace Shodean, vocational agriculture instructor at Goodridge.

Speaker for the meeting will be Wallace Sparby, director of the Pennington county Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation committee. All persons interested in receiving information or having questions answered are encouraged to attend.

John C. Penn

Penn Elected To First Federal Director Board

John C. Penn was elected to the board of directors of First Federal Savings and Loan association and E. M. Gaer was elected director emeritus at the annual meeting of the Thief River Falls association recently. Milton Reierson, president, was reelected to a three-year term on the board.

All officers were reelected and include Reierson, president; Stanton R. Dahlen, chairman of the board; Dorothy Morehouse, vice president; Helen Adamson, vice president and secretary; Ronald L. and Wallace Sparby opposed. Board members Maynard Wedul and Rev. Paul Biegner were absent.

A delegation from the Countryside trailer court on the west edge of Thief River Falls appeared to request bus service for students living in the court. After discussion concerning distance from the court to the Washington elementary school, and the state law as it regards reimbursement for transportation, the matter was referred to Clair Carlson as superintendent of transportation, Washington principal William Desrocher and a representative of the trailer court delegation. After mileage is exactly determined, the board will receive further information for review.

No bids were received on the St. Hilaire property and the board decided not to readvertise until April.

Resignations were accepted from Gerald Wigness, office education instructor at the vocational-technical school, and Susan Morey, cook's helper at Franklin junior high school.

Hired were Daniel Swenson, bus driver; Lorna Pommrehn, SLBP teacher to replace Beverly Olson who replaced Patricia Tesauro at Mark Twain; Harret Hanson, first grade at Mark Twain to replace Linda Peterson who is on a leave of absence; Gayle Walter, office education to fill vacancy caused by resignation of Wigness; John Kolberg, tool man at the aviation mechanics department; Thelma Peterson, cook's helper at Franklin to replace Susan Morey; Mrs. Bonita C. Peterson, secretary, replaces Roberta Carlson; Norman A. Peterson, custodian at Lincoln; and Ida Diehl, clerical aide.

Approval was given to establish voting procedures for the professional growth committee with election to be held in February and the committee to become functional in March.

The board approved a resolution stating that the administration is authorized to pay the salary amount withheld during the freeze period "upon formal notification from the Thief River Falls ASCS official". A request from Mark Schug, president of the Thief River Falls Federation of Teachers, that seven per cent interest be paid on the amount withheld was rejected.

Under a program of federal funding through the emergency employment act the board agreed to hire a school community education coordinator at a salary of $7,000 annually, an office production clerk at $4,2000 annually and a security man to $499.20 per month. Costs are to be paid through Marshall county. Provision was made for review fo the job and performance after 90 days.

Recommendation that liability insurance be provided for students in the cosmetology department was tabled pending later review of the school's insurance situation. Approval was given to district participation in federal sources.

Resolution was also approved regarding school facilities for next year. It was stated that elementary grades of kindergarten through sixth grade would be housed at St. Hilaire, Washington, Knox, Northorp, portions of Mark Twain and either rental areas or portions of district-owned buildings; junior high school would be for grades 7, 8 and 9 at Franklin; senior high school would be for grades 10, 11 and 12 at Lincoln; and that special education classes would be in school-owned facilities.

Pennington ASC Has Active Year In Many Programs

"In general, we believe the REAP program had a good year in Pennington county," Sparby said. "We believe that the allocation for the county of $67,431 will be earned by the participants in the program. This means that the farmers contributed 50 per cent and we had $134,862 invested in practices for environmental conservation."

About 88 per cent of the county's eligible 791 farmers participated in the wheat and feed grain program when 696 took part. These farmers set aside approximately 7,000 idle acres and put 64,000 acres into conserving uses, including production of non-depleting crops such as grasses. Total cropland on eligible farms was 227,000 acres with crops planted including 2,000 acres of corn, 34,531 acres of wheat, 13,700 acres of barley, 3,2[illegible] acres of flax, 61,280 acres of oats, 3,000 acres of rye and 23 acres of soybeans. Participation is expected to be greater in 1972 since incentives have been improved slightly.

Total payments were $223,642 in the wheat program and $28,796 in the feed grain program last year.

There are 34 farms which have cropland adjustment program agreements in effect for 1972. The number of farms in the CAP program has been decreasing each year and no additional contracts nor agreements have been activated since 1967.

Private School Bus Service Gains In State

Twenty-two Minnesota school districts have switched from publicly owned transportation of their pupils to contract service with private school bus firms, J. C. Deveau, Hopkins, president of the Minnesota School Bus Operators association, said today.

From being on the short side of a 60-40 percentage ratio in this type of service at the end of 1969, he said, privately owned bus transportation of pupils rose to 45 per cent by the end of 1971.

Deveau based his report, made to his association, on compilations by Gerald Pavek, Minnesota department of education pupil transportation director.

"Official figures show that free enterprise operation in the public school pupil transportation filed totaled 176 at the end of 1969," Deveau said. The number is now 198. During this time, publicly owned school bus transportation dwindled from 265 to 243. There are 441 school districts in the state.

"We attribute the change to the findings by many school districts that own their own school bus fleets that their neighboring districts are getting the job done at less cost to the taxpayers," he commented.

Deveau also reported a rise of 131 in the association membership during the past six months.

Sunflowers Set New Records In Minnesota In '71

Minnesota's fastest growing agricultural specialty industry, sunflower seeds, set yield, production, acreage and income records in 1971, Agriculture Commissioner Wefald reported today.

Value of the 1971 crop is estimated at $8,629,000 or over two and one-half times the 1970 income. The previous high was $4,508,000 in 1967.

Production totaled 168,260,000 pounds, more than double the previous crop. Yield per acre was a record 1,086 pounds, the average for the 155,000 acres harvested. That compared with a yield of 863 pounds per acre on 86,000 acres in 1970.

Sold principally under contract to processors, the 1971 sunflower seed crop brought Minnesota growers an average of $5.13 per 100 pounds, or $55.71 gross income per acre. In 1970 the average price was $4.61 and yield gross income on only $3.78 per acre.

Minnesota ranks second only to North Dakota in U. S. production of sunflower seeds and most of the production of both states is concentrated in the Red River Valley, according to the state-federal crop and livestock reporting service of the Minnesota department of agriculture.

North Dakota's 1971 sunflower seed production is estimated at 239,610,000 pounds, or an average of 1,101 pounds per acre from the 237,000 acres harvested. At an average contract price of $5.03 per 100 pounds, the North Dakota crop is valued at $12,063,000.

Nearly 60 per cent of the sunflower seed is processed for human snack products and for bird feeding and the balance of the production is oil seed for processing into a variety of consumer products. Steadily increasing demand for the human snack and bird seed varieties is reflected in the $5.70 premium price per 100 pounds paid growers, compared to the $4.40 average for the oil seeds.

Scout Troop Wins Award For State Park

Placement of 16 wood duck houses along a trail in Ft. Snelling state park last spring has earned an award for the 22 members of Boy Scout Troop 130.

The troop is comprised of handicapped boys and is sponsored by the Dowling school PTA and the Hennepin county sheriff's department.

The troop's project was selected as Region 10 winner under a two year national "Save Our American Resources" (SOAR) program. Region 10 includes North and South Dakota, Minnesota, eastern Montana and parts of Michigan, Wisconsin, Iowa and Wyoming.

The wood duck houses erected by the troop were placed along a trail on the west side of Snelling lake in the park. Park manager Harold Raak said "Wood Duck Trail" was dedicated on May 8, 1971, and a sign posted at the north end to mark it.

"The staff of Fort Snelling state park congratulates the boys of Troop 130," said Raak, "their scoutmaster Ron Taylor and the many other individuals involved in making the project an outstanding success."

Pollution Talk Scheduled at BSC

Grant Merritt, executive director of the Minnesota pollution control agency, has agreed to deliver an address at Bemidji state college classroom building auditorium Wednesday, Jan. 26, at 7:30 p.m.

Merritt's subject is particularly timely in light of the controversy over a lawsuit filed against the city of Bemidji for pollution of the Mississippi River. He will discuss the impact that present and proposed pollution control regulations have on smaller Minnesota communities.

A question and answer period will follow his discussion, allowing the audience to participate in the program.

A panel discussion has also been scheduled to follow Merritt's address, with Patrick Trihey, BSC biologist, as moderator. Other members of the panel will be Dr. Kenneth Lundberg, BSC chemist; Dr. James Ludwig, director of the BSC center for environmental studies (CES); Mrs. Henrietta Britton, representing the concern over pollution of the league of women voters; Chet Swedmark of the Beltrami county board of commissioners; Jim Walker, city engineer of Bemidji; and Bemidji city councilmen Doug Peterson and Ralph Moberg.

The public is invited to the Wednesday evening discussion free of charge.

Trihey says, "We anticipate that many members of the community will find this discussion interesting, in view of the current lawsuit that deals with this subject. We've attempted to make our panel representative of the various positions taken by groups in the community, and expect that all sides will have an opportunity to amply express their views."

The program is sponsored by Turtle River watershed association and the BSC conservation club. Further information is available from Ludwig, Trihey, or Lundberg at 755-2920.

February 4 Is Deadline For Japan Exhibits

Announcing that February 4 is the deadline for accepting additional exhibits, Agriculture Commissioner Jon Wefald reported today that seven Minnesota food firms have already reserved entries in the second Mid-American trade mission to Japan.

Minnesota exhibitors already signed for the All-American Foods festival at the U.S. trade center in Tokyo, April 17-21, are General Mills, Geo. A. Hormel & Co., Jeno's, King of Spuds, Metro Meats, Pillsbury, and Weinstein International.

Commissioner Wefald said the 1972 promotion is an expansion of the successful 1971 trade mission to Japan that produced well over $1 million in new business for Minnesota's food industry.

An estimated 2,000 Japanese trade representatives and buyers are expected to attend this year's American Foods festival, according to the co-sponsoring U.S. Department of Agricultural foreign agricultural service.

Minnesota firms and agricultural marketing organizations interested in the Japan food market and other export potentials are urged to contact the marketing services division of the Minnesota department of agriculture, 540 State Office Building, St. Paul.

M. C. Combs, director of the marketing services division, said Minnesota has been granted an additional quota of exhibits for the Japan trade mission, but cautioned that the available space will be committed on a "first come, first served," basis prior to the February 4 deadline set for the 12 Mid-America International Agri-Trade Council (MIATCO) states.

Major food groups the Japanese pruchased from Minnesota and other MIATCO states last year included pork, beef and poultry products, natural and processed cheeses, sweet corn, dried peas and beans, and potato flour. Japan also imports canned orange and tomato juice, canned peaches, pineapple and fruit cocktail, fresh lemons, oranges and grapefruit, and shelled almonds and peanuts.

Minnesota Lost Most Farms In Nation In 1971

Minnesota shared with North Carolina the dubious distinction of the greatest loss of family farming operations in the entire nation during 1971, a total of 3,000 farmes each, Agriculture Commissioner Jon Wefald reported today.

That reduced Minnesota's number of operating farms on January 1, 1972, to 119,000 according to the figures compiled by the state-federal crop and livestock reporting service of the Minnesota department of agriculture. The report estimated 31,800,000 acres now in Minnesota farms, down 200,000 acres from a year ago.

Commissioner Wefald observed that while the 3,000 farm loss is the same as in 1970, it actually represents an increase in the rate of reduction, from two per cent to nearly 2.5 per cent. North Carolina's loss rate is less than two per cent.

"We have lost much, much more than 3,000 farming units," Commissioner Wefald declared. "We have lost another 12,450 poeple to rural out-migration. We have lost the purchasing power for personal goods and services as well as a proportionate share of the more than $38 million in farm operting expenses that they represent.

"And, applying the ecomic formula that for each six farms lost we lose one small business because of the reduced demand for local goods and services Minnesota last year lost 500 small businesses," Commissioner Wefald stated.

He insisted, "this need not have happened, and would not have if the U. S. farm program would have prov[illegible]d fair and decent prices for [illegible]m production."

Commissioner Wefald added that he "hopes the new farm census estimates revealing the shocking national loss in 1971 of 44,700 farms, representing a farm to city population shift of more than 186,000 Americans, will prompt swift passage by the U. S. Senate of a bill passed by the House a month ago to hike wheat and feed price supports by 25 per cent."

During the past decade Minnesota has lost 30,000 family farms and 124,500 people, national agriculture has lost 730,000 family farms and 3,029,500 people. The average acreage of farms in Minnesota has increased from 217 to 267, and in the nation from 324 to 394 acres per farm.

Four Agencies Bring Cases To County Court

Minnesota highway patrol, state conservation department, Pennington county sheriff's department and Thief River Falls city police cases were heard Monday in the criminal division of county court with Judge J. A. Harren presiding.

In highway patrol cases, Wayne E. Quaas, Grand Rapids, forfeited a $30 bond on a speeding charge, and Kenneth L. Lord, Plummer, was fined $75 for careless driving. Other highway patrol cases were continued because the defendants were unable to appear before the court due to weather conditions.

In state conservation department cases, Rodney C. Janisch, Borup, was fined $25 with $15 suspended for not displaying a snowmobile registration number. Charged with not displaying a registration number on their snowmobiles were Gary Boman, St. Hilaire and Roy J. Manderud, Thief River Falls. Boman was fined $25 with $10 suspended and Manderud was fined $25.

Sheriff's department charged Donald E. Nostdahl, Bottineau, N.D., with driving while under the influence. He was fined $300 with $100 suspended. Charles VanderWeg, Thief River Falls, forfeited a $20 bond for driving too fast for conditions. Joseph G. Armstrong, Thief River Falls, was fined $30 with $10 suspended on a speeding charge.

In Thief River Falls city police cases, Albert M. Mostrom, Thief River Falls, was found guilty of driving while under the influence and was fined $300 with $100 suspended. His drivers license was also suspended. Kenneth D. Olson of Thief River Falls was also found guilty of driving while under the influence and was fined $300. The court also suspended his drivers license.

Hjalmer V. Aaseby, Thief River Falls, was charged with permitting littering and was fined $25 with $10 suspended. Lawrence M. Haglund, Thief River Falls, was found guilty of littering and forfeited a $50 bond. Edwin O. Stromlund was found guilty of leaving the scene of an accident and was fined $300 with $250 suspended.

Ralph T. Hunt, Thief River Falls, was fined $20 with $5 suspended for speeding. Walter J. Forney, Thief River Falls, was fined $20 with $5 suspended for speeding. Curtis C. Carpenter, Thief River Falls, was found guilty of consuming by a minor and was fined $50 with $25 suspended.

State Places Seventh In Feeder Lambs

Despite a two per cent reduction in the number of sheep and lambs on feed in Minnesota, to 109,000 on January 1, this state climbed two notches to seventh place in U.S. sheep and lamb inventories, reports Agriculture Commissioner Jon Wefald.

Minnesota actually moved ahead of three states, Idaho, California and Ohio, but Wyoming climbed from tenth to sixth place in the new 1972 rankings for January 1, compared to a year ago.

The nation's top five states for sheep and lambs on feed being fattened for slaughter, in order, are Colorado, Texas, Iowa, Nebraska and South Dakota, according to the statistics compiled by the state-federal crop and livestock reporting service of the Minnesota department of agriculture.

Minnesota's modest cutback in sheep production reflects a continuing trend, paralleled by declining national per capita consumption of mutton. The report also notes that prices received by Minnesota farmers last year for slaughter sheep averaged below 1970 price levels, although higher for feeder lambs during seven months of 1971.

Nationally, however, the January 1 inventory of feeder sheep and lambs in the 26 major states was three per cent above a year earlier and totaled 2,715,000 head.

BSC Will Offer European Tour

A five week tour, academic credit, and a chance to see some of the great shrines and sights of Europe are again being offered by Bemidji state college for a package price of $899.

Touted as one of the best bargains in the tour business, the BSC summer tour of Europe will run July 17 through August 21 this year. Six hours of undergraduate or graduate credit can be earned by students taking the tour and a further inducement this year is that professional teachers taking the tour can now earn substantial re-certification units by foreign travel and contact with non-American cultures.

Kenneth Henriques, BSC english department chairman and tour leader, indicates that the tour will include about 30 major stops and that accommodations this year include a deluxe bus, second class hotels with baths at every overnight stop, and two meals a day. All transportation is included in the tour price.

"BSC's tour," Henriques states, "offers a package that is inexpensive, covers Europe rather thoroughly, and is oriented toward understanding our western culture."

Professor Henriques notes that this tour is listed with a number of academic agencies and that inquiries are being received from a number of students from other schools. For this reason, he emphasizes the importange of early application by BSC students and graduates desiring inclusion on the tour.

While the itinery of the tour includes an amazingly tight schedule, the tour is designed to allow free time in many of the cities, including some that are world-famous for nightlife and resort atmosphere.

The scheduled visits will include visits to: Trier, the Rhine River and Cologne, the Ruhr Valley, both sides of Berlin, Rothenburg, Dachau concentration camp and Munich in Germany, as well as Salzburg and the Tyrolean resort of Zell Am See in Austria.

July 29, the tour will move into Italy for visits at Cortina, Venice, Padua, Bologna, Florence, Rome, Pompeii, Naples Capri, Pisa, Genoa, Milan and on into Switzerland at Zermatt.

In Switzerland, the tour will spend August 6 in Zermatt, at the foot of the Matterhorn and two days at the lakeside in Lucerne.

August 10 will find the tour in Paris for three days of sightseeing in the city of lights. Another stop in France will be Calais, where the tour will board a hovercraft to cross the English Channel.

August 14, the tour will settle in London, after a side trip to Canterbury to visit the site of Chaucer's "Canterbury Tales" and the shrine of St. Thomas a Becket.

In London for three days, the tour will travel to Oxford, Stratford and Harwich.

August 16, the tour will again cross the Channel to Amsterdam for three days in Holland and then on to Liege and Bastogne in Belgium.

August 21, the tour ends in Luxemburg, where it started. A highlight of the return trip to John F. Kennedy airport in New York city will be a mid-Atlantic sighting of the southern tip of Greenland, which is described by those who have seen it as "magnificant."

A deposit of $200 is required before April 15 and final payment of the tour price must be received by Henriques before June 1. Full refunds will be made for cancellations prior to June 15.

Agency Approves Air Standards For Minnesota

Minnesota pollution control agency has approved a comprehensive air quality implementation plan aimed at achieving federal ambient air quality standards by mid-1975.

The nine-member agency board of directors approved the plan after an all day meeting last Thursday. It now goes to Governor Wendell Anderson for his signature, then on to the federal environmental protection agency for review.

The plan deals specifically with six air contaminants: carbon monoxide, sulfur dioxide, nitrogen oxides, particulates, hydrocarbons and photochemical oxidants.

The plan proposes specific emissions standards and regulations for sulfur dioxide, particulates, and nitrogen oxides, as well as standards and levels to be maintained in the ambient air. It outlines how the MPCA plans to reduce concentrations of the six contaminants so that federal ambient air quality standards can be acheived by mid-1975.

Included in the plan is a so-called "anti-degradation" clause designed to maintain the purity of air to areas which now have little industry. The provision states that permits would not be issued to new plants with annual emissions of 100 tons or more until hearings have been held and until consideration of the long range development objectives of various governmental units are determined.

The plan also commits the MPCA to support of a state vehicle-emissions inspection law, encouragement of increased mass transportation, and possible adoption of traffic restrictions in certain areas at certain peak hours. The MPCA staff will undertake two studies, to be completed by next January 1, which will result in specific plans for the vehicle-emissions inspection idea, plus the increased use of mass transportation and the possibility of traffic restrictions.

The plan imposes deadlines for reduced emissions of sulfur dioxide, which comes chiefly from coal burning electric power plants and oil refineries. For large installations, the plan calls for a 1.5 per cent limit on the sulfur content of coal by June 1, 1973, with the same limitation of oil by June 1, 1974.

The plan, as recommended by the MPCA staff, had called for a sulfur limitation for large oil burners of 2 per cent by June 1, 1972, and 1.5 per cent by June 1, 1973. However, the agency board approved, by a 5-4 vote, the time extension for the large oil users to June 1, 1974. The sulfur content of the oil now being burned by the large users is about 3.5 per cent.

Acceptable sulfur dioxide levels in the ambient air have been exceeded twice in the past six weeks in the Twin Cities metropolitan area, where about 76 per cent of the sulfur dioxide comes, from fossil fuel power plants, and about 20 per cent from large oil refineries.

The plan lists seven "air quality control regions" (AQCR) throughout the state, with priority ratings determined for each contaminant in each area. The regions are Central Minnesota, Southeast Minnesota, Duluth, Fargo-Moorhead, Minneapolis-St. Paul, Northwest Minnesota and Southwest Minnesota.

The plan, to become effective shortly, will give the MPCA authority to proceed with the new emission standards and limitations, to conduct monitoring of air pollution source points, and to enforce all applicable laws, regulations and standards. It also will require permits for the operation of emission source plants and for pollution control equipment.

ATOMS AT SEA—The United States' first nuclear powered submarine, the U.S.S. Nautilus, went to sea sixteen years ago. She traveled 62,000 miles before refueling. To date, the U. S. has launched 100 nuclear submarines. The photo shows one of the latest nuclear attack submarines, the U.S.S. Queenfish, surfaced at the North Pole after a journey under the arctic icecap. Since its creation 25 years ago, the Atomic Energy Commission has worked with the Navy to develop the reactors that power the nuclear fleet. The naval nuclear program has accumulated over 800 years of operating experience with reactors, demonstrating by its record that nuclear fission can produce safe and useful power. (Photo by U. S. The American Conscience

When the Emperor of Rome needed more money to run his government, he performed a "miracle of statesmanship". This is similar to, but even more realistic than what happened when we devalued our dollar by over 8 per cent on the world market. What this Emperor did was to call in all the gold coins, I believe it was called a danarius, and melted them down. He produced new coins with 10 per cent more lead or some other baser metal in them. For a time he had more money and everybody was happy. Soon, however, since he thought it was unpopular to levy more taxes and pay his debts, he called in the gold again and increased the percentage of lead. As this process was repeated, people lost their respect for the danarius. Not too long after this happened, the country went out of business and the proud Roman Empire ceased to exist as a world power. Now this could have been coincidence, but to me it tells a story of something much more than just the currency.

Today we hear of the problems of wage and price control as if they would change our course of rapid inflation. Let us put this into example. If the government told a dress maker to make a certain dress for a certain price, one could say that this is the way it should be. The dressmaker insists, however, that she cannot make that dress for that price without losing money. If the law is made to enforce this certain price, she has only one choice which is to go out of business. This would mean fewer dresses on the market and if the price were kept down, what would happen?

Some textbooks say that wage and price control is necessary, by this inferring that it is desirable. What will happen to dresses as mentioned above in such a situation? Those who really want a dress will be willing to pay more for a dress on the free market. Now this is sometimes called the black market, but it still is one which responds to supply and demand. It is interesting that this market flourishes in all countries where there is a controlled economy. Now I call this socialism. I realize this is a nasty word, but you can call it statism, or even democracy as some of our writings seem to indicate.

What will bring inflation under control then, if controls in other countries have stimulated such bad results as a black market? The answer is, obviously, a balanced federal and state budget. Now we are printing paper money without the backing of either silver or gold. It has therefore no intrinsic value whatsoever. It survives only on the willingness of the merchant or the provider of services to accept this paper money for what he sells or does. When faith in this paper money is destroyed, then what?

There is a way out. It is simple, but it might be painful for a time. We can refuse to elect those who promise too much. After all, where do they get all these goodies to pass around if it isn't from those who work and produce this country's wealth? I do not believe we will choose this painful road soon enough or fast enough, but as our economy becomes more and more enslaved by government, at least we will know how it happened.

Department of Economic Development

Historic village of Mendota is easily reached by a pleasant drive along fine roads, down a twisting, picturesque, wooded rural highway. While now a part of the ever-growing Twin City metropolis, it has retained its small town quaintness to provide the ideal setting for three of Minnesota's earliest homes.

The most famous of these is the Sibley House, often called the Mount Vernon of Minnesota. Henry Sibley—fur trader, frontier politician and first governor of the state—built the home in 1835 to serve as both dwelling and office.

Sibley's was the first stone house in all of Minnesota and Dakota. The walls are two feet thick with hand-hewn timbers, held together by wooden pegs, forming the beams and window sills. Through a glass-covered exposure, visitors can see exactly how the walls were made. Grass and rushes from the river bank were twisted into rope which substituted for laths in holding the plaster together—the plaster itself being made from mud and clay mixed with twigs.

Through the same front door used by today's visitors came Sibley's contemporaries—Indian leaders, French traders, government officials and others.

A brief walk from this famous house is the stately home built by Jean Baptiste Faribault, a pioneer fur trader, in 1836. The yellow limestone structure contains, among other things, valuable Indian collections.

Yet another famous structure is the Sibley tea house, built in 1854 by Sibley's private secretary, Hypolite DePuis. The brick structure was re-opened in 1928 as a tea house and remains one of the most popular eating places in the Twin Cities area.

All the Sibley properties owe their preservation largely to the Minnesota Daughters of the American Revolution, who acquired, restored and have administered their operation since 1924.

And all are a priceless repository of early Minnesota history.

Tape Series On Red Lake Reservation

Work has begun on a series of three 45-minute video tapes on the Red Lake Indian reservation and Indian life. The series is being produced under a grant to St. Cloud state college by the Minnesota higher education coordinating commission.

James Pehler, assistant director of radio and TV at the college, is project director. He is working with the Red Lake school district, the Red Lake Community Action program, and John Kuester of St. Cloud's sociology department. Kuester is writing the script with the assistance of the Red Lake tribal council.

Red Lake is one of just two closed reservations in the United States. With the cooperation of the reservation and its school district, project personnel are trying to look in depth at the history and current life on the Red Lake reservation, Pehler said.

More than 200 million persons throughout the world are regularly using marijuana, according to the "Blue Cross Wire Digest."

Prowlers Win 60-51 In Big Five Action

In a game the Prowlers knew they couldn't lose and the Ponies knew they couldn't win, Thief River Falls registered a 60-51 Big Five Conference basketball victory last night in the Warren high school auditorium.

The final score was hardly indicative of the Prowlers' domination however, as Thief River Falls starters rolled up a 24-point, 56-32 lead before taking a rest at the outset of the final quarter.

Actually, Prowler head coach Lee Swanson began freely substituting players early in the second quarter when his team held a 30-12 lead with 5:15 remaining in the half. Part of the substitution was out of necessity with starting guard Kent Smith missing the contest because of illness.

The Prowlers moved out to an 18-9 lead at the first quarter stop, limiting the slow-moving Warren offense to just one field goal the first eight minutes of play, a rebound carom by co-captain Jeff Norman with almost three minutes elaspsed in the game. The Prowlers' aggressive full court press defense enabled Warren to score however, as the Ponies sank seven free throws the first quarter.

Getting easy lay-ups time and time again from their smooth working fast break, the Prowlers ran up a 37-18 halftime bulge. The Prowlers remained comfortably in front during the third quarter with a 52-32 margin going into the final canto.

After picking up that 56-32 lead, wholesale substitution by the Prowlers found the Ponies bringing the final score down to a respectable nine-point margin.

Four Prowlers reached double figures with Ordean Peterson and Rande Smith getting 13, Tom Kays 12 and Jeff Rhoden added 11. Norman led the Ponies with 20 while Bruce Schantzen scored 17.

The Prowlers held a wide 48-28 rebound advantage while the two teams were pretty even as far as shooting percentage. Thief River Falls connected on 27 of 70 shots from the field for a 38 per cent performance while the Ponies shot 35 per cent on 17 of 51 shots. The Prowler rebound advantage shown in the fact that Thief River Falls took 19 more shots from the field.

The Prowlers will be back in action Friday night when they travel to Ada. Saturday night the Prowlers will be back home when they host Big Five Conference foe Climax in an 8 o'clock contest.

HIGH FLYING Prowler forward Tom Kays drives toward the basket in last night's Big Five Conference game at Warren. Kays netted 12 points as part of the Prowlers' 60-51 win over the Ponies. Warren defenders Tim Howard (55) and Bruce Schantzen (41) couldn't stop Kays on this scoring shot. The Prowlers will be back in action Friday night when they travel to Ada and Saturday when they host Climax in the Lincoln gym in another conference meeting.

Bemidji Lumberjacks Top Lincoln Wrestlers 30-18

Bemidji wrestlers gained two pins in the last three matches last night to break open a close match and give the Lumberjacks a 30-18 dual meet win over the Prowlers in the Lincoln high school gym.

Mark Kaushagen's 6-0 triumph at 155 pounds brought the Prowlers to within 18-15 with three matches remaining, but the Lumberjacks posted third period pins at 167 and in the heavyweight match for the triumph.

The Prowlers dropped to a 4-6 record with the loss with just two dual meets left before entering district 31 and region eight competition. The Prowlers will travel to Ada February 3 and host Mahnomen in the Lincoln gym February 8. Ed Krystosek's matmen will also take part in the Northwest Invitational tournament at Fertile February 5.

Prowler 98 pound Kurt Muzzy started Thief River Falls in the right direction last night with a second period pin of the Jacks' Bruce Lindseth. Muzzy led 3-2 at the end of the first period before putting Lindseth on with back with 1:08 remaining in the second stanza.

Bemidji's Ricky Fulton overcame a 6-0 first period deficit to post a 12-6 triumph over the Prowlers' Lonnie Olson in the 105 pound match. Olson built a 6-0 first period lead on a takedown and two predicaments, but Fulton fought back with two second period nearfalls to tie the match 6-6. The Bemidji junior added six points in the third canto with a penalty point, a reversal and a nearfall.

Tim Mohler gained a 9-0 shutout over the Prowlers' Dave Johnson at 112 to tie the match 6-6. Mohler beat the Prowler sophomore with four points in the first, two in the second and three points on a nearfall in the third period.

Bemidji grabbed a 12-6 lead in the match when senior Paul Lindseth pinned Prowler sophomore Cliff Shumway with 22 seconds gone in the first period.

Sophomore Joe Kezer earned a 7-1 decision over Bemidji's Paul Lindquist in their 126 pound match to bring the Prowlers to within 12-9. Kezer went in front 2-0 with a first period takedown and added a second period predicament before scoring three points in the third period on an escape and a takedown.

Kirby Shofner put the Lumberjacks out in front 15-9 with a narrow 6-5 win over the Prowlers' Dave Furuseth in the 132 pound match. Shoftner gained a first period takedown and predicament while Furuseth scored on an escape for a 4-1 match until the third period when the two wrestlers traded reversals. Furuseth turned the Bemidji wrestler's back to the mat for a two-point predicament, but fell inches shy with the 6-4 loss.

In another one-point decision, Bemidji's Steve Pemble edged the Prowlers' Tim Wold 7-6 in the 138 pound match. Wold led 4-2 with a first period reversal and predicament, but the Bemidji grappler fought back with a second period reversal and nearfall for a 7-4 advantage. Wold countered with a two-point third period reversal.

Prowler 145 pounder Perry Omdahl gained a first period takedown and a second period reversal for a 4-2 decision over the Jacks' Joel Traut to cut Bemidji's lead to 18-12.

Kaushagen earned a first period takedwon, a second period nearfall and a third period escape and takedown for his 6-0 triumph at 155 to bring the Prowlers to within 18-15.

But the Lumberjacks' Keith Monson used his experience to gain a third period fall over Prowler sophomore Steve Sorvig in the 167 pound battle to put the Jacks on top 24-15.

Prowler 180 pounder Steve Sorvig jumped out to a 4-0 first period lead and earned a 6-2 decision over Brad Whelan for a 24-18 match score going into the heavyweight battle.

Prowler heavyweight Larry Panek held a 1-0 second period lead on a single penalty point in the night's final match before Bemidji's Rich Johnson put Panek on his back with 1:11 remaining in the third period.

Eleven Goodridge players reached the scoring column Friday night as the Huskies clobbered Red Lake Falls 61-39 to up their season record to 7-4.

Junior center Harlen Iverson led the scoring parade with 18 points, all coming in the first half, as the Huskies improved their conference record to 3-3.

Northmen Lose To Fergus Falls 104-89

Having equalled a school record for most wins in a single season Saturday with a 120-96 win over Hibbing, Chet Engelman's Northland junior college basketball team failed to set a new standard last night as the Northmen suffered a 104-89 defeat at Fergus Falls.

The loss dropped Northland to 8-10 for the season, including a 3-6 Northwest Division mark. Fergus Falls remained underfeated (6-0) in conference play with the win. Northland will be seeking that record-breaking ninth win Saturday afternoon when the Northmen host nonleague foe Rainy River in the Northland gym, beginning at 2 o'clock.

Chief tormentors of Northland again last night were sophomore forwards Jerry Schwantz and Bruce Smith as they combined for 57 points. Schwantz, an All-State selection last season, scored 33 and Smith poured in 24. In the Spartan's 101-93 win over the Northmen earlier this season, Smith hit for 27 and Schwantz had 24. In two performances against the Northmen last season Schwantz connected for 32 and 29 points.

Northland took an early lead in the last night's contest and hung onto a narrow advantage until Schwantz connected from the field for a 20-19 Spartan lead with 12:30 remaining in the first half. Fergus Falls never relinquished the lead as the Spartans moved out to a 57-45 half time advantage.

With 10-minutes remaining in the second half, Northland narrowed the contest to 63-58, but Fergus Falls controlled the play, and after Northland center Tony Burke fouled out with over three minutes remaining, the Spartans pulled away for the win.

Burke led the Northmen in scoring with 22 points, while Mike Rasch collected 19, Willie Bayne 14 and Jay Forney scored 12. Gary Greenquist also hit double figures for the Spartans with 13.

Both squads held hot hands from the field as the Northmen shot a remarkable 60 per cent and Fergus Falls connected on a 57 per cent clip. Fergus Falls made seven more shots from the field however, and the Spartans added an outstanding performance from the free throw line where they made 22 of 29 for a 76 per cent mark. Northland shot a 64 per cent figure from the gift line on 21 of 33 attempts. Fergus Falls held a narrow 42-40 rebound advantage.

The Bantam "B" and Squirts were at Crookston on Sunday and lost both games. The Bantam "B" team lost 8-4 and the Squirts were beaten 5-2.

NSJC Skaters Host Vikings

Swede Lund's Northland state junior college hockey team will put its 10-4 season record on the line this weekend when the Northmen host Itasca junior college of Grand Rapids Friday and Saturday in a crucial weekend series in the Thief River Falls sports arena. Game times each night will be 7:30.

The Vikings currently lead the Northmen by a half-game in the MJCCA standings. The Northmen carry a 6-2 conference mark while the Vikings have suffered just one setback in league play. That one Itasca loss came at the hands of defending state champion Rainy River, but the Vikings bounced back for a split in that weekend action. The two loop losses suffered by the Northmen came at the hands of the Voyageurs who hold down thrid place in the standings, close behind the Northmen. Lakewood and Hibbing round out the league standings.

Lund looks for a close exciting weekend of hockey, saying his club will need a "total team effort to beat the Vikings. If we skate hard and play like we did against Lakewood last week, I think we can beat them. But if we don't get a top effort from everybody we'll be in trouble. They skate three lines and keep coming at you all the time. They're by far the toughest league opponent we'll face.

Coach Lund indicated his lineup will be intact with freshman Tom Matanich guarding the Northland nets. On his first line Lund will use sophomores Rich Ellerbusch and Rodney Bolduc at the wings with Leo Marshall doing the centering. The second forward line will find sophomore Bob Lundbohm centering freshmen Mark Hughes and John Barger. Leonard Kotta and John Erickson will also be seeing extended duty filling in on both lines.

The blueline corps will find sophomores Rick Lindegard and Jeff Baumgartner forming one pair while sophomores John Halvorson and John Hellquist combine for a second twosome. Freshmen Doug Palm and Paul Johnson will also see action on the Northland defense.

Lundbohm continues to lead the Northmen in scoring with 20 goals and 24 assists 44 points in 13 games. Marshall has collected 15 goals and 20 assists for 35 points in 14 games and Baumgartner has scored 10 goals and 17 assists for 27 points in 13 games.

One of the best ways to keep carp and other unwanted fish out of presently "clean" lakes is for anglers to use minnows purchased from licensed dealers.

This will prevent the introduction of carp or other rough fish into waters where they are not presently found.

Hunting Season Dates Released

The 1972 deer hunting season and opening dates for other major hunting season have been announced by the Minnesota Department of Natural Resources.

Mike Casey, game and fish director, said the opening dates are announced in January to give hunters time to plan their vacations.

He emphasized that these dates are subject to change if unusual circumstances, such as severe weather, occur that affect winter survival or spring reproduction.

Season length and daily limits will be established in late summer after reproduction and habitat conditions are assessed.

The 1972 hunting season opening dates include: squirrels, rabbits and hares, grouse and bear, September 16; deer (bow and arrow), September 30; pheasants and Hungarian partridge, October 28; deer (firearms), main deer range plus forested area in southeast, November 1-30. Agriculture areas, November 11.

Casey said the firearms deer season will include the entire month of November under the new deer harvest regulations approved by the legislature.

Under the plan, each hunter will be given a choice of any three consecutive days to hunt from November 1-15 or any five consecutive days from November 16-30. This choice will apply only in the main deer range and the forested area of the southeast. In the agriculture area the season will be for only one day, November 11.

He said all deer hunters will be required to buy their license on or before November 11. When they purchase the license they must choose the 3 or 5 day period they wish to hunt.

A person may hunt on November 11 in the agricultural area and hunt two more days in the 30-day area, Casey said.

"But in that case," he cautioned, "the three consecutive days the hunter chooses must then include November 11 as that is the only day the agricultural area will be open."

That part of that state where the 30-day hunter choice system will apply is north and east of the following highways beginning at the northwest corner of the state: U. S. highway 75 to Crookston; state highway 9 to U. S. highway 10; U. S. highway 10 to Frazee; state highway 87 to Menahga; U. S. highway 71 to Wadena; U. S. highway 10 to Randall; state highway 115 to Ripley junction; U. S. highway 371 to county state aid highway (CSAH) 48, Morrison county; state highway 25 to state highway 27; state highway 27 to Onamia; U.S. highway 169 to Elk River; then south and west along various boundaries used in the 1969 season to Henderson, then east on state highway 19 to Cannon Falls; thence south on U. S. highway 52, state highway 57 and CSAH 13, Dodge county, to state highway 30; then east on state highway 30 to U. S. highway 63; and then south on U. S. highway 63 to the Iowa line.

Casey said the new deer season is designed to spread hunting pressure over 30 days. "It is expected that this decrease in hunter density will reduce the deer take because a lower hunter density will mean less disturbance and movement of deer," he said.

In addition, said Casey, the quality of the hunt is expected to be improved considerably.

"Based on a recently completed hunter survey there will be about one-tenth the hunting pressure on any one day compared to past seasons," he said. "This will improve hunter safety, allow more hunting on public lands, reduce highway traffic and give other benefits.

Indications are that hunters like the opportunity to choose their own deer hunting dates. Now they will be able to hunt when they want to and resolve family and work conflicts, Casey said.

The bow and arrow season will be open during all of October and November. All of the 30 day firearms zone south of state highway 210 will open to bow hunting from December 1-17.

The grouse season will also continue through November deer season. Grouse hunter, as well as other hunters and trappers, will be required to wear bright red or blaze orange to comply with state law.

Casey emphasized that some problems can be expected with the new deer hunt in 1972 but that the new framework is a good start toward improved deer hunting in Minnesota. He said changes will be made in future hunts as the need is demonstrated.

Some possibile future change might be to include the agriculture area of Minnesota in some type of hunter choice system, allow a longer hunting peroid for each person, and offer a trophy buck hunt in some areas, he said.

Leech Lake's Winter Prize

Most winter fishermen seek the walleye, a member of the perch family, but if you ask many fishermen who go to Leech Lake, you'll learn that they prefer the yellow perch.

The perch family is divided into three groups; the yellow perch; the walleye and sauger; and the darter, a very small fish. The yellow perch from Leech Lake is the tastiest of all winter-caught fish. Crapple minnows can be used as bait and have proved to be very effective. The Leech Lake perch are good sized which makes them so desirable.

Vern Lyon, the veteran fisherman from Longville has a fish fry right on the ice. "You come home with a belly full, not a sack ful,; he says. You can come home with a sack full, however because there is no limit on the perch as there is on other members of the family. If you have never eaten a winter caught yellow perch you have a treat coming.

Lake of the Woods Walleyes

Several limits of walleyes have been reported by 'Swede' Carlson who flys the fishermen out of Warroad. Orlin Swensrud, Dennis Tharaldson and DeWayne Jackson, all of Starbuck, went home with limits. They used live minnow for bait. The fish weighed from one to five pounds. Lake of the Woods has been producing some good fishing so far this winter.

Minnetonka Crapples

This column has reported good crappie fishing in most areas of Lake Minnetonka. Now comes a report from Rita Kehoe of Howard's Point. The crappie fishing has been very good so far in January. They are fishing in 16 to 20 feet of water and are using crappie minnows or the jig-minnow combination very effectively.

New Assistant Game And Fish Director

Congratulations to our friend Dave Vesall who has been appointed to the position of assistant game and fish director under Mike Casey in the Department of Natural Resources. Dave has for the past 13 years headed the Department's section of game and has been with the department continuously since 1939 except for three years of military service in World War II.

Story of the Week

Gene O'Brian of the Sun Newspapers, told us this story at the Minnesota Press Club recently.

An American was fishing the Liffey River near Dublin, Ireland. He fished day after day without catching a fish. Then one day he hired a guide and caught a 12 pound salmon.

"You know", he told the guide, "with all the time and effort I've spent here, this fish has cost me $1,500.00."

To which the guide replied: "Aren't you glad you didn't catch two of them?"

Set Noise Limit On Snowmobiles

Snowmobiles manufactured for sale in Minnesota after Feb. 1, 1972, must not exceed the noise limit of 82 decibels. Machines manufactured for sale after Feb. 1, 1974, may not exceed a 73 decibel limit.

(The decibel reading is taken at a distance of 50 feet from a machine at full throttle.)

These requirements are included in regulations established by the Minnesota department of natural resources following the public hearing on Nov. 19, 1971.

Commissioner Robert Herbst said the requirement is an attempt to reduce the noise of snowmobiles, a project the industry has been working on for some time.

"Because lower noise levels for snowmobiles are desired by both the citizens of Minnesota and the snowmobile industry," he said, "additional information on desired levels and technical feasibility needs to be obtained by the department."

Herbst said he will call a public hearing of conservation groups, industry representatives and noise engineers on or about June 1 to gather additional facts on which to base a future decision on any adjustments in decibel levels set by these regulations.

The commissioner said that if following a hearing on noise levels, lower levels appear possible—or if is apparent that the decibel limit is unattainable without severe impairment of operating performance or unacceptable increase in costs, adjustments will be made.

Herbst said his department is considering contracting with private engineering firms to test and advise on the many technical aspects of the regulation.

Swenson Urges Independent Sound Testing

Delegates attending the fourth International Snowmobile congress which began Tuesday in Quebec, heard Arctic Enterprises president, Lowell T. Swenson, president of the International Snowmobile Industry Association (ISIA) propose that an independent testing laboratory be used to test whether various makes of snowmobiles meet operating sound level requirements established by states and provinces.

Swenson, president of the ISIA, which represents all major snowmobile manufacturers in the U.S. and Canada, said manufacturers would submit their new models to an independent laboratory for sound testing and pay the cost of this testing.

He pointed out that some states and provinces lack the facilities to properly test snowmobiles for compliance with sound level restrictions. He said the industry asks only to work with state and provincial governments to select the mutually agreeable testing laboratory.

Swenson admitted that sound has been "one of the industry's foremost problems, but emphasized manufacturers have made substantial progress in reducing noise levels."

He said that snowmobile operating sound levels have been reduced nearly 84 per cent during the past five years. Most of next year's models will meet the 82 decibel sound level requirement established by the Canadian federal government, Swenson claimed.

Swenson expressed concern over the number of snowmobile deaths that have occurred in his own state of Minnesota and in the province of Quebec this winter. Noting that most of these deaths have involved collisions with automobiles, he called for expansion of trails and other snowmobile use areas that get snowmobiles away from highways and traffic routes.

He said as part of an effort to reduce the accident and injury toll the ISIA is sponsoring a comprehensive study of snowmobile accidents, being conducted by Queen's university in the province of Ontario. Swenson explained that his own company is financing a similar injury and accident study in Minnesota and the upper peninsula of Michigan.

The International Swnomobile congress is a discussion forum involving government officials, conservationists, law enforcement agencies, medical experts, industry and user groups. It began Tuesday and continued through Thursday.

Arctic Drivers Have Busy 1971-72 Race Schedule

Arctic Enterprises racers failed to make the top 10 qualifying places for the world championship races concluded Sunday at Eagle River, Wis.

Paul Eggebratten and Vern Ricard were in the running for the top spots, but neither made the cutoff.

Ed Mansueto gained a second place in the seven-mile race for Modified I machines, Wayne Konickson placed fourth in the Modified II oval race and Jerry Rycklock was fifth in the Modified III closed course race for the only Arctic placing.

The race reportedly attracted 45,000 people, but was marred by the death of a young boy when he was struck by a snowmobile which went out of control and crashed a barrier.

Arctic drivers are currently competing in the Winnipeg to St. Paul International 500 mile race which will conclude at St. Paul's Lake Phalen on Friday to kick off the St. Paul Winter Carnival.

The USSA Central Division Junior Championship races will be held Saturday, January 29, at Green Bay, Wisconsin with the large Turtle Lake races at Turtle Lake, Wis., scheduled February 19-20.

Past performances turned in by the Arctic race team during the 1971-72 race season include:

January 9 - Peterborough, Ontario - Larry Coltom, 1st 340 class; Dave Thompson, 2nd 340 class.

January 8 - Peterborough, Ontario - Larry Coltom, 1st 340 class; Dave Thompson, 4th 340 class; Paul Eggebratten, 2nd 800 class.

January 2 - Crookston - Dave Thompson, 1st 295 oval and LeMans; Vern Ricard, 1st 440 oval modified, 400 oval stock and 400 LeMans stock.

December 19 - Grand Rapids, Minnesota - Ed Mansueto, 1st 290 class.

December 18 & 19 - Hutchinson, Minnesota - Larry Coltom, 1st 340, 400 and 440 ovals; 1st 340 and 400 closed course; and 2nd 440 closed course.

December 12 - Ironwood, Michigan - Larry Coltom, 1st 340 class; Paul Eggebratten, 1st 800 class.

Natural Resources Dep't. Explains Law On Shoreland Use

By Charles Wechsler

Each year, more and more Minnesotans migrate to our beautiful shorelands — some permanently, some seasonally and some just to escape for a weekend of sun and fun. But as people flock to shoreland areas, they often create problems.

Today, there are more than 70,000 lakeshore homes, cottages and cabins in Minnesota. One out of every seven lakes has some kind of development though just 50 lakes are supporting more than one-third of all lakeshore development.

In their zealous search for "weekend euphoria," Minnesotans have gobbled up many miles of wilderness shorelands which should have been left undeveloped and in a natural state. Many others have constructed dwellings on lake bottoms when water levels were down, only to watch helplessly as the water returned to invade their lakeshore retreats during periods of normal or above-average precipitation.

Improper construction and location of septic tanks has greatly accelerated the aging process (eutrophication) of many lakes. A popular method of sewage disposal for residential lakeshore properties is a soil absorption system, utilizing a septic tank and drain field. However, some soils do not filter out nutrients from a sewage system or the system may be located too close to the water's edge. The result: unwanted nutrients seep into the lake creating rampant growth of algae. Eventually, this algae may snuff out the fish life of a lake, produce noxious odors and in general, bring a sudden end to all recreational activities.

Poorly planned lakeshore developments have also destroyed valuable fish and wildlife habitat. Thousands of acres of wild shorelands have been denuded of trees and vegetation. Once they are gone, erosion follows carrying silt and more harmful materials into the lake.

Another detrimental effect of haphazard planning has been over-crowding. Inadequate and or non-existent building and zoning codes have enabled some developers, and landowners to build structures on lots that are too small. A type of "lakeshore ghetto" is sometimes the result.

Crowding also occurs on the water. For example, fishing and waterskiing in the same place and at the same time create obvious problems. Beaches that are jammed with swimmers are often the sites of accidents and even fatalities.

Other problems that have evolved include highway congestion, destruction of scenery and visual blight from littering and private dump-grounds.

Obviously, the recreational value of our public waters has been gradually deteriorating. Despite this fact, local and county governments have done little or nothing to regulate development of shorelands, even though they had the authority to do so.

Realizing this need to protect and perpetuate our priceless lakes and streams, the state legislature passed the 1969 shoreland management act. As stated in the act, its purpose is: "to provide guidance for the wise development of shorelands of public waters, preserve the economic and natural environmental values of shorelands and provide for the wise utilization of water and related land resources of the state."

The act effects shorelands within 1,000 feet of a lake, pond or flowage (reservoir) or 300 feet from a river or stream.

The two basic requirements of the act are: That the department of natural resources (DNR) adopt minimum development standards to serve as a model for the use and development of shoreland areas (June 30, 1970 deadline); and that each county adopt a shoreland zoning and sanitary ordinance which incorporates at least these minimum standards (July 1, 1972 deadline).

Specifically, these minimum standards or land use controls would regulate: (1) Type and placement of sanitary and waste disposal facilities, (2) size and length of water frontage of lots suitable for building sites, (3) placement of structures in relation to shorelines and roads, (4) alteration and preservation of the natural landscape, and (5) Subdivision of shoreland areas.

Of course, DNR officials realized that managing each lake as an individual system is virtually impossible. Our public waters vary widely both in character and use, so any standards established by the department had to be flexible in their application to various regions of the state and to various local physio-graphic (landform) regions.

For these reasons, three sets of standards or classifications were developed to reflect several broad categories of lake types. These classes include: Natural environment lakes and streams, recreational development lakes and general development lakes and streams.

A total of 9,700 lake basins over 25 acres in size were classified by mid-1970. Nearly five out of six, or 8,300 in all, were classified as natural environment lakes. This category includes most of our smaller lakes, which can become quickly overcrowded, and our wilderness and duck marsh type lakes.

It was decided that these waters would need a significant amount of protection because of their unique natural characteristics or because of their unsuitability for development and for sustaining recreational use.

A total of 1,100 waters were placed in the recreational development category. These waters are already moderately developed and their shorelands are more suited to development. They are also capable of sustaining greater development than natural environment lakes.

These lakes are especially suited to water-oriented recreation and especially fishing since their waters are of sufficient depth to support good game fish populations.

Heavily developed, multiple-use lakes or waters which are capable of a higher development density were classified as general development. A total of 279 lakes fell into this broad category including the many larger lakes such as Mille Lacs, Leech and Winnibigoshish.

General development lakes and streams will eventually carry the least restrictive development criteria. This is primarily because newly-enacted land use controls affect only new development and cannot be retroactive. Since many of these lakes are already heavily developed, any future zoning restrictions will have to be reasonably consistent with existing development patterns.

Some lakes, of course, were unclassifiable because of special developmental or environmental problems. These lakes were termed critical and designated for further study before a final set of development standards can be applied.

Most of Minnesota's 25,000 miles of rivers and streams were placed in the general development category. Streams are generally not subject to the same development potential as lakes and do not pose as critical a water quality problem because they are continually flushing themselves.

Wild rivers and trout streams, however, were classified as natural environment so they would be afforded more protection.

Most of the data for the classification process was obtained from the Lakeshore Development Study, Department of Geography, University of Minnesota. This study inventoried the physical and developmental characteristics of lakes over 150 acres in size. Departmental records, lake maps, U.S. Geological Survey quadrangles, aerial photographs and highway maps were used to supplement this study.

From these sources, information was gathered on watershed characteristics, public access locations, amount and type of emergent vegetation, road accessibility, localized soil characteristics, dominant land uses around each lake, type and density of existing developments (and whether they were seasonal, permanent or resorts), crowding potential, existing fish and aquatic life and of course the lake's physical characteristics including size, shape and depth.

Naturally, existing developments were weighted quite heavily in the public waters classification since any newly-enacted zoning standards must be reasonably consistent with established patterns of development.

The department of natural resources' lake classification index is only tentative. Each county will, in time, carefully review every body of water classified by the department. After taking into consideration existing local conditions and regulations, county-wide recreation plans and other factors, the counties will then either accept the department's suggested classifications or request necessary changes.

PLUMMER'S Bob Pahlen checks his throttle while his machine is being gassed up at Warren yesterday morning as part of the Winnipeg to St. Paul 500 mile International snowmobile race. With the help of the quick gas crews and a little luck, Pahlen was among one of the top ten drivers checking into Crookston on the first leg of the race. The gas crews had many of the machines in and out of the Warren stop within 35 seconds of their arrival.

U of M Research Highlights Listed

Aerial monitoring of plant diseases, a possible new spray to protect plants against winterkill, better use of the state's abundant aspen supply and a study of the Boundary Waters Canoe Area (BWCA) offer special significance to northern Minnesotans. These are some highlights of 1971 research reported by the University of Minnesota's Agricultural Experiment Station:

Harvesting Young Aspen

Harvesting small aspen stems every 12 years opens new possibilities for meeting growing demands for wood fiber and reducing costs, according to University of Minnesota forestry specialists. The short-cycle harvesting every 12 years could yield as much wood fiber on an average annual yield basis as harvesting only mature aspen on the same site. And, the new concept could make use of more of the state's aspen for the manufacture of paper, fiberboard, cardboard boxes, wall board and other products. Aspen, sometimes called "popple," is undercut by more than 300,000 cords a year in Minnesota. And when a forest is undercut, trees mature and die faster than they are being harvested and many trees are wasted.

Oppose BWCA Development

Between 75 and 85 per cent of the Boundary Waters Canoe Area (BWCA) campers interviewed in a University of Minnesota study oppose allowing public roads, underground shaft mining, resorts and homes in the area. However, opinions were divided on the issues of level of government regulations, allowing commercial logging and motor restrictions in the BWCA, according to University foresters.

BWCA outfitters may be providing the major share of information on the wilderness area for 60 to 70 per cent of the visiting groups. And, campers who interacted with the outfitter on management issues showed less resistance to forest service policies. The outfitter's role will become more important in the future for implementation of BWCA regulations and management policy and as a means of communication important information, the study concluded.

Winter Hardiness Spray

A spray to make plants winter hardy may be a reality within a few years for Minnesota gardeners, nurserymen and farmers. A winter hardiness spray might prevent early fall freezing weather from killing plants such as rhododendron, dogwood, azaleas, magnolias, and apricot and peach trees. University horticultirists have discovered two substances in plants which help them acclimate to cold fall temperatures. With further work they hope to have a winter hardiness spray perfected.

Monitoring Plant Diseases

University of Minnesota scientists may soon be able to monitor Dutch elm and other tree and crop diseases on a day to day basis using aerial photography over large areas of Minnesota. University foresters have been successful in tracing the spread of cop diseases such as sugar beet leaf spot, potato leaf blight and tree diseases such as Dutch elm disease, oak wilt and dwarf mistletoe in black spruce forests. In University experminents, infrared aerial photography has been successful in locating nearly 100 per cent of the trees with Dutch elm disease and 60 to 80 per cent of the oak with oak wilt. Aerial photography saves time and money, compared to ground surveys.

Extra Option Granted For Wheat Growers

U.S. wheat producers are being offered an additional option to voluntary set-aside wheat cropland in 1972. Since the 1972 wheat program was announced on July 16, 1971, wheat export prospects have dimmed with the uncertainty of the dock strikes. In addition, farmers harvested a large 1971 crop.

To meet these changed conditions, the U.S. Department of Agriculture today authorized additional voluntary set-aside of wheat cropland equivalent up to 75 per cent of a farm's domestic allotment in a move aimed at preventing excessive production of wheat in 1972. The payment rate will be 94 cents per bushel times the farm's established yield times the acreage voluntarily set aside.

The 1972 national domestic wheat allotment is 19.7 million acres, and the required set aside acreage necessary to qualify for program participation is 83 per cent of the farm domestic allotment—the maximum provided by law.

Target of the voluntary set aside acreage program announced today is a reduction of possibly five to six million acres in the 1972 harvest.

A spring wheat producer can not offer acreage for voluntary set aside provided his 1972 planting plus additional set aside does not exceed the total acreage planted to wheat in 1971. The acreage offered must be average quality land.

Producers of winter wheat, who already have planted their 1972 crop on 42.2 million acres, can designate acreage for set aside if it is acreage planted to wheat and the growing wheat is of average quality for the farm. The planted winter wheat cropland voluntarily set aside from production in 1972 can be used for grazing or otherwise disposed of by the certification dates established by state ASC committee or, if pastured, by the beginning of the non-grazing periods—which vary from state to state. This is in accordance with the agricultural act of 1970, and is the same procedure followed in previous program years.

In the winter wheat area, producers at program signup time will need to designate the acreage involved. Spot checks of the acreage will begin immediately following signup.

Appoint New Engineer For State's Parks

Russell Brandt, 40, of Bloomington has been appointed administrative engineer in the division of parks and recreation of the Minnesota department of natural resources, Commissioner Robert Herbst announced today.

Brandt was formerly employed in the Minneapolis park system as a plan review engineer. He replaces Merlin Berg, who resigned to accept a position with the U.S. corps of engineers.

Brandt's job is to initiate and review plans for state park facilities such as sewage and water systems, buildings and other structures.

From 1950 to 1960, the population of metropolitan areas increased 53 per cent in Los Angeles and Houston, 45 per cent in Dallas, 35 per cent in Washington, D.C., 30 per cent in Seattle, 28 per cent in Minneapolis-St. Paul, and 25 per cent in Detroit, according to the U.S. bureau of the census.

Economic Stabilization Questions and Answers
Internal Revenue Service

Q—Does the internal revenue service have any publications available explaining the economic stabilization program?

A—Answers to many basic questions about Phase II will be found in Publication S-2, "General Information—Economic Stabilization Program," available free from IRS district offices throughout the country.

This eight-page booklet has been printed and stocked in limited quantity because early revision of the publication will be made necessary by the insurance of new stabilization regulations. Once the new regulations are published, the IRS will prepare a revised booklet and make it available to the public.

Q—Are non-depreciable capital improvements of a business "allowable costs?"

A—No. Capital investment which is not subject to depreciation is generally not a cost of doing business under generally accepted accounting principles and thus would not be an "allowable cost."

Q—What reasons should be given to support a requested exception from price commission guidelines and in what form should the request be submitted?

A—The request should contain sufficient information to establish to the satisfaction of the price commission that the application of a regulation from which an exception is being sought would result in a serious hardship or gross inequity to the person.

The request should state the person's name and address, the proposed price increase, the section of the regulations from which an exception is requested, and the manner in which that section affects the proposed price increase. The person should specify the extent to which the regulation should not apply to the increase. No exception will be granted in any case unless the person establishes to the satisfaction of the price commission that the exception is not part of a plan which as as one of its principal purposes the avoidance of the purposes of the economic stabilization act of 1970 and the price regulations.

The request should be submitted in writing to the district director of internal revenue for the district in which the person has his residence or principal place of business.

Q—How can a corporation, individual proprietorship, or partnership obtain a ruling that a newly established or amended pension or profit sharing plan does not exceed the 5.5 per cent aggregate limitation?

A—Write your IRS district office.

Q—Are the wages and salaries of federal employees controlled under the economic stabilization program?

A—No. Federal government employees' pay adjustments are based upon federal law and regulations; thus, they will be subject to comparable controls. This includes employees of the judicial, legislative, and executive branches of the government.

Q—Are there controls on how much my landlord can raise my rent?

A—Yes. New price commission regulations provide that a 2.5 per cent annual rent increment may be added to the base rent to cover the landlord's operating costs, such as labor, electricity, gas, fuel, interest, etc. The increment must not be higher than 2.5 per cent even if these costs are greater.

This increment may be applied to month-to-month, week-to-week, and yearly leases. In addition, if there are increases in state or local real estate taxes, state and local fees and levies, or increases in charges for municipal services (exclusive of gas and electricity), these may be added onto the base rent and the increment increase.

Q—What information must a landlord include in a letter sent to a tenant notifying him of a proposed increase?

A—The letter must contain the following information: the amount of monthly rent before and after the proposed increase; the percentage increase and dollar amount of the proposed increase; the effective date of the proposed increase; the amount of the proposed increase which is attributable to capital improvements, state and local real estate taxes, and state and local fees, levies and charges for municipal services, and any increase allowed under the 2.5 per cent rule; the base rent and an explanation of the manner in which it was determined, including identification of units involved and dates and amounts of transactions where applicable; and the method of computation of the proposed increase.

In addition, the letter must include statements approved by the price commission on the right of the tenant to examine the landlord's records documenting the increase and to meet with the landlord to discuss it, as well as a declaration by the lessor that the facts in the letter are true and that the increase is not in violation of economic stabilization regulations. The exact contents of these statements appear in the rent regulations.

Q—Can an auto dealer try to charge for equipment on a car that was previously handled as standard?

A—No. This would be a violation of the price controls.

Q—I'm taking out a new life insurance policy. Will my insurance premiums be subject to price controls?

A—No. Fees charged for all new life insurance and annuities, with the exception of credit-life insurance, are exempt from Phase II price controls.

TINKER TOY CHURCH

And it has a silver bell on the steeple and a cross on top. No one suggested to Bobby that he use his birthday toy this way. He did it himself.

He could have made a ferris wheel, or a barn, or a wagon. But, as it happens, he made a church. Maybe it is because, since he was a tot, the Church has been so important in his life.

To Bobby the Church represents a warmth and love that made him want to "build one of his own."

Does your child feel that way?

A $1,000 Reward

Arctic Enterprises has expressed its interest in maintaining a proper attitude toward snowmobiling by becoming involved in an unfortunate situation in the Detroit Lakes or Callaway area.

Four deer were reportedly shot at night in that area and were dragged away with snowmobiles. Conservation officers believe that at least two persons were involved in killing the deer, which is punishable by a $1,000 fine and a year in jail, plus confiscation of snowmobiles.

Late last week Arctic announced that it will offer a $1,000 reward for information leading to the arrest and conviction of the individuals involved. John Penn, company vice president, urged that such information be reported to the sheriff's department at Detroit Lakes.

We hope that the poachers are found and held accountable for their crime. The entire snowmobile-riding community should not be condemned because of the illegal actions of only a few. Such condemnation would be grossly unfair. However, if the truth be known, few are the snowmobilers in this area who have not molested some kind of wildlife at some time—and mostly intentionally.

The $1,000 reward should make a few people think a little more seriously about their actions while they pursue their favorite winter sport.

Happy Convention

Remember when it was possible to hold a national political convention and expect that the major problem would be exchange of words among candidates and their supporters? Now it seems entire cities must be prepared for mass violence and bloodshed when national political conventions are held.

It is reported that the Law Enforcement Assistance administration (LEAA) has awarded Miami $400,000 to purchase police equipment and to train security forces for the Democratic national convention. Equipment reportedly to be purchased includes 2,000 plastic handcuffs, body armor, bull horns, face shields for riot duty, gas grenades, grenade launchers, portable radio transmitters, fingerprint kits and a 22-passenger minibus to transport police and prisoners.

All of which caused a reporter to quip: "I wonder if they will have enough equipment left over to handle the trouble OUTSIDE the convention hall."

Speaking of conventions, the Morris Tribune commented: "The presidential election is more than nine months away and yet a number of distinguished senators are already running around the country in search of support for their presidential aspirations. If there is any semblance of truth in their rantings and ravings about the ills of the country, it would seem that the country would be better served if they went to work in their elected jobs in Congress and tried to solve some of the problems they talk about so freely."

A Word On Recycling

The following is from the Industrial News Review:

The director of environmental resources of a major timber company has taken some of the confusion out of the word recycling. He uses paper to illustrate his point and says, "Let's say that you segregate your household's waste paper from other refuse. Then you turn in your paper for collection and in turn it goes to a recycling mill. It's made into recycled paper, let's say; and that in turn is used for a magazine, a brochure, as lower quality writing paper, or what-have-you.

"But then what happens? It goes right back into the solid waste stream in some form or other. In other words, you haven't really lessened the load of solid waste. You've just made your part of it take a little longer to get there. Think of it in terms of adding an extra length to your garden hose. It doesn't really affect the amount of water coming out of the other end—it just takes it a little longer to get there!"

The resources authority offers as an alternative to this kind of recycling the suggestion that solid wastes be converted to fuel for power plants. He also believes large quantities of organic waste (food, refuse and paper, for example—not metals and glass) could be turned into mulch and used as a soil conditioner. He visualizes his own company, at sometime in the future, using large quantities of such organic mulch on some areas of its forest lands to improve the soil and heighten timber productivity.

This type of recycling is a logical development in the timber industry, which for years has worked to speed up the natural cycles of reforestation. Forests are this country's greatest renewable natural resource—a fact of which the timber industry is well aware and to which it has sought to educate the public by advocacy of the multiple-use philosophy of conservation. To the timber industry, "recycling" means not merely reuse of the old, but more efficient growth of the new.

"Relief" Begins To Show

Following editorial is from the Murray County Herald at Slayton:

Gov. Wendell Anderson promised property tax relief when he ran for governor in 1970. He produced on his campaign promise—but as Minnesotans began computing their income tax this year as well as other "incidental" expenses including the higher sales tax, Wendy's "tax relief" is beginning to show.

Most Minnesotans realized that it is not possible to increase the state's budget by more than half a billion dollars without getting the added revenue someplace along the line. But many of them were naive enough to believe that the impact would not approach what is now happening to them.

Taxpayers as a whole, after computing their federal and state taxes for this year, are in a state of shock. Accounts must be doing a land-office business as taxpayers can't believe their own figures—or their eyes—when the horrible truth comes apparent.

Politicians on the state level, as well as the governor himself, are fortunate in that they are not running for re-election at this very moment. The governor is double fortunate. He doesn't have to face the voters again until 1974 and by that time the shock may have worn off.

Minnesota's tax structure has to be rated among the worst in the nation. Months of special legislative session and compromise agreement with the Anderson administration resulted in an historic mess. Public sentiment is such that it is doubtful if any incumbent, no matter how able he may have proven himself to be in the past, would survive the wrath of the voters if the elections were to be held in February.

It boils down to the basic fact. If state expenses go up, state income must also go up—and this is the key of the Anderson administration. It will not be easy for him to live with this. 1974 might not be quite far enough away.

Domed Stadium

Twin Cities residents now have something else to talk about—the prospects of a domed sports stadium in the downtown area. It would be an immensely costly project and of somewhat dubious value. Most assuredly it is not a necessity.

The advantage would be a controlled environment for sports attractions, and that might not even be desirable. An adjustment in the National Football leagague schedule to have the Vikings play at home in the warmer part of the season and on the road during late November and early December would solve part of that problem, if it is a problem. When more than 40,000 paying fans are willing to stand in the snow and cold, who needs an enclosed stadium?

Main proponents of the plan hope to entice people into the downtown area which has been suffering economic pangs for some time. Most resident Twin Citians avoid the downtown like the plague, venturing into the asphalt jungle only when absolutely necessary. Outstate residents—who provide a large amount of the fan support for major league athletics—express the same degree of fondness for the downtown congestion.

Twin Cities residents can choose to spend their money any way they want, but it is unlikely they will choose to go along with the domed stadium. No one knows if the Vikings will be in existence in another five years or 15 years, or if they will remain in Minnesota. No one knows if the NFL players will continue to play on artificial turf, which an indoor facility apparently requires. There are a lot of indefinites, including the question of how the already congested downtown could handle additional hordes of people and cars.

The Murray County Herald at Slayton comments: "Imagine the good to humanity that these millions of dollars could bring about while only a nominal improvement program at the existing facilities in Bloomington would keep the sports nuts as happy as their cold little fannies permit today."

"Check your spending"

Says Robert Flynn

"Where'd all the money go?" is a popular question these days. The simplest way to keep track of your spending is a convenient, economical checking account. Your checking statement and ledger tell you in a glance where the money went. And your cancelled checks serve as legal receipts showing payment was made. If you want to check your spending, we'll give you a helping hand.

Most Highway Work Done On Existing Roads

From the New York Department of Transportation comes the answer to the question: "Are We Paving The Country"?

For the record, all roads, including city and suburban streets, occupy less than one per cent of the land area in the United States. To those who charge a lot of new highways are being built it is pointed out that the great bulk of highway work is being done on or near existing roads.

The reason so much money is needed for highway work, according to the source, is that roads have become worn out and outmoded. It is this upgrading of existing roads, the bulk of the work, that proves so costly.

Critics of highways who recommend public transportation as a substitute often fail to take into account that buses account for the major portion of this activity and that they too use roads. Alternatives to the bus, such as rail systems, still require rights of way. In fact, highway departments throughout the country have been trying for years to resolve this paradox of providing both mass and private transit and yet conserve right of way for environmental and economical reasons.

As to the question, "Why is this development of a viable mass transit system taking so long?" The answer is that to develop such facilities entails great expense and because new transportation facilities exert tremendous impacts upon the areas they serve, require exhaustive research, study, planning and communication with the many publics involved.

To the charge that even though the input is made to the highway department, it is they, and not the public which makes the decisions, it is pointed out that Highway Departments are staffed with professionals who are more than engineers and include economists, landscape architects, planners, sociologists, real property experts, financial specialists and a variety of other professionals. Their collective judgment is made in the interests of the greatest number of people.

To the implication that change is inevitably for the worst, it is pointed out that this is an erroneous assumption, that with intelligent analysis changes can be made which are definitely beneficial. For one example, an underpass at a rail crossing can eliminate a potential accident source and also enable the motorist to proceed without waiting for the train. Certainly if this is near a switching station where even emergency vehicles are held up, the benefit is self-evident.

That highways produce noise and air pollution is a charge which refuses to appreciate that an auto emits four times as much carbon monoxide in downtown stop-go traffic as it does on an expressway. Noise levels of free-flowing express highways are lower than those of congested downtown streets.

So far as beautification is concerned, it is unfair to claim that highways as such are innately ugly. If they are ugly, as some are, this can be changed through skillful architectural design and landscaping. Some of these contentions as to esthetics however, will always be arguable because of the inherent subjectivity where art is concerned.

In the final analysis, however, highway departments cannot deal in fantasy. Roads are utilitarian structures serving definite needs. To meet these needs requires practical considerations be observed. Should the time ever arrive where there are alternatives to the common-sense realities that are demanded by the public, unquestionably, highway departments will respond

Assistant Ag Secretary Will Speak At Forum

J. Phil Campbell, Jr., under-secretary of agriculture, will be the keynote speaker at the 1972 Ninth Federal Reserve district farm forum, Thursday, March 2, at the Radisson hotel, Minneapolis. The announcement was made today by Philip B. Harris, chairman of the 1972 forum and president of Northwestern National bank of Minneapolis.

Campbell was state commissioner of agriculture in Georgia for 14 years prior to his appointment as under secretary. As commissioner, he established Georgia's 146-acre Atlanta farmers' market, a wholesale fresh fruit and vegetable distribution hub for the Southeast which now does a gross business of more than $50 million per year.

Under-Secretary Campbell has served as past president of the University of Georgia alumni society and is a member of the board of trustees, University of Georgia foundation. He is a past member of the national association of state departments of agriculture and former secretary-treasurer of that organization.

The forum is sponsored annually by the Greater Minneapolis Chamber of Commerce to develop a thorough and objective discussion of broad problems related to agriculture, labor and industry in the Ninth Federal Reserve district.

Other speakers for this year's forum include: Tim J. Burke, national president of Future Farmers of America; Bruce K. MacLaury, president of the Federal Reserve bank of Minneapolis; and George W. Mitchell, a member of the board of governors of the Federal Reserve system in Washington, D. C.

'Growth Centers' Planned By Highway Dept.

Minnesota highway department has recently been notified by the federal highway administration of approval of Little Falls, Hutchinson, and the Iron Range urban complex "economic growth centers" for funding under the economic growth center development highway demonstration program, as authorized by the federal aid highway act of 1970.

The total amount of funding available to Minnesota under this program during the current fiscal year is $1,279,000, and an equal amount is expected in fiscal 1973. These funds can be used to increase federal participation from the normal 50 per cent to 70 per cent.

The major goals of the economic growth center development highway demonstration program are to demonstrate the role that highways can play in promoting the desirable development of the nation's natural resources, revitalizing and diversifying the economy of rural areas and smaller communities, enhancing and dispersing industrial growth, encouraging more balanced population patterns, checking, and where possible reversing, current migratory trends from rural areas and smaller communities, and improving living conditions and the quality of the environment.

Highway construction projects proposed in conjunction with the economic growth centers include a by-pass around Little Falls on U.S. 10, the surfacing of trunk highway 7 from Hutchinson to the east line of McLeod county, and construction of an expressway (U.S. 169) from Pengilly to Nashwauk. Federal funds presently available under this program are not sufficient to finance all three projects. However, the department intends to have all the projects under construction by 1973 by using other available funds.

Arctic Has 9-Month $107,264,284 Sales

Sales and earnings of Arctic Enterprises, Inc., for the nine-months ended Dec. 31, 1971, were announced recently. For the full nine months consolidated net sales totaled $107,264,284, compared with $63,378,868 for the similar period a year ago. Consolidated net income was $6,034,885, versus $4,402,236 for the first nine months of fiscal 1971. Net income per share was $2.12, up 41 cents from per share earnings of $1.71 for the period a year ago.

For the three months ended Dec. 31, 1971, the company reported consolidated net sales of $42,974,975 versus $37,068,819 in the third quarter a year ago. Net income for the quarter was $2,853,999, or 97 cents per share, compared with net income of $2,992,649, or $1.16 per share for the same three month period a year ago.

Net income per share for the current nine month period is based upon 2,846,644 average outstanding common shares, an 11 per cent increase over the 2,573,188 average shares outstanding for the similar period a year ago. This increase is due to the effect of a 340,000 share public offering completed in July, 1971.

In announcing nine month results, Arctic president and board chairman Lowell T. Swenson pointed out that imposition of the 10 per cent surcharge on snowmobile engines imported from Japan, and increased air freight charges, resulting from the West Coast dock strike, boosted operating costs and reduced earnings in the third quarter by approximately five cents a share.

Arctic began the manufacture and sale of its 1972 model snowmobiles in March of 1971 and was successful in spreading its business over the first half of the current fiscal year. In previous years, approximately two-thirds of its snowmobile manufacturing has been concentrated in the third quarter.

"We reached our production goal for snowmobiles in early January," Swenson said. "Our plant is currently preparing to commence production of 1973 models in early March."

Swenson noted that General

Elaine's Bought By Broughtons From Mehlhoffs

After 20 years of operating Elaine's women's clothing store in Thief River Falls, Mr. and Mrs. Rudy Mehlhoff have sold the store effective Tuesday to Mr. and Mrs. Ed Broughton of Thief River Falls. Mrs. Broughton has been employed by the store for the past five years.

The Mehlhoffs purchased the women's store from the Obermillers in 1952 when it was located at 205 Third st. E. Elaine's was moved into new quarters in its present location in 1961 and the Mehlhoffs purchased the store building last year. They will retain ownership of the building.

Ed Broughton has been on the Thief River Falls public school faculty since 1956, teaching in both the junior and senior high school. His wife, Lois, is a former airline hostess and has attended a number of markets with the Mehlhoffs, including the New York market. Both will be active in the business.

The store name of Elaine's will be continued, as will many of the same lines of merchandise, the new owners said. A number of new lines will be added as well.

Mr. and Mrs. Mehlhoff will continue to maintain their home in Thief River Falls and will be available in an advisory capacity to the new owners. Rudy has been a member of the board of directors of the Chamber of Commerce, member of the retail trade committee, handled the Northwest Dairy Day princess contest for 20 years, is a past president of the Thief River Golf club, has been on the board of trustees of Trinity Lutheran church and is a member of the Elks and VFW organizations.

Broughton is a past exalted ruler of the Elks lodge, member of the American Legion, Kim Temple shrine, Masonic lodge and Redeemer Lutheran church. His wife has been active in the hospital auxiliary, American Legion auxiliary and women's organizations of the church. They have a daughter, Linda, a senior majoring in textiles and merchandising at the University of Minnesota; a son, Bruce, who is in pre-med at the university; and a son Bradley who is a freshman at Franklin school.

Dr. Milton Hoff

Dr. Hoff Named To Committee By State Group

Dr. Milton Hoff, principal at Franklin junior high school, was recently appointed to the junior high school and middle school committee of the Minnesota Association of Secondary School principals by David Meade, secretary of the committee.

Dr. Hoff, who recently returned from his first meeting of the committee, states that the prime task of the committee is to study the present certification methods which recognize elementary and secondary educators but have no specific certification for the junior high or middle school level.

The committee considers any problems unique to the junior high and middle school level. Of particular concern to the committee is the growing number of middle schools and the formation of their curriculums.

Schools are expected to attend from East Grand Forks, Middle River, Greenbush, a team from Northland state junior college and Thief River Falls.

Soil District At Grygla To Hold Annual Meeting

Marshall-Beltrami soil and water conservation district will hold its annual meeting on February 7 at 1 p.m. in the Grygla school gymnasium.

Registration Is Set Friday At Lincoln High

Tentative plans at Lincoln senior high school call for registration for the 1972-73 school term to begin Friday. Students in present grades 10 and 11 are urged to think very carefully about their subject selections. It is hoped that each student will discuss thoroughly their course selections with their parents.

Lincoln high school has approximately 60 to 80 courses from which to select their program for the 1972-73 school year. Advice and guidance on course offerings and course selections is available from the guidance office and individual staff members.

Procedures for registration will follow the following pattern. Students will make course selections in their small group English classes. These selections are then to be evaluated by the counselors and staff in regards to past performance and standardized test results.

Alterations will be made if deemed necessary. Following total registration tabulations will be made thus indicating how many students will be registered for the total curriculum.

The procedure has nothing to do with the type of scheduling that will be in effect for the 1972-73 school year. That information will be forthcoming.

At this date the following new courses or alteration of present courses are known. The home economics food courses will be co-educational as well as marriage and family and housing and interior design. Child development will be offered to girls for the first time.

In the vocational center auto mechanics will be offered to seniors for the first time since the 1968-69 school term. Distributive education will be offered as a part of the Lincoln high school program for juniors. It will be taught within the Lincoln high school business education department by an instructor from the area vocational-technical school.

This course is designed basically to assist students in exploration and preparation for marketing and distribution careers. There are other subjects that will be offered once again for the '72-'73 school year that are not offered this present school year. These are courses that are offered every other year or when the course is in sufficient demand.

Parents once again are urged to work with their sons or daughters in helping them to select a proper course program. Help can be obtained from the Lincoln high school guidance office by dialing 681-3509.

Soils Workshops Set Wednesday In TRF Library

Crop producers are invited to attend a series of two soils workshops provided by the Pennington county extension service. The first one is scheduled for Wednesday at 1:30 in the meeting room of the public library in Thief River Falls. The second one will be held in the courthouse meeting room on Wednesday, February 9, at 1:30 p.m.

Marlin Johnson, area extension agent, and Charles Simkins, soils specialist from the University of Minnesota, will discuss soil management practices for small grain and row crops in our area. Included in their discussion will be reports of research finding on nitrogen, fertilizer, sulfur and minor elements.

Donald Barron, area conservationist from the soil conservation service district office, will discuss the profile of several soil types commonly occurring in this area.

Tillage practices and management programs on these soil types will be included. Ample time will be allowed for questions.

Telephone Rate Increase Will Begin Feb. 6th

Changes in a number of telephone rates in Thief River Falls will result from approval of rate increases by the Minnesota public service commission at the request of Northwestern Bell Telephone company.

In Thief River Falls, one-party residence phone service will cost $5.45 per month, an increase of 85 cents, when the increase goes into effect February 6, according to Donald Lindquist, local Northwest Bell manager.

Monthly rates for other services will also increase. The Princess phone, now 75 cents, will be 90 cents. A residence extension or trimline phone will go from $1 to $1.25. Touch-tone service, now $1.50 per month, will be boosted to $1.85 and one-time charges for touch-tone, trimline and Princess phone service will go from $5 to $6.

The service connection, move and change charge for residence service will increase $3 to $10.50 here.

The new one-party business rate in Thief River Falls will be $11.70 per month, an increase of $2.30, Lindquist said.

While long distance rates will go up on nearly all calls within the state, the largest increase will apply on operator-assisted calls. This will provide a financial saving for all customers who dial their long distance calls direct station - to - station any distance, any time of the day or night and any day of the week.

Operator-assisted rates will remain the same 24 hours a day, reflecting the higher costs involved in handling these calls. Since Thief River Falls does not yet have direct distance dialing, however, the operator-assisted rates here are in line with the direct dialing rates.

Under the new schedule, direct dialed station - to - station calls will not only be less than operator - assisted calls but will also qualify for expanded low rate periods between 5 p.m. and 7 a.m. daily and all day Saturday and Sunday. The Gopher State rate, providing 10 minutes of calling for $1.30 or less, will apply to direct dialed calls after 5 p.m., expanded to 20 minutes for $1.30 from 11 p.m. to 7 a.m. with extra-minute rates reduced from 13 cents to six cents after 11 p.m.

"The schedule is designed to encourage use of the long distance network during periods when many of the available switching and transmission facilities are idle," Lindquist said.

Annual Chamber Banquet Tonight

Robert Shaw, executive director of the Minnesota Newspaper association, will be guest speaker tonight at 6:30 p.m. when the 58th annual meeting of the Thief River Falls Chamber of Commerce is held at the American Legion club rooms. Topic of the talk will be "Free Institutions In Trouble".

Premiere showing will also be held of the Diamond Jubilee movie taken during the 75th anniversary celebration here last September. Curtis L. Charlson will be master of ceremonies and the invocation will be given by Rev. Jonathan Law, pastor of United Methodist church.

Introduction of guests and presentation of awards for 1971 will be made by Marvin Lundin, 1971 president of the organization. Victor Charles, 1972 president, will introduce directors for the current year and outline plans for the coming year.

Shaw is a native of International Falls and a graduate of the University of Minnesota. He has been in charge of the Minnesota Newspaper association operations for the past seven years.

KITCHEN KARNIVAL

Features from the Kitchen of

Mrs. Bennie Svanjord
Goodridge

Today we are sharing a Spanish recipe from the kitchen of Mrs. Bennie Svanjord who loves to try foreign recipes whether they are complicated or simple to make.

Mrs. Svanjord is among the many wage earning housewives of today but still finds time for her many hobbies.

During the winter months you will find Mrs. Svanjord catching up on her sewing and mending. She makes all her clothes and also a number of birthday, Christmas and other occasional gifts which are garments that she has sewn and decorated. Reading is another hobby favorite which she takes advantage of during the long winter months.

When the spring thaws start to come, Mrs. Svanjord will be paging through the many seed catalogs that she has requested from various companies. She loves both flower and vegetable gardening and raises a number of house plants with a special interest in African violets.

She is past president of the Deer Park Garden club and now serves as historian and is also secretary - treasurer of the Highlanding Farmers Union local.

This recipe is called Topaipillas (Spanish fried bread)

1¾ cups sifted flower
2 tsp. baking powder
1 tsp. salt
2 tbls. shortening
two-thirds cup cold water

Method: Sift dry ingredients into mixing bowl, add shortening and cut in coarsely. Gradually add cold water, mix just enough to hold together as for pie crust. Turn out on lightly floured board and knead gently until smooth. Cover and let rise 5 minutes, roll out into a 12x15 inch rectangle, about one-sixteenth to one-eighth inch thick. Cut into squares or 2x3 inch oblong pieces, drop a few squares at a time into deep, very hot oil. At first, turn squares over three or four times to make them puff evenly.

Fry about two or three minutes on each side or until golden brown. They will puff up like pillows. Serve hot with honey or jelly.

BUILDING A "BUG" was recently completed by instructors Boyd Farrell (left) and Richard Kotschevar and student members of the ham radio club at Lincoln high school. Farrell was a student teacher who has 11 years of experience in construction of telegraph keys, also known as "bugs". The instrument was made of brass picked up from scrap, melted in Allen Aaseby's metal shop at the school; contact points from old cars; a diamond donated by the Jewel Box; and copper posts with wooden handles. James Peterson (center), ninth grade student at Franklin school, was given the key upon agreement that it go to the student who could send the most words minute.

Federal Reserve Earnings Down In 9th District

Federal Reserve bank of Minneapolis realized net earnings of $59.4 million in 1971, down $6.9 million from 1970. $57.3 million of that amount was paid to the United States treasury, $1.0 million was paid to Ninth District member banks as a statutory dividend, and $1.1 million was transferred to the bank's surplus account.

Under policy of the board of governors of the Federal Reserve System, all Federal Reserve bank net earnings are paid to the treasury after dividends have been paid to member banks and additions made to the Reserve bank's surplus account. Member banks are required by law to hold stock in the Federal Reserve bank equal to three per cent of their own capital stock. The dividend paid on Reserve bank stock continues at the rate of six per cent set by the Federal Reserve act of 1913.

Current earnings totaled $72.6 million, down $4.4 million from 1970. Net expenses were $15.1 million, up $2.5 million from 1970. Lower earnings were caused by fewer loans to member banks plus lower rates of interest earned on the government securities held by the Federal Reserve system to implement monetary policy goals. Expense of operating the Minneapolis bank increased as did the expense of operating the board of governors' office—a part of that cost is borne by the Minneapolis bank.

Preliminary figures for the twelve reserve banks indicate gross current earnings of $3,723 million. Expense of operating the Federal Reserve banks and the board of governors totaled $377 million, leaving net current earnings of $3,346 million. Primarily as a result of profits from purchase and sale of securities in open market operations, $94 million was added to the profit and loss account.

Thus, net earnings before payments to the treasury were $3,440 million. Payments to the treasury totaled $3,357 million, dividends to member banks amounted to $43 million and additions to surplus were $40 million.

Principal sources of income for the reserve banks are interest earnings on system-held government securities bought and sold in the open market to implement monetary policy objectives. While the system holds these securities, interest income is earned. Reserve banks also receive income by charging a rate of interest called the discount rate when commercial banks borrow from them.

State Insurance Investigator Is Here Thursday

A. E. Isberner, insurance investigator for the state of Minnesota, will be in Thief River Falls at the Minnesota manpower services office from 2 to 4 p.m., on Thursday.

He will be available to handle complaints for people of the community against insurance companies or agents or help with other problems they may have relating to insurance. His services are offered free of charge by the Minnesota insurance division.

The complaint section will protect policyholders' rights by demanding an explanation from the insurance company for a delay or refusal to settle a legitimate claim and determine the validity of such reasons.

Tax Form Is Not Difficult, IRS Reports

It shouldn't be difficult to fill out your own tax return, the IRS says. There are few changes in Form 1040, and significant filing information highlighted in outlined boxes with a sample filled-in form is featured in the instruction booklet.

If your income is under $10,000-consisting of wages and not more than $100 in dividends and interest-you can use the optional tax tables. Just turn to the one that corresponds to the number of your exemptions.

Also, citizens with less than $20,000 income, and who elect the standard deduction, can ask the IRS to figure their tax, or compute the retirement income credit, and send you a refund or a bill for tax due.

Concordia Prof. Awarded Grant For Rural Study

Roger H. Spilde, associate professor and chairman of the economics and business administration department at Concordia college, has been awarded a faculty summer research fellowship for a project entitled "West Minnesota Profile: II."

The project is a continuation of a study begun under the auspieces of the Tri-College university as part of a Title I grant under the 1965 higher education Act.

The earlier study, "West Minnesota Profile," was a collection and compilation of socio-economic data for nine western Minnesota counties. It was intended as a resource for local and regional decision-makers.

Spilde notes that more information from the 1970 census is available now to broaden the data offered in the previous project. He hopes to do some indepth analysis of specific problem areas in his work this summer.

A locally oriented project such as "West Minnesota Profile: II" is more relevant to the community and helps to reduce the image of the college as an "ivory tower", he says.

Everyone has heard that rural young people are leaving their homes for the cities, and evidence from Spilde's research indicates that this is true. But he believes that it would be helpful to discover to what degree this is happening and to project some possible consequences of this migration.

Other areas which will receive attention in Spilde's research are the rural standard of living, involving income, employment, housing conditions and welfare payments; the kind of industries, what changes have taken place, and what types of industry are presently moving into the area; and the changing pattern of agriculture, including shifts in the size of the farm and the characteristics of the farmer.

Comparative analysis of the information collected will be made to measure change and to detect trends that are developing.

County and state officials, church leaders, businessmen and farm organizations have demonstrated their interest in the first phase of Spilde's work, and he expects they are likely to be equally receptive to the work projected for "West Minnesota Profile: II".

The research fellowship was awarded to Spilde in Concordia's "College Science Improvement Program" from the National Science foundation.

BILL BLASS TALKS MENSWEAR

"I like the look of the thirties adapted for the 1970s. Broader shoulders, wide lapels, and narrower sleeves make a man look slim." When award-winning designer Bill Blass talks, fashion conscious men listen. His clothes of Japanese woolens win constant praise. Here are a few "Blassisms" every man should remember:

1) Match the color of your leather belts and shoes.
2) Show at least a half inch of shirt collar above your suit collar.
3) Mix patterns, but make sure one is dominant.

Cargill To Pay Bonus To 1971 'Flower' Growers

Surprise bonus payment to sunflower growers who contracted with Cargill in 1971 has been announced by Ken Johnson, sunflower project manager for the firm.

Johnson said Cargill will pay a $2.50 bonus on every ton of high-oil seed delivered by the company's contract growers in North and South Dakota and Minnesota this past year.

"Because the oil market was better than we anticipated," said Johnson, "we want our growers to share in the market improvement. Hopefully, we can do this again next year."

Cargill growers averaged 1,036 pounds of seed an acre in 1971, which brought $46.62. The bonus adds $1.30 an acre, raising earnings to about $48 an acre on the average.

Sunflower earnings put the crop third highest in value per acre—higher than wheat, soybeans, barley, oats, flax and rye and behind only potatoes (first) and corn—according to the 1971 crop summary released this month by the North Dakota crop and livestock reporting service.

Farmers did even better growing high-oil sunflowers on set aside land—around $73 an acre counting the diversion payment, Johnson said. He noted that with barley in this year's diversion program, there is a great money-making opportunity for farmers who plant their expanded set aside acreage in sunflowers.

Johnson said Cargill's bonus checks will be in the mail to all 650 of the company's 1971 growers by the end of this month.

Michele Quam Ends Quarter At Art Center

Success of Bemidji state college students in internship positions throughout Minnesota is becoming more and more pronounced, as witnessed by a glowing report of the Walker Art center experience with BSC student Michele Quam of Thief River Falls.

Robert J. Rice, director of education at the Walker center, stated in a letter to BSC art department chairman, Eugene Dalzotto, "Her stay with the education department here was, for us, a thoroughly enjoyable experience. Michele's quiet manner and dependability were outstanding and her willingness to learn was, in my opinionn exceptional."

Miss Quam was the first student from a Minnesota state college to occupy an internship position at the Walker center. Duties as an intern included teaching children in galleries and studios, designing class announcements for the education department, and serving the public at the main information desk of the museum.

She says, "I gained a great deal of practical experience during my internship. Not only was it a quarter of involvement in art, but it was a true experience in learning about people."

"Taking groups on tours was not only a learning experience for them, but also for me," she states. "Each group, from children to adults, had a different reaction to the works of art in the museum."

Working with children's workshops, studio art exhibits, and with graphics in the design department, she was particularly happy for a background in art history.

"Before I could take people on tours, I had to put together information and study the artists and their work. There was a great deal of preparation involved and I was really happy I had a good background in art history," she says.

Rice states, "Michele accomplished a wide variety of tasks during her time at Walker. She seemed to enjoy her work and was well-liked by all who worked with her."

Back in college at BSC now, Michele looks forward to graduation next spring. Her quarter of work at the Walker center should give her an advantage in the job market, and the experience she can relate from work make classes more interesting for fellow students in classes she will take during winter and spring quarters.

"Working as an intern was something I had been interested in for some time and I'm glad to have been selected for this opportunity," she notes.

Students at BSC are offered a variety of possible internship positions in a wide range of skill areas. Dr. John Warford is coordinator of the internship program for BSC and the Minnesota state college system program, and interested art students should contact Paula Bradley for further information about internships in museums and art centers.

The enthusiasm of Walker Art center is reflected by Rice, as he says, "I hope that we can continue to work with Bemidji state college, and we look forward to the time we may have another intern from the college."

Interviews for possible spring quarter interns at the Walker Art Center may be arranged with Paula Bradley at BSC Art Department, 755-2909.

Engineer Reports On Area Highway Project Work

Carl M. Larson, Minnesota highway department district engineer, announced today that during the 1971 construction season, work continued on a number of important projects in the department's District 2 (Bemidji) area.

Some of the larger projects were on T.H. 2 and involve eventual construction of a four-lane highway across the district. A number of projects have been completed. Much work, however, on the section between Fosston and Marcoux corner was suspended for the winter and completion is anticipated in 1972. In conjunction with this project, bridges are being constructed on T.H. 59 at the Burlington Northern railroad crossing and at the T.H. 2 crossing just east of Erskine.

In June of 1971 a new bridge carrying T.H. 11 over the Warroad river in Warroad was opened to traffic. In addition to providing a wider and safer bridge for highway and pedestrian traffic, the new structure permits larger boats to negotiate the channel.

Also accomplished were resurfacing of T.H. 75 from Warren to Donaldson, resurfacing and a new bridge on T.H. 1 from Oslo to Warren and regrading and surfacing on T.H. 11 from Pelan to Greenbush. T.H. 71 from Blackduck to Northome was also resurfaced.

The repair of a bridge carrying T.H. 75 over the Wild Rice river north of Hendrum was completed. The repair was necessitated by movement of the bridge caused by unstable soil conditions. New and spans were added and because of the poor soil conditions it was necessary to use long steel H piling. Piling length was in excess of 145 feet. The bridge was opened to traffic in early November.

More Changes Will Be Made In Marketing Order

U.S. department of agriculture has issued a decision subject to appropriate dairy farmer approval, to amend all federal milk orders except the South Texas order, to make advance announcements of the monthly Class I (bottling) milk prices to be paid by handlers, and to use earlier data in price computations.

USDA's consumer and marketing service said dairy cooperatives in each of the markets will be polled to determine if the required two-thirds of farmers affected favor the action.

C&MS officials said the proposed changes would:

1—Require that the Class I prices for each month be announced by the fifth day of the preceding month;

2—Use the basic Minnesota-Wisconsin manufacturing milk price for the second preceding month, instead of for the immediately preceding month, in computing the Class I prices.

C&MS officials said the South Texas order was not included in the present action because of proceedings pending in a U.S. district court, and a further hearing to be held by the court involving an earlier action to terminate the order.

The amendment proposals were made at a public hearing in Washington December 13, held at the request of the milk industry foundation representing handlers doing business under all of the orders. Terms of today's decision are essentially the same as those of the tentative recommendations issued by USDA on January 5.

Copies of this final decision may be obtained from the market administrators of the orders, or from the Dairy Division, Consumer and Marketing Service, U.S. Department of Agriculture, Washington, D.C. 20250.

Veterinarians Will Observe 75th Anniversary

Seventy-fifth annual meeting of the Minnesota Veterinary Medical association will be held at the Leamington hotel, January 31-February 1-2. It is anticipated that most of the 800 plus veterinarians in the state, as well as veterinarians from surrounding states and Canada, will attend to see the latest in equipment in the exhibit halls, and to hear and participate in the 28 educational sessions and seminars scheduled.

Outstanding speakers will be discussing all aspects of both small and large animal practice, as well as public health regulatory medicine.

Dr. James McCoy, president of the American Veterianary Medical association, will attend the diamond anniversary of the Minnesota Veterianary Medical association.

Dr. Elmer Hokkanen, Minneapolis, president of the Minnesota Veterinary Medical association, has issued an invitation to all veterinarians—members and non-members of the association—to attend.

Aliens Urged To Report Address To Government

John W. Bowser, district director of the immigration and naturalization service, St. Paul, urges all aliens who have not yet reported their addresses to the government to do so no later than January 31 to avoid possible penalties.

The law requires that every alien except those having diplomatic status and representatives of certain international organizations must file the address report during January of each year at the nearest post office or immigration and naturalization service office.

Forms with which to make the reports are available at all post offices and immigration and naturalization service offices. It is an easy matter to fill out one of the cards and return it to the same office.

Social security number should be shown on the registration card. Aliens and employers are advised that the possession of a social security card does not entitle aliens to work in the United States. Only aliens admitted for permanent residence or certain classes of nonresident aliens authorized to do so by the immigration and naturalization service may take employment. Violators of this restriction are subject to certain penalties.

Student teachers are assigned to supervising teachers from the local district and are also supervised by traveling representatives of the Bemidji state college education department.

Interesting Opinions:

State Control

Two things were mentioned at the Thief River Falls board of education meeting last Tuesday evening that set us to thinking a little more about state control. We have long said that we have a healthy respect for the controls that come with financial aids from state or federal government, and that local government can't expect to have one without the other.

A delegation appeared at the meeting seeking school bus transportation for elementary students from the Countryside trailer court west of the city to Washington elementary school where they are enrolled. Bus service is not now provided since the distance from the school to the trailer court is less than a mile. Members of the delegation and school officials disagreed Tuesday as to what the distance actually is, but in either case it's a long walk for young children in cold and stormy weather.

At present that situation is being investigated and perhaps action may be forthcoming. We will reserve judgment until the question is resolved. What is at issue probably is the state department of education's one-mile rule as a distance factor in paying aids for transportation.

It was also noted at the meeting that the state department of education, through its administrative personnel, is not happy with the elementary school building at St. Hilaire. The department is apparently miffed at not being consulted before extensive remodeling was undertaken, and therefore is able to find that the building is non-conforming to state codes in at least several ways.

One of these ways is that the kindergarten room—which would be the envy of at least 90 per cent of the school districts having kindergarten in the state—is not located on the ground floor. It makes no difference that the building does not have a ground floor (there is a half-flight of stairs to the basement and a half-flight to the first floor), the state code is the state code.

Now, we would suppose that somewhere back in history the ruling that kindergarten must be located on the ground floor was adopted with the general welfare of the children in mind. At least we will give the department the benefit of the doubt and assume that children were considered. Perhaps there is justification for ground floor kindergarten in new construction where there is choice available to the builders.

But if educational methods can change, certainly regulations can change. Schools are in a financial bind—a very real financial bind—and the state department of education should be in the forefront to assist rather than hinder when local problems can be satisfactorily resolved at reasonable cost.

In review, let us get back to that question of state control. If the state department of education has the welfare of children at heart, let us ask this question: Which is potentially more damaging to a child of kindergarten age, walking almost a mile to school with a 30 miles per hour wind and temperatures 30 degrees below zero, or climbing half a flight of stairs after he or she gets there?

It seems that we have a tendency to get bogged down in bureaucracy at the expense of practicality all too often. And the further control is removed from local sources, the more difficult it is to tilt the scale toward the practical side.

About Elephants

Hunting of elephants is a topic quite removed from northern Minnesota, but the problem in Kenya, East Africa, can be related to similar situations involving Minnesota game species. Indiscriminate preservation principles can sometimes bring disaster, as pointed out in this editorial from the American Rifleman publication:

With increasing intensity, conservationists and preservationists have engaged in a war of words over the future of the world's game.

Most conservationists favor maintaining a wildlife balance by means of limited, regulated hunting. Most preservationists would ban all hunting by human beings and "let nature take its course."

Preservationists regard hunting as uncivilized and out-of-date. Hunting conservationists tend to view preservationists as impractical idealists who ought to be 100 per cent vegetarians.

Upon the dusty playing field of this fine global controversy there has now lumbered majestically perhaps the ultimate question or issue on the subject: What to do about elephants?

One of the largest concentrations of elephants still in the wild or natural state exists in the Tsavo National Park, in Kenya, East Africa. The number, in an area about the size of Massachusetts, has been estimated at 25,000 and up.

Under normal conditions—something which is in itself a world rarity these days—an average three-ton elephant spends two-thirds of every day eating, presumably to keep up his weight. He is strictly a vegetarian, which probably scores points for him with the preservationists. Even when trampling a few natives or a white hunter, he refrains from sampling the result. But he consumes 100 to 150 pounds of vegetation a day, most of it stripped from trees which then die. When it comes to clearing forest, the elephant is nature's own bulldozer.

The insatiable hunger of elephants has, it now develops, changed much of the Tsavo National Park from forest to grassland in recent years. Last year, nature added a crusher. The rains were far below normal. Searing droughts dried up water holes. Vegetation crispened and withered. The elephant herds ranged farther than usual but began to go thirsty and hungry. Soon their ground courses could be tracked by flocks of ready vultures overhead, waiting to prey on the fallen giants. Scenes of wilderness horror ensued.

As Los Angeles Times correspondent Stanley Meisler wrote from Kenya: "There can be few more terrible sights in nature than that of a once magnificent elephant dead in a drought."

In this instance, as in others involving North American game such as deer, the preservationists are stoutly defending the right of an elephant to die slowly and miserably of thirst and hunger.

One of the senior game wardens in the area and a research director in ecology whose program is financed by the Ford Foundation both take the "leave it to nature" position and oppose any hunting to reduce the elephant herds and quicken the decimation. They say only the fittest survive as it is, and resist proposals of scientific "cropping" by regulated hunts.

Meanwhile elephants have died by the hundred and possibly by the thousand. The situation, sad from any viewpoint, leaves unanswered questions.

Elephants are the largest packages of "meat-on-the-hoof" on earth. Should they be prey for vultures or food for natives? Is it kinder to let them die by slow degrees or by instant bullets? What is really best for the ecology?

Anyone is free to reach his own answers.

Basketbrawl

Can it be that the gentle art of shooting baskets is going the way of professional wrestling and professional hockey? Does it take the hopes of a fight to bring out a paying crowd? Is that really what the fans want to see?

The University of Minnesota basketball team and some of its more enthusiastic followers made it appear so on Tuesday evening. Apparently the prospect of being beaten at their own game by a superior Ohio State basketball team was too much for some of the now slightly tarnished Golden Gophers.

An initial flagrant foul which felled seven-footer Luke Witte of Ohio State as he attempted a shot can be considered one of the natural hazards of basketball, although it can never be considered good sportsmanship. What followed was almost unbelievable. Gopher Corky Taylor offered a hand to pull Witte to his feet, then kneed him in the groin, again sending him to the floor in pain. As fighting broke out, Gopher Ron Behagen stomped on Witte's head as he writhed on the court.

Street fighting tactics have no place on the Big Ten basketball court, and the event has considerably lowered respect for big college athletes and athletics. It is apparent what reception the Gopher cagers will have wherever they play in the future, and at least several of them deserve it. Suspension for the remainder of the season seems in order to us, whether by the Big Ten commissioner, the University of Minnesota athletic director or Coach Musselman.

We don't pretend to believe that native Minnesota athletes are angels, but it is apparent that when the university imports athletes it imports trouble. The University of Minnesota basketball information brochure shows only two Minnesotans on the squad—Steve Palmer of St. Paul and Greg Troland of Moorhead—neither of whom sees much action. The normal starting five comes from New York City; Champaign, Ill.; Maywood, Ill.; Detroit, Mich.; and Owenton, Ky. And they don't come to Minnesota because they like our invigorating winters.

It didn't take long for Paul Giel, the new University of Minnesota athletic director, to start earning his salary. The former Gopher gridder awarded the forfeit to Ohio State and the game was never completed after the fighting broke out on the floor. At this writing, he faces some questions of what to do about the whole shoddy situation.

Let's hope that no other basketball teams attempt to emulate the animal world tactics employed by the Gophers Tuesday. We don't think that basketbrawl should become a popular sport.

notes from the governor

The inequities that result from an over-reliance on the property tax as a source of revenue have long concerned local and state officials in Minnesota and elsewhere.

That concern was particularly evident during the prolonged legislative debate over taxes last year, a debate that culminated in enactment of a tax bill that provides for a statewide reduction in property tax rates and reform of our school aid system.

That same debate, heretofore conducted primarily at state and local levels, is now being conducted on a national level. In his State of the Union address to Congress last week, President Nixon outlined the problem in vivid terms.

Property taxes, he said, "have become one of the most oppressive and discriminatory of all taxes, hitting most cruelly at the elderly and the retired. . ."

The President said he plans to present "revolutionary" recommendations to Congress for relieving property taxes and assuring fair and adequate financing of our schools.

State Auditor Rolland Hatfield, one of our state's foremost tax experts, said last week that Minnesotans can be proud that they have already taken the hard step the President referred to in his State of the Union message.

In an address to the Minnesota Apartment association, Mr. Hatfield called the 1971 Minnesota tax bill a "remarkable accomplishment".

"For four years prior to 1972, property taxes increased more than 15 per cent a year; but in 1972 property taxes in Minnesota will actually decrease," he said. "This is a remarkable accomplishment since, as far as I know, property taxes are continuing to increase in all of the states. . .except ours. Minnesota has led the way in taking some very constructive steps toward controlling property tax levies."

I strongly support Mr. Hatfield's view regarding the 1971 tax bill. I am also convinced that most Minnesotans will soon recognize, if they do not already, that the bill provides for a more equitable tax system than the one we had. The system is not perfect, by any means, but is has been improved significantly.

Roland E. Waller, Chief
Thief River Falls Police Dep't.

Most of you at some time or other recently have heard the expression. . . "The thin blue line." If you don't know what this means, I would like to make it a little more clear in the hope that your thoughts toward police officers might be improved, if needful.

The blue referes to the blue uniforms that many police officers wear as the mark of their profession. We in Thief River Falls have this navy blue as our official color. The thin line refers to the fact that the police officer stands between you and those who would make you a victim of one of their crimes.

You have only to look back at the events that happened in Montreal, Canada, several years ago when the police went on strike for a day. The absolute chaos in that city with no police to respond to bank robberies, thievery and vandalism was a real eye opener to the world. The mob violence that has occurred when a mob breaks through that thin line has been reported often in the news in the last few years.

I would like to ask you what you would do if there was no police officer at the telephone when you called for help? You know you would be very happy to see that blue uniform appear if you needed that help in a hurry.

Then I would like to ask you what your reaction has been when you have seen that uniformed man walking or driving down the street? Was your thought one of thankfulness that he was near in case you needed him, or was it one of suspicion? Who is he seeking to pick on now? Did you voice this suspicion to someone else and taint his mind toward the uniform?

We know that no one likes to have another person infringe on his right to come and go as he pleases. We know also that the police officer has to infringe on some freedom of activity to safeguard the rights of the majority. We all tend to take the side of the underdog because we relate ourselves to being the underdog. We are hasty to make judgments without having all the facts of a case. We tend to castigate an officer in the process of issuing a ticket or making an arrest as one who is using his uniform to make a name for himself or is abusing his power. Maybe we even interject ourselves into the situation and interfere with a proper action of the officer.

When the officer finds this happening, he gets the feeling that the public that has hired him to do a job doesn't really want him to do that job. He finds out very early that he will get less criticism if he does nothing or just enough to get by. The officer finds that the defendant gets more attention and sympathy than he gets support for doing his job.

This feeling is very prominent in an article by Gov. Ronald Reagan of California concerning capital punishment. He had to decide whether a convicted murderer should be sent on to the gas chamber as sentenced. Gov. Reagan felt he could not stop the execution so, amid threats to him and his family and much public pressure, the execution went on as scheduled. He found that many good people, particularly the clergy, felt this was wrong and rang church bells as the condemned men died. Gov. Reagan went on to state that he was very disillusioned at the lack of demonstration of any kind for the murdered person. This murderer's victim was a husband, a father and a police officer.

The thin blue line here in Thief River Falls is thin indeed. We have 17 officers. Spread this over three shifts with days off and vacations and you can see that the manpower is scarce. We work one-man squads and if one car is busy, the other man must face whatever comes up all by himself. I am stating this not to complain about the number of men I have, but to help you realize that we need your help.

What the police officer needs most is the proof that you are standing behind him in spirit in the job you have hired him to do. Then he needs your physical and vocal help in standing with him in arrests and court testimony. Beyond this he needs your help in furnishing him equipment and facilities to do the job that must be done. What he needs least is apathy or outright obstruction from the people he is risking his life to protect.

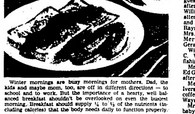
Busy Day Breakfast



Winter mornings are busy mornings for mothers. Dad, the kids and maybe mom, too, are off in different directions — to school and to work. But the importance of a hearty, well balanced breakfast shouldn't be overlooked on even the busiest morning. Breakfast should supply ¼ to ⅓ of the nutrients (including calories) that the body needs daily to function properly.

Now even on those hurry-scurry mornings you can serve your family one of their favorites — French toast — with a minimum of muss and fuss. Aunt Jemima Frozen French Toast, now available in supermarkets all across the nation, is convenient and homemade good because it's made like homemade.

Enriched bread slices are dipped into a batter of fresh whole eggs and fresh whole milk. The bread is specially formulated and baked to absorb and hold more batter. Each slice is baked on both sides on a griddle 'til it's that familiar, tempting golden brown.

The convenience of this wholesome new food product is unmatched. All you do is heat it in the toaster or oven — so easy any member of the family can prepare it; so quick, it fits into the busiest schedule. When busy mornings loom ahead for you, remember new frozen French toast for breakfast.

TRF Quint Dumps Climax 94-60 In Conference Play

Lee Swanson's Prowler basketball team's fast break offensive machine had a few engine problems in the early going Saturday night before the Thief River Falls head mechanic straightened things out to provide the Prowlers with an easy 94-60 Big Five Conference win over Climax in the Lincoln gym.

Playing uninspired ball after pulling out to an 11-1 lead with 5:35 remaining in the first quarter, the Prowler fast break came to a grinding halt as the winless Climax quint grabbed an 18-17 lead with 1:22 left to play.

Prowler guards Ordean Peterson and Lee Sorensen provided a field goal and a free throw for a 20-18 Prowler lead with 10 seconds left, but Les Palm's driving lay-up at the buzzer tied the contest 20-20.

Tom Kays' offensive rebound shot gave the Prowlers a 22-20 advantage, but the Vikings tied the contest once again on Wayne Kobbervig's 10-foot jump shot with 6:56 remaining in the first half for a 22-22 count.

Two field goals by Prowler big men Jeff Rhoden and Rande Smith gave Thief River Falls a 26-22 margin until Kobbervig's two free throws made it 26-24 with 5:12 remaining.

Six straight points by Peterson and Kent Smith pushed the Prowlers to a 32-24 lead when Kobbervig once again kept the Prowlers from breaking completely free with a short jump shot to narrow the margin to 32-26.

But even the sharp-shooting Viking forward couldn't keep the Prowlers in check on defense as the Thief River Falls pressure defense forced the Vikings into coughing up the ball for eight straight points and a 40-26 Prowler lead with 1:30 remaining in the half.

Buckets by Peterson and Smith gave the Prowlers their biggest lead of the first half with 22 seconds remaining as the Lincoln quint went in front 43-28 enroute to a 43-30 halftime margin.

The Prowler height advantage really began to shine through in the third canto as the Prowlers raced to a 26 point, 69-43, advantage going into the final half hour quarter. Frequent substitution by both squads slowed the game and whistle happy officials collected overtime pay in the final drawn-out period.

The Prowlers were led in both scoring and rebounding by senior center Rande Smith who turned in his finest effort of the season with 31 points and 23 rebounds. Peterson also reached the double figures in the scoring column with 21 as 10 Prowler players scored in the contest. Rhoden was the second leading rebounder with 13, while the junior forward scored 8 points. Kobbervig paced the Vikings with 25 and Palm scored 10.

The Prowlers attempted an astronomical 99 shots from the field against the Vikings, connecting on 35, for a 35 per cent performance. The visiting Vikings shot 40.4 per cent on 21 of 51 shots. The Prowlers held a 65-24 rebound advantage.

Next action for the Prowlers will be Friday night when the club hosts Crookston in an important Big Five showdown in the Lincoln gym.

THE PROWLER junior varsity had an easy time of it in the preliminary contest as they posted an 83-51 win. The Prowler Bees led at the quarter stops, 30-13, 58-26 and 73-36.

Crookston, with five individual winners, was crowned as team champion of the Thief River Falls district Golden Glove boxing tournament staged Wednesday in the city auditorium.

Warroad had two individual champions while Thief River Falls, Bagley and Roseau each had one titlist in the first annual event. Thief River Falls' lone winner was 139-pound Bud Comstock. Six other fighters from the Thief River Falls squad suffered losses in the single elimination competition. 27 fighters from six different squads within the Thief River Falls district took part in the event. The winners were eligible to advance into the Wadena regional tournament held Saturday, January 29.

The lean-built Comstock displayed an aggressive style to turn back stocky Richard Diaz of Crookston in the junior welterweight bout. Each boxer exchanged quick punches in the first two rounds, before Comstock stalked the tired Diaz in the final two minutes. It was the only loss suffered by a Crookston fighter in the tournament.

The paperweight division drew the most combatants with six fighters aiming for the championship of the 94-100 pound class. Thief River Falls entered two boxers in the class with Scott Carlson and Keith Breiland both seeing their first ring appearance.

Carlson lost a split decision to Bagley's Larry Stevens in the first fight of the evening while Breiland defeated Bryan Hetten of Roseau in his first round action. The elusive Breiland lost to Warroad's Wayne Cole in the championship bout after Cole had beaten Bruce Beaulieu of Bagley in his first round and then defeated Stevens in a second round encounter. Cole was the busiest fighter of the evening with three bouts.

Crookston received its first champion at 106 pounds when Donny Morgan defeated Curt Olson of Lake Bronson for the junior flyweight title. The Jim LaFriniere-coached Crookston squad also had a champion at 112 when Ray Espinosa beat Warroad's Fred Urtel for the flyweight crown.

A third straight Crookston champion appeared at 118 where Joe Viegas' free-swinging style won a decision over Brian Waale of Thief River Falls. Viegas received a first round bye while Waale recorded a first round TKO over Gregg Stevens of Bagley in an opening round bout. Viegas' rest payed off as he caught the tired Waale with several shots in the second and third rounds of the bantamweight title fight.

Bagley's Ed Beaulieu gained a unanimous decision over John Nostrom of Thief River Falls in the 132 pound bout for the lightweight championship.

Four fighters of matched ability provided three close fights in the 147 pound class with Warroad's Lee Cornelluson beating Burt Stevens and Larry Beaulieu of Bagley enroute to the senior welterweight title. Beaulieu beat Thief River Falls' John Anderson in his first round action.

Solid Bob Snook gave Crookston its fourth individual champion as the UMTC student defeated Bagley's Calvin Thompson for the 155-pound senior welterweight title.

District Boxers Win At Wadena

Wally Hyde's Thief River Falls district squad advanced seven fighters into Saturday night's semi-final and championship rounds of the Wadena regional Golden Glove boxing tournament.

Fighters from the Thief River Falls district won three and lost one in January 29's first round bouts, with four other fighters receiving first round byes.

Bud Comstock (TRF) defeated Jime Swenson of Park Rapids in the 132 pound match while Lee Cornelluson (Warroad) recorded a first round TKO over Marv Swenson of Park Rapids in the 147 pound class and Ray Espinosa (Crookston) defeated Byron Wilson of Cass Lake in the 112 pound division.

The only loser from the Thief River Falls squad was heavyweight Margarito Diaz (Crookston) who lost on a first round TKO to Fats Baron of Wadena.

Wayne Cole (Warroad), Donny Morgan (Crookston), Bob Snook (Crookston) and Ed Beaulieu (Bagley) all received first round byes.

Some of which even the Internal Revenue Service doesn't know about yet. And he's willing to share them with you, "Just to be neighborly."

You

Itasca Stops NSJC Twice, 8-5 & 6-4 In Junior College Hockey

Itasca strengthened its hold on first place in the Minnesota junior college hockey standings over the weekend when the invading Vikings swept a two-game series with Northland in the Thief River Falls sports arena.

The Vikings, losers of just one conference game this season, picked off an 8-5 decision Friday night and added a 6-4 conquest Saturday evening, leaving the Northmen with a 6-4 MJCAA record, and a 9-6 mark overall.

Northland led 3-2 going into Saturday's final period, but the hard skating Vikings scored four straight goals for a 6-3 lead before the Northmen scored with 1:28 remaining in the game.

The Vikings had grabbed a 2-0 first period lead on goals by freshmen Ken Lawson and Gene Gustason, but Swede Lund's Northland squad forged out to a 3-2 second period margin on two goals by Mark Hughes and a single marker by Leo Marshall.

Hughes' first score came on an assist from freshman John Barger with 15:49 remaining. Three minutes later the same combination tied the game 2-2 before Marshall, on an assist from Rich Ellerbusch, gave the Northmen a 3-2 margin with just 2:03 remaining in the second period.

Itasca tied the contest 3-3 on Gustason's second goal of the night with 13:41 remaining in the final stanza. Sophomore wing Tom Tervo scored on an assist from Greg Eldy for a 4-3 Viking lead with 4:25 remaining.

Just 1:14 later, Lawson scored his second goal and what proved to be the winning marker with 3:14 left to play. The Vikings' flashy sophomore wing Bob Prestidge made it 6-3 with 1:55 remaining before Rodney Bolduc's goal with 1:28 left to play ended the game's scoring. Ellerbusch was given an assist on Bolduc's goal.

Northland freshman goalie Tom Matanich stopped 47 Itasca shots on goal while Gene Nelson turned aside 37 Northland shots in the Vikings' nets.

Nine Penalties were called in the game, just three against Northland.

Northland held three different leads in Friday night's game, but each time the Vikings capitalized on Northland defensive mistakes to climb on top to register an 8-5 triumph.

Marshall, on an assist from Jeff Baumgartner, beat Viking goalie Gary Warren on a three on two rush with 15:06 remaining in the first period for a 1-0 Northland lead.

Itasca tied the game 1-1 on Butch Butler's power play goal with 11:27 left, but just 21 seconds later, Northland went back in front 2-1 on Bob Lundbohm's rebound shot with 11:06 remaining. Hughes collected an assist on the scoring play.

Itasca tied the game once again on Gustason's close range blast with 10:21 remaining and the Vikings took a 3-2 lead with 9:10 remaining when freshman centr Gary Logergren slipped the puck under Matanich on his own rebound.

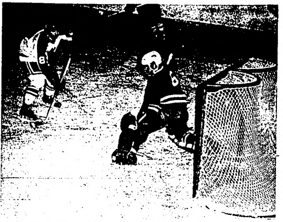
Northland opened up the second period with two goals by Baumgartner, a sophomore defenseman from Roseau, to take a 4-3 advantage until Itasca poked in four straight scoring strikes for a 7-4 lead going into the final period.

Baumgartner's long range blasts came with 19:02 and 15:10 remaining on assists from Ellerbusch and Hughes, but two goals by speedy Dale Flink and singles markers by Ron Ribillard and Gene Nelson gave the Vikings a four goal margin going into the final stanza.

Bolduc tipped in an Ellerbusch pass with 5:45 remaining in the game to cut the Viking lead to 7-5, but Lawson's tally with 2:30 left to play gave the Vikings the 8-5 win.

Matanich kicked out 28 shots while Warren was credited with 25 saves for the Vikings.

Northland will be back in action Wednesday night when the Northmen host rival Crookston in the Thief River Falls sports arena, beginning at 7:30.



HIGH SCORING Itasca wing Dale Flink shot the puck between the legs of Northland goalie Tom Matanich for a second period goal in Friday's MJCAA hockey game in the Thief River Falls sports arena. Flink scored twice to lead the Vikings to an 8-5 win over the Northmen. Itasca also won Saturday night's contest 6-4 for a key weekend sweep in conference action.

MARK HUGHES fires the puck at Itasca goalie Gary Warren with Viking defenseman Mark Demaris checking the Northland freshman from behind. Warren stopped Hughes' drive on this play as the Vikings swept a two-game weekend series in the Thief River Falls sports arena. Magazine Will Carry Article On State Fishing

"Field and Stream", one of the nation's leading sportsmen's magazines, will feature an article on Minnesota fishing in its February issue.

It is part of a section titled "New Reports on the Best Fishing in Every State."

Writing about Minnesota fishing in the issue is Ron Schara, outdoor writer for the Minneapolis Tribune. He gives a clear analysis of Minnesota fishing, pointing out the best places to land a good catch.

Schara writes in part: "Anglers in Minnesota have rediscovered a rather big fishing hole—Lake Superior, the world's largest fresh water lake. It is true that fish in this cold water grow at a slow rate compared to other Great Lakes, but what's wrong with a steelhead weighing from three to 15 pounds?

"A few of the top steelhead streams are Knife River, Gooseberry, Split Rock, Arrowhead and Baptism. Nearly all of the streams emptying into Lake Superior will contain some trout action.

"Despite the trout addicts, the walleye still reigns supreme in Minnesota. Action on this favorite goes from May into July.

"Minnesota contains about 3,000 lakes all classed as excellent walleye waters.

Goodridge Stops Plummer 60-47

Goodridge tasted the sweetness of revenge Friday night as the Huskies turned back Plummer 60-47 in Polar Conference basketball action at Plummer.

The triumph over the Cardinals was the second win during the week for Gary Monson's quint as the Huskies bombed Erskine 99-52 Tuesday night at Goodridge. The two wins upped the Goodridge season record to 9-4, including a 4-3 conference mark.

Earlier this season Goodridge defeated Plummer 48-36, only to end up forfeiting the contest when Plummer protested the use of a player in more than five quarters in both the varsity and junior varsity contests.

Goodridge held a 15-9 lead at the first stop, but the Cardinals fought back to within 31-30 at the half, before Goodridge pulled out to a 45-37 third quarter bulge.

The Huskies connected on 22 of 40 field goals attempts for an accurate 54 per cent shooting eye while Plummer made 17 of 44 for a 39 per cent performance. The Huskies made 80 per cent of their free throws compared to a 54 per cent showing by the Cardinals.

Senior forward Fred Parnow led the balanced Goodridge attack with 18 points, while junior guards Bruce Kriel and Terry Wiseth each scored 10.

Goodridge easily handled Erskine Tuesday night as the Huskies led at the stops, 28-10, 50-24 and 75-33 enroute to the 47-point win.

Dave Paulson scored 16, Harlen Iverson 13 and Vance Wiseth, along with Tom Bendickson, scored 11 for the Huskies. Iverson also led the club in rebounding with 13.

2 Million People To Visit State Sports Booth

More than 2.3 - million epople will attend sports shows in the next four months which will feature a booth sponsored by the Minnesota department of economic development.

"These sport shows give Minnesota an opportunity to contact people who are interested in vacationing in our state and attrating others who have not previously thought about visiting Minnesota," Donald E. O'Brien, the department's director of tourism, said. "We find sport shows a very effective way of acquainting people with the scenic and sporting wonders of our state."

The department will pass out more than 500,000 pieces of literature from its booth which will be located prominently in eight sport shows. The state's six tourism regions also are represented at the Minnesota booth. It is estimated they also pass out 500,000 peieces of literature for a total of one million pieces.

The six tourism regions are Arrowhead in the northeastern part of the state; Heartland in the north central, Viking-Land in the south central, Metro in the Minneapolis-St. Paul area, Pioneerland in the southwest and Hiawathaland in the southeast.

The department already has started its sport show run with its booth now attracting crowds in Winnipeg.

RAINY RIVER'S Rich Thompson has trouble getting by Northland's Jamie Tronnes and Kent Hanson as the ball squirts away during their non-conference junior college basketball game Saturday in the Northland gym. The Northmen won the game 82-75 to set a new school record for most wins in a season with 9.

Northland Cagers Top Rainy River

Rainy River's tiny basketball team threw a big scare into Northland Saturday afternoon as the Voyageurs battled to the wire before bowing out 82-75 in non-conference junior college basketball action in the Northland gym.

The International Falls starting line-up averaged under 6-feet per man, with the squad boasting of just four men standing 6-feet or better-the tallest being 6-3 reserve Bob Johnson. But the Voyageurs made up for their lack of height with an aggressive style of play that resulted in four of their number fouling out of the contest.

Northland opened up a 3-0 lead in the early moments of the game, but Rainy River came back to take a 4-3 lead to set the stage for the rest of the afternoon as the lead changed hands 14 times during the contest while the score was tied on six other occasions.

Northland's sluggish offense finally began to jell as the Northmen pulled out to an 18-10 lead with 11:09 remaining in the half, but led by freshman Lee Tufvander's unbelievable outside shooting, Rainy River ripped apart the Northland zone defense to take a 24-23 lead with 6:01 left in the first half.

Tony Burke gave the lead back to the Northmen, 35-43, on his rebound shot, but a Terry Wegner free throw and two outside lobs by Tufvander put the Voyageurs on top 29-25 with 4:15 remaining.

Buckets by Mike Rasch and Stan Leach gave the Northmen the lead, 33-32, with 30 seconds left to play, but Duane Nelson's 15-foot baseline jumper at the buzzer gave Rainy River a 36-33 halftime lead.

The Voyageurs maintained a narrow lead until three straight field goals cut down a 46-41 Rainy River lead to a 47-46 Northland advantage with 14:55. In a 3:43 span from 15:17 to 11:34, the lead changed hands five times, was tied twice and neither team could manage more than a one-point advantage.

Northland began to slowly pull away from the miniature Voyageurs for a seven-point, 66-59, lead with 6:47 remaining, but Arnie Palm's short jumper brought the Voyageurs back to within 71-70 with 3:07 remaining.

With three starters out of the line-up because of foul trouble, Rainy River fell behind 77-72 with 1:24 remaining. But the quick-working Voyageurs hurried back to within 78-75 with 58 seconds left before a pair of Willie Bayne free throws and a Tony Burke field goal gave the Northmen the win.

Burke led the Northmen in scoring with 26 points, while pulling down 22 rebounds, setting two new school rebound records in the process. The 6-6 sophomore from Bemidji pulled down 14 offensive rebounds in the game to break a mark of 13 set last year by Curt Jensen against Bottineau. Burke also climbed into first place on the all-time career rebounds charts with 174. The old standard was 172 set by another Bemidji product, Duane Sheets, during the 1967-68 season.

Also scoring in double figures for the Northmen were Dale Hanson with 13, Bayne 11 and Rasch 10. Rainy River's top offensive efforts came from Tufvander with 20, Thompson 14, Cam Hardwig 13 and Wagner 12.

Northland shot 47 per cent from the field (27 of 58) while the Voyageurs recorded a 52 per cent clip (33 of 63). Northland held a 62-38 rebound advantage.

Next action for the Northmen will be Friday evening when they host Mesabi in the Northland gym.

NORTHLAND FORWARD Jay Forney has the ball knocked away by Rainy River's Rich Thompson during Saturday's junior college basketball game in the Northland gym. The Northmen won the contest 82-75 to raise their season record to 9-10. Next action for the Northland quint will be Friday night when the Northmen host Mesabi in a 7:30 contest.

University Adds Speaker Program

Guide describing speakers available from the University of Minnesota has been developed by the department of university relations for use by organizations desiring speakers or program ideas from the university.

Topics range from "The Supreme Court in American Politics," a talk by Professor Samuel Krislov, chairman of the department of political science, to "The Cosmic Merry-Go-Round," which is a topic of Karlis Kaufmanis, professor of astronomy.

Members of the University administrative staff are also listed in the booklet, including President Malcolm Moos, although several weeks' advance notice is needed to engage them as speakers.

In addition to listing faculty and staff that are available to speak on a variety of topics, the book also lists a number of programs, including films and music ensembles, that are available from the Twin Cities campus, and explains how these may be contacted by interested persons. A list of commencement speakers for high schools also is included.

Speakers from the coordinate campuses—Crookston, Duluth, Morris and Waseca—are also available, and contact information is given in the publication.

Persons or organizations wishing a copy of the speakers guide should contact the speakers bureau, S-68 Morrill Hall, University of Minnesota, Minneapolis 55455, or phone 373-7502.

Wide Variety In Dairy Products Made In State

Minnesota's milk production, third largest in the nation, is now being processed into a wide variety of consumer products by 351 dairy plants, Agriculture Commissioner Jon Wefald reported today.

He said a new inventory taken by the Minnesota department of agriculture reveals that 36 processing plants were absorbed by consolidations and mergers during 1971. The biggest merger activity was among the dairy cooperatives, reducing that number by 41 to a new total of 261.

Minnesota gained five independent dairy processing plants during 1971. These now total 90. Two of the new independent plants manufacture butter, increasing that total to seven plants, while cooperative mergers trimmed butter manufacturing by 41 to now 77 plants.

The state also gained two cheese manufacturing plants for a total of 19, offsetting the consolidation of two Grade A cottage cheese manufacturing plants, trimming the latter total to five. There are two other plants manufacturing cottage cheese other than Grade A and three plants, a gain of one, now packaging cottage cheese products.

Mergers also reduced the number of wholesale ice cream and ice milk manufacturing operations by five, to 30, and the number of plants manufacturing consumer packages of dry milk products by three to a total of five. There are 43 plants manufacturing non-fat dry milk solids for human food, six less than in 1970, but two of these qualified for the Grade A products program, boosting that category to three plants.

Commissioner Wefald said that the changes in Minnesota dairy processing operations represent a continuing trend toward larger, more efficient opertations with a greater marketing clout. Since July 1, 1966, mergers have reduced the number of state dairy plants by 189.

Minnesota ranks first in the nation in the production of butter and nonfat dry milk, second in production of blue and American processed cheeses, third in total milk and cheese productions, fifth in Italian cheeses and ninth in ice cream manufacture.

Slow Tire Leak May Pose Threat

Results of a leaky faucet might be lack of sleep or an expensive water bill, but the consequences of a slow leak of air from a tire could be much more disastrous, according to highway safety researchers.

The tire industry safety council says a recent study conducted by the British automobile association indicates leaky or severely underinflated tires may be the prime factor in road mishaps involving the unexplainable "cross-over" type of accident.

"The researchers found that a motorist can drive for many miles and not be aware there was anything wrong," says Ross R. Ormsby, chairman of the council. "Then when the driver steps on the gas to pass another vehicle or changes lanes to pass, there can be a sudden and drastic loss of control."

The tests also discovered drivers are more likely to get into big trouble from a seriously underinflated rear tire than from a punctured front tire.

"The Council has maintained for a long time that drivers should check their tires' air pressures at least once a month," says Ormsby. "Motorists who are constantly having to add air pressure to maintain recommended limits should see a reputable tire dealer or repairman about the possibility of a slow leak problem."

The council also recommends motorists examine their tires regularly for excessive or abnormal tread wear, fabric breaks, cuts or other damage. Removing nails, small stones or bits of glass embedded in the tread grooves can help prevent possible leakage or future tire damage.

In the series of tests conducted by the British, the researchers reported that cars with severely underinflated tires had a tendency to weave slightly from side to side, but that the "feel" of the steering was not always indicative of the problem—especially when cars have power steering. A good indicator of excessive underinflation is a "thumping" sound given off by the tire.

The researchers also warned that even one severely underinflated tire can possibly cause a driver to lose control of his vehicle when changing lanes.

Regulations On Snowmobiles Told By State

New department of natural resource regulations governing the licensing and operation of snowmobiles were ordered into effect last week by Commissioner Robert Herbst.

The regulations were adopted following the holding of a public hearing in St. Paul on November 19. Testimony was presented at the hearing by conservation groups, industry representatives, state and local officials and the public.

In addition, several new laws were passed concerning snowmobiles at the recent legislative session.

Herbst said the major changes in effect this year include the following. No person under the age of 14 may cross a state highway or county road or operate a snowmobile upon a street or highway within a muncipality.

Those 14 through age 17 may cross a state or county highway if they have in their immediate possession a valid snowmobile safety certificate issued by the commissioner following completion of the youth safety training program.

Persons under age 14 may not operate a snowmobile on lands and waters under the jurisdiction of the DNR unless accompanied by a person of at least age 18, parent or legal guardian; except that those 12 and older may so operate if they have in their immediate possession a valid snowmobile safety training certificate.

Snowmobilers involved in accidents resulting in $100 damage or requiring professional medical treatment must submit an accident report to the department of natural resources.

Sleds or other devices being towed by snowmobiles must display reflectorized material on the sides and rear.

Snowmobile engine noise is to be reduced by manufacturers to 82 decibels for the 1973 models and to 73 decibels for the 1975 models.

Snowmobiles may now be registered by deputy registrars in local communities.

No one under the age of 18 may register a snowmobile.

Herbst said snowmobile operators should also be aware of laws and regulations on the books for some time. These include:

Road crossings must be made as direct as possible, at approximately 90 degrees.

Snowmobiles operated after dark along the ditches or outside bank of roadways must proceed in the same direction as the motor vehicle traffic in the nearest lane.

It is unlawful to operate a snowmobile while under the influence of alcohol or drugs.

It is illegal to operate a snowmobile on the roadway of any state highway, freeway, or county state aid highway.

The laws, rules and regulations are now at the printers, said Herbst, and should be available in booklet form about January 15. Copies may be obtained without charge from the department's bureau of information, at deputy registrars, county aduditors, conservation officers, sheriffs and the department's license center in St. Paul.

In addition, every person registering or renewing the license on a snowmobile will receive a copy of the regulations.

New Law Applies To Private Land For Recreation

1971 Minnesota Legislature enacted a new law (Chapter 946) which reduces and clarifies a land owner's responsibility when his property is used by others for recreational purposes such as snowmobiling, hunting, fishing, hiking, etc.

This law was enacted to relieve the property owner of liability for injuries incurred while using his land for recreational purposes as outlined in the act, and to encourage and promote the use of privately owned lands and waters by the public for beneficial recreational purposes and to further the public health and welfare.

This new law does not rescind the trespass laws of the state. The trespass laws still apply and it is recommended by the International Snowmobile Industry association that all snowmobilers ask permission to use private lands and NOT use posted lands except when express permission has been granted by the land owner.

This law is similar to what approximately 40 states have and, in essence, reads that: An owner of land owes no duty of care to render or maintain the premises safe for entry or use by others for recreational purposes.

An owner of land who either directly or indirectly invites or permits without charge any person to use such property for recreational purposes does not thereby:

1. Extend any assurance that the premises are safe for any purpose.
2. Confer upon such person the legal status of invitee or licensee to whom a duty of care is owed.
3. Assume any responsibility for or incur liability for any injury to person or property caused by an act of the omission of such persons.

A land owner's liability is not limited for:

1. Willful or malicious failure to guard or to warn against a known dangerous condition, use, structure or activity.
2. For injuries suffered in any case where the owner of the land charges the person or persons who enter or go on the land for recreational use thereof.

Responsibilities of persons using land:

No person using the land of another for recreational purposes shall be relieved of his obligation to exercise care in his use of such land and in his activities thereon or from the legal consequences of failure to employ such care.

Snowmobiling is fun, according to the International Snowmobile Industry association, which asks all snowmobilers to use care when snowmobiling, to exercise responsibility, respect the rights of others using the same out-of-doors, to choose the right time of day or night to operate (don't drive modified or noisy snowmobiles near dwellings late at night) and to operate by the snowmobiler's code of conduct and the law. . .it's more fun that way!

Gordie Howe Will Speak At Hockey Hall Of Fame

Minnesota's hockey playing Governor Wendell Anderson will be on hand at Eveleth on Wednesday, February 16 as "Hockey Capitol of the USA" breaks the ground for the United States Hockey Hall of Fame(USHHF).

Ceremonies are scheduled for 4 p.m. at the Eveleth area technical school with remarks expected from Governor Anderson, a representative from Congressman Blatnik's office, Mayor Joseph Begich, and USHHF President Donald M. Clark. Following the speech making the Governor's party will move to the building site across highway 53 from the school for the traditional spade turning. It is expected that many area government leaders as well as hockey administrators will be on hand for the ceremonies.

Ground breaking brings to a reality a project of the Eveleth civic association which began four years ago. Spearheaded by the association's Project H Committee; the turning point for the project was reached this past December when the Economic Development Administration through the accelerated Public Works program awarded a grant for $666,400 to the city of Eveleth for the construction of the facility. The grant was secured under legislation authored by Representative John Blatnik, 8th District Congressman, and will be matched by $166,600 from private sources. A portion of the private funds have been raised and the remainder are expected to come from the successful completion of drives in Eveleth, Virginia, Hibbing and Duluth.

The United States Hockey Hall of Fame will honor those Americans who have made significant contributions to the sport as players, coaches, referees, and administrators. Aside from its strictly hockey aspects, the facility is expected to become Northeastern Minnesota's first year around tourist attraction and consequently is expected to have a significant impact on the economic development of the region.

The Eveleth civic association's annual banquet will be held the same day at 7 p.m. in the Eveleth armory. Featured speaker at the banquet will be Gordie Howe, former Detroit Red Wing great, who recently retired after a brilliant twenty five year career. Howe, whose exploits take up twenty pages of the current National Hockey League Guide, played more seasons and more games; scored more goals, more assists, more points; played in more All-Star games; won more Hart and Ross Trophy awards, and was selected to more All Star teams than any other player in league history. He was literally "Mr. Everything" to professional hockey. Howe has also received the Lester Patrick Award for service to hockey in the United States and his younger son, Mark, recently joined the United States Olympic team soon to depart for Japan. He is now a vice president of the Red Wings.

Both ground breaking and the banquet are open to the public. Banquet tickets are $3.50 for adults and $2.50 for children. They are available at the civic association office at the Eveleth city hall, First National Bank at Eveleth, Mitch's Bar—Eveleth, State Bank—Virginia, Sam and Buck's—Virginia, as well as by mail from the Eveleth civic association, Box 657, Eveleth, Minnesota 55734. There is no charge or ticket required for ground breaking.

Sportsmanship in Fishing?

Recently we read an editorial in which the writer criticised a biologist for saying 'a dead fish is a dead fish.' The writer went on to state that a man who spears a fish is not fishing in a sportsmanlike manner. The group he is speaking for wants to have spearing abolished.

This same group uses live bait as well as artificial bait when fishing, yet there is a group that insists that using live bait is not sporting because you catch the fish with its natural food and there is nothing sporting about that. Should fishing with live bait be abolished??

We say no. Both the spearer and the live bait fisherman have their places in the outdoor picture. The important function of the fisherman is to harvest the crop. The spearer must have patience. . .an attribute of a true sportsman. He is after the 'big one'. Usually the 'big one' is a grandparent and not important to the reproduction of the pike family. It is more difficult for the big female to get back in the spawning areas. The smaller more fertile female is the important member of the brood stock. This is the pike a spearer ignors. We can't see where the biologist is wrong when he says "a dead fish is a dead fish." Can you?

Don't Quit Now

February 15 is the closing date for the fishing of walleyes, pike and bass, but don't let that bother you. There is plenty of fine fishing left with the crappie, bluegill, perch and tullibee providing the entertainment. Fishing for the crappie will improve now to ice breakup when it will hit a high.

At Big Winnie near Bena and Deer River the tullibee (leucichthys tullibee) is providing the fun. According to one authority the tullibee is sometimes considered a subspecies of shallow water cisco, while other people consider it an entirely different species. In some lakes it occurs in great abundance and is of much commercial value. It feeds on insects and often provides good sport when captured on light gear. Jim Williams of Grand Rapids and Phil Cook of Deer River once told us that the "mousie" is the most effective bait; but that "tear-drops are also effective. There is no limit to the number you can keep. Most fishermen smoke them, but some will bake them. The usual hot spot in the Deer River area is Little Cut Food Sioux near Big Winnie.

Blackduck Report

Orin Wolden, of Wolden's Service at Blackduck says that fishing so far this winter is better than usual and he sent some pictures to prove it. Bob Hendricks of St. Paul and Pied Lengevin of Blackduck had walleyes weighing 6 pounds, 2 ounces;. . .7 pounds; 6 pounds, 2 ounces; and 5 pounds 12 ounces. Former Blackduck mayor, Fred Magnuson, caught a walleye weighing 7 pounds, 5 ounces, and Dick Southard of Anoka caught one weighing 6 pounds, 4 ounces. All of these nice walleyes were caught in Blackduck Lake.

More Perch Information

Yellow perch continue to make fishermen happy at Walker in Leech Lake. They are fishing in 8 to 10 feet of water using minnows for bait. Hot spots are The Narrows, Goose Island and Bear Island.

Duck Stamp Price May Be Increased

When U.S. waterfowl hunters go to post offices this fall to buy migratory bird hunting stamps for the 1972-73 open season they likely will pay an extra amount for the privilege as a result of new legislation passed by the Congress and signed into law, the National Wildlife Federation reports.

President Nixon has signed into law(P.L. 92-214) a bill which authorizes the secretary of the interior to increase the price of the so-called "Duck Stamp" from $3 to $5 and there is every indication that he will take this action before the beginning of the new fiscal year on July 1, 1972.

Funds from the sales of duck stamps are earmarked for use by the bureau of sports fisheries and wildlife to acquire waterfowl wetlands. Some 3,000,000 duck stamps were sold for the 1971-72 season so the increase should produce about $5 million in added revenue, according to bureau sources, even if sales drop off to some extent as a result of the higher price and other factors.

Last increase in the price of the duck stamp was authorized in 1958, when the annual fee went from $2 to $3. Since that time, the average cost of acquiring wetlands has increased by 68 per cent, the bureau says.

In a long-range effort to preserve waterfowl wetlands, the Congress also has been advancing money from a special accelerated acquisition fund which is to be repaid from future duck stamp sales. For the current 1972 fiscal year, the advance appropriation was $7.5 million.

In testimony before committees of the Congress last year, the bureau of sport fisheries and wildlife recommended that the legislators establish the duck stamp fee at $5. However, the Congress turned the tables and authorized the secretary of the interior to take the necessary action.

Fitzsimons And Swenson Attend Snowmobile Meet

Rep. Richard Fitzsimons, Warren, attended the Fourth International Snowmobile Congress in Quebec City, Quebec, last week. This year's Congress centered on the theme "Respect, Responsibility and Recreation".

One of the Congress highlights was the address by Lowell Swenson, President of Arctic Enterprises, Thief River Falls, and President of the International Snowmobile Industry association, speaking for the snowmobile industry of North America.

Delegates attended the Congress from throughout the snow-belt of Canada and the United States. Delegates interested in the aspects of government, conservation, ecology, law enforcement, medical aspects, industry and the user of snowmobiles were all in attendance.

A series of panels dealing with all of these subjects heard expert testimony from people throughout North America and both sides of every issue were subject to full debate and discussion.

Among the highlights of the various presentations was the welcoming address by the minister of tourism-game and fish in Quebec, Hon. Claire Kirkland-Casgrin, who also gave the address at the closing banquet.

"Minnesota had a very prominent place at the Congress as Minnesota snowmobile laws are recognized the world over as among the most enlightened and responsible in the world," Rep. Fitzsimons said. "Minnesota snowmobile industry together with Quebec industry represents the majority of the snowmobile industry in North America."

Rep. Fitzsimons attended the Congress as a member of the special legislative committee dealing with snowmobile and all terrain vehicle legislation.

Boat Show To Honor Leaders In Conservation

For the 24th year, the state's top farmer and youth conservationist winners will be recognized at the Northwest boat, sports and travel show in the Minneapolis auditorium on Saturday, April 8 and Sunday, April 9.

The awards are the well-known Minnesota champion farmer-sportsman of the year and the Frank Blair junior conservationist award. The farmer-sportsman may be nominated by any interested group or individual. Judging by the state selection committee will be based on the nominee's reputation as a successful farmer who has made significant contributions in community leadership and wild life conservation and forestry practices, ecology, and good land and soil conservation applications. Included for consideration is work with farm, youth, civic and church groups and sportsmen's organizations.

Nominations for this special award should be submitted to the local county extension office no later than February 20. Four regional winners will be selected and the state finalist and his wife together with his county agent and his wife will be given an all-expense trip to Minneapolis where they will be honored at the Northwest boat, sports and travel show on Sunday, April 9.

All 4-H, FFA and other young boys and girls who have made substantial contributions to sportsman-conservation work are eligible to compete for the annual Frank Blair award. County extension offices and local high school vocational agricultural departments are providing the necessary application forms. The state Frank Blair conservation winner will receive recognition at the show, Saturday, April 8.

Seek Involvement Of Rank And File In Naming Delegates

Common Cause has begun a major campaign to involve rank and file members of both political parties in the selection of delegates to the presidential nominating conventions by mailing memos describing each step of the process to its 231,000 members.

The memos are drawn from a massive Common Cause study of the nominating procedures in each state.

"The thousands of hours of research that went into the formulation of these memos are descriptive of one of the problems," Common Cause Chairman John W. Gardner said at a Washington press conference. "Until today there has been no single source where a citizen could go to find out how to become a delegate."

—State laws and party rules that govern the delegate selection process are often cloaked in mystery and are kept obscure. They are just not understood.

—Participation by rank and file party members must begin at the first stage of the delegate selection process. This first level is often the only opportunity for public participation.

—Active and interested party members can turn the process into an open one for the first time in American history.

"It is time to end the closed system," Gardner said. "The nominees of the Democratic and Republican parties should be nominated as a result of successful competition in a free and open process starting with open slate-making in primary states and open precincts in convention states."

Gardner commended the Democratic party for making a commitment to open up the delegate selection process, but said the value would lie in how it is carried out.

"An essential part of the participation by members of Common Cause," he said, "will be to insure that these reforms are reforms in performance as well as reforms on paper."

He urged the state Republican parties to implement the "excellent recommendations to the states for their selection process at the 1972 convention.

"To do less," he said, "would be to make the Republican convention an overblown puppet show."

The study shows that in 19 states delegates are elected in primary elections, usually tied to the results of Presidential preference polls held at the same time.

The most widespread abuse of this process, the study says, is the practice in California, Massachusetts, Oregon and the District of Columbia of awarding the total number of delegates to the candidate who wins the preference primary.

Common Cause urged states with primaries to provide proportional representation whereby the candidate would be awarded delegate votes based on the percentage of vote he received. Delegates should only be bound to vote for a given candidate whom they have listed on the ballot as their preference.

State laws or party rules should also require a balanced representation to include minorities, income groups, women and young people, the study said.

In states where delegates are selected by a process set up by the political parties the Common Cause study recommended:

—Precinct meetings which are open to all enrolled party members.

—At least 75 per cent of the delegates picked by Congressional district caucuses.

Delegates should be elected in the same proportion as the Presidential preferences of the delegates to the state convention.

—State committees of both parties should be empowered to assure that their delegations contain proportional representation of minorities, income groups, women and young people.

In discussing the study, Gardner said "it is time for the political parties to stop being afraid of their members. If enough party members use the process, then no county or state chairman can hand-select delegates on the basis of cronyism, past favors and the lining of party coffers."

Reierson Is Named 5th Ward Alderman

Milton Reierson was appointed fifth ward alderman Tuesday evening at an adjourned meeting of the Thief River Falls city council. He will succeed Gerald Wigness who resigned from the council to accept the position of city clerk. Wigness had just been elected to a four-year term.

The council also entered into an agreement with Arctic Enterprises for leasing of a new hangar facility at the municipal airport and obtaining the city's advance funds necessary to qualify for an interest-free loan from the Minnesota department of aeronautics.

Under terms of the agreement, Arctic Enterprises will advance $15,643 to the city as its 20 per cent share of the total $78,215 cost of the hangar. This will qualify the city for an interest-free loan for the remainder of the cost.

Arctic will then pay monthly rent of $695 on the hangar for 90 months to repay the state loan. At the end of that period, Arctic will receive use of the hangar rent free for 42 months in exchange for its initial $15,643 qualifying payment. At the end of that 42-month period, the company has a 10-year lease option at $300 per month rental.

City officials emphasized that the lease is a net lease, in that the company will pay all its own utilities as well as provide upkeep and repair on the hangar. The building remains the property of the city of Thief River Falls.

Considerable time was also spent by the council in discussion of possible street, sewer and water projects for the coming construction season. Decision was also made to call for bids on health and hospitalization insurance which is now offered as a fringe benefit to city employees. The city is faced with a substantial rate increase in its health insurance program.

New Alderman

Reierson is a native of Thief River Falls, 1943 graduate of Lincoln high school and a three-year army veteran, serving 15 months in England, France and Germany. He has previously served two terms on the city council, one as vice chairman.

He married Eileen Froseth in 1947 after attending the University of North Dakota, was office manager for the S&L company for three years and joined the staff of First Federal Savings and Loan association in 1951. He was named treasurer that year, secretary-treasurer in 1952 and vice president and managing officer in 1968. He is currently a member of the board of directors and president of the association.

The newly-appointed alderman is vice chairman of the local housing authority, committee member of the Minnesota savings and loan league, exalted ruler of the Elks lodge, president of the Lions club, an officer in the Masonic lodge and a director of the Chamber of Commerce.

A member of United Methodist church, he has been treasurer, member of the finance committee and board of trustees. He has three sons, Richard, Roger and Ronald, and a daughter, Debra.

City Receives $59,000 In Aid

Minnesota highway department announced today the apportionment of $18,338,440 in municipal state aid street funds for 1972. Thief River Falls will receive $59,242, with $10,365 slotted for maintenance and $48,877 allotted for construction.

The 1972 municipal state aid street fund is apportioned to 92 municipalities having a population of 5,000 or more. Last year the fund was apportioned to 90 municipalities.

Dwight Tangquist Becomes Owner Of Hartz Market

Change in ownership of the L. B. Hartz supermarket in Thief River Falls took place this week and the store opened at noon Tuesday with Dwight Tangquist as owner. The store had been closed Tuesday morning for inventory completion, and is now open as Dwight's Hartz Market.

Tangquist acquired ownership of the stock and fixtures of the store from James Winjum and Mrs. J. H. Winjum, holders of the family corporation. He began working with the store in 1955 as a carry-out boy and progressed to manager in 1963, a position he had held since that time.

The store was started in 1948 by J. H. Winjum and Arthur B. Christianson, with Winjum later acquiring Christianson's interest in the store. In 1957 James Winjum Jr. became involved in the store operation, and the senior Winjum died in 1963. Winjum has not announced any immediate future plans, other than he will pursue other business interests.

Winjum is a past president of the Chamber of Commerce, former director of the local Jaycees, has served on the board of Jobs Incorporated and the Thief River Falls foundation and is a director of Union State bank.

Tangquist is a director on the Chamber of Commerce board and the Lions club board, treasurer of the Evangelical Covenant church, a member of the Jaycees and has been active in the local softball association as a player and manager. He is married and he and his wife Linda have a daughter Heidi, 5, and a son Blake, 1.

Advance tickets are available from the Trinity church office and it is expected that some will be available at the door until capacity of the church is reached. Further information is available from the church office. Attendance is not restricted to Trinity members and all interested persons are invited to hear the exceptional choral group.

280 Attend Chamber Of Commerce Event

"I believe our system of government—if we pay attention to it—is capable of change and adaptation. I know no alternative to representative democracy except some form of authoritarian government which is run by people not elected and depends for its power on fear."

This was one of the thoughts expressed by Robert Shaw, executive director of the Minnesota Newspaper association, at the annual meeting of the Thief River Falls Chamber of Commerce Monday evening. Shaw spoke on the topic "Free Institutions in Trouble" at the event which was attended by 280 people in the American Legion club rooms.

Curtis L. Charlson served as master of ceremonies for the banquet and Rev. Jonathan Law gave the invocation. Awards were presented by Marvin Lundin, 1971 president, to committee chairmen for exceptional service during the past year. Recipents were Vernon Nelson, agri-business; Terry Courneya, total community development; and Jerry Hendrickson, retail trade.

Honorary life memberships were presented by Lundin to Mrs. Inga Sheller, Eugene M. Gaer and Milton Schlechter, all of whom have been members of the Chamber of Commerce and recently retired from business here.

Special award was made to William LaFave, general chairman of the Diamond Jubilee held last September. Premiere showing was also held of the Diamond Jubilee film compiled on the event.

Victor Charles, president of Northland state junior college and 1972 president of the Chamber of Commerce, presented the past president's plaque to Lundin and introduced members of the board of directors and committee chairmen for the coming year.

Directors in addition to Charles and Lundin include Jon Larson, first vice president; Jerry Hendrickson, second vice president; Dwight Tangquist, treasurer; Milton Reierson, Orin Green, Vernon Quam, Robert Ekeren, Donald Lindquist, Dennis Wojahn, Dr. A. F. Scheuneman, Robert Carlson, Donald M. Olson and Jay Borchert.

Committee chairmen include Vernon Nelson, agri-business; Dennis Wojahn, ambassadors; Randall Noper, conventions and tourism; Justus Larson, downtown development; Duane Walton, retail trade; Terry Courneya, total community development; William LaFave, transportation; and Donald L. Olson, public information.

In addressing the capacity crowd at the 58th annual banquet, Shaw expressed extreme concern over the problems faced by free institutions in the United States. He concentrated his comments on the legislature and the courts, and briefly referred to newspapers and other forms on news media.

"As we look ahead," he said, "we perhaps do not see much cause for comfort in the security of our free institutions. I expect that the next 50 years will be years of real trouble and difficulty, with more and more reasonable people being led to believe that democracy is nice but it won't work."

Shaw drew obvious parallels between the United States and Rome, noting that Rome didn't fall but that its institutions were permitted to decay and deteriorate. He said that authoritarian leaders like Caesar and Napoleon did not abolish their legislatures but took away

SLOW DOWN AND LIVE!

Women's Seminar At Winter Shows Changes Format

"The Art of Being a Woman" is the theme of the women's seminar set for Monday, February 21, at Trinity Lutheran church in Crookston. The seminar held annually in conjunction with the Red River Valley winter shows, is co-sponsored by the UMC faculty women and the agricultural extension service. While recent seminars have covered typical homemaking aspects of fashion, sewing, foods and interior decoration, this year's seminar takes a look at the woman behind the homemaker.

"Please note, our seminar has no connection with Women's Lib!", said Mrs. David Hoff, general chairman of the event. "The purpose of the seminar is to help women find time to be themselves and do whatever makes them happy—whether it is baking bread, driving a tractor or, yes, even running for office if that's their choice."

An important change in the women's seminar this year is the elimination of the morning registration period. The day's program will begin promptly at 9 a.m. with "Discover Yourself", by Mrs. Sue Meyers, family life specialist, agricultural extension service.

Following a short coffee break, the women will see two demonstrations of their choice designed to "Create a Lovelier You". The 45-minute demonstrations will include "The Wonderful World of Wigs"; "Put on a Happy Face" (make-up and grooming); "Shape-Up!" (exercise) and "Inner Beauty Counts". More information on the demonstrations will be announced at a later date.

Highlighting the day's activities will be a noon luncheon and style show at the Eagles hall. The style show, "Portrait of a Woman", will feature spring fashions from five Crookston stores.

"BIRDS OF PREY" is the title of a program to be presented at Northland state junior college Monday at 10 a.m. Chuck Bindner of Phoenix, Ariz., will display a number of live hawks, owls and eagles, including a golden eagle and our national bird, the American bald eagle. Pictured above is a Cooper's hawk which nests in this state and is protected by Minnesota law.

"Birds Of Prey" Program Monday At Northland

"Birds of Prey" is the title of a program to be presented by Chuck Bindner of Phoenix, Ariz., on Monday at 10 a.m. at Northland state junior college. The program will feature live hunting birds and falconry equipment.

Bindner's program will deal with the declining population of hawks, owls and eagles, as he draws on his extensive experience in the research field. Among the many awards he has received for his work is the Audubon society award for meritorious service to conservation education in schools. The award was given for Bindner's work with the United States' national bird the American bald eagle.

In 1962, Bindner was given the only permit by the U.S. Fish and Wildlife service to carry a live bald eagle, hoping that as many Americans as possible would come to know the national bird and its story better.

"Birds of Prey" is a most unusual program, according to Northland junior college officials, and the only one that features all predator birds alive and on stage. It takes hours of patient work just to train the birds to accept the audience.

Bindner will explain how falcons and other birds of prey are much misunderstood today and have little chance for survival. The only program with a live bald eagle and golden eagle, it contains elements of high educational interest and some of the most exciting birds alive today.

Arrangements for the program, which is open to the public, have been made by the convocation committee at Northland with Barbara Hauger as faculty advisor.

ICC Council To Aid Seniors In Filing Tax Claims

Nearly twice as many of Minnesota's senior citizens will be eligible for benefits under the new provisions of the Minnesota senior citizens tax relief law as ever before.

That estimate means that nearly 100,000 older persons will be eligible to file claims this year, says Lowell Enerson, who is CAP Administrator of the Inter-County Community council.

He says that the organization will once again be working hard to inform all persons over 65 in the three and one-half county area about the law and to help those who are eligible to file claims. He says that over 52,000 elderly Minnesotans shared in the $3,600,000 paid out by the state tax department last year.

Major changes in the law increase the income eligibility limit from $3,500 to $5,000 per household (either individual or couple); the amount of refund paid is increased, particularly for those in the lower income categories; persons who became 65 any time in 1971 are eligible and the method of computing the refunding has been simplified by use of a table printed in the tax claim form.

Several restrictions regarding persons who sold property during the year and persons who rented several different home during the year have also been eliminated.

The basic idea of senior citizens tax relief remains the same as under the original law, which is designed to help older persons living on fixed incomes stay in their homes by helping them meet the rising costs of real estate taxes and increased rents.

Although the law has been in effect since 1968, many older persons, particularly those who live in rented homes or apartments have never taken advantage of it. The tax benefit is paid either through a direct cash payment from the state tax department or as a credit on the state income tax for those individuals who's income was high enough to require them to pay a state tax.

Because so many eligible claimants are persons who have not filed any sort of tax form for several years, the Inter-County Community council will provide volunteers to help persons file out their claims, says Enerson. For information about when this help will be available call 796-2325 from 8:00 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. Monday-Friday.

WENDY STENNES, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Roy Stennes of Strandquist, has been named Strandquist high school's "Homemaker of Tomorrow" for 1972. She was chosen on the basis of her score in a written knowledge and attitude examination taken by senior girls on December 7. Her paper now makes her eligible for state and national honors.

Women's Clubs Will Sponsor Clinics Here

General clinic and hearing and speech clinic sponsored by Thief River Falls women's clubs and Crippled Children services will be held Thursday, March 2, at United Methodist church in Thief River Falls for any Minnesota child under 21 years of age with history of premature birth, heart lesions, cystic fibrosis, convulsions, mental retardation, club feet, scoliosis and other physical handicaps, and with hearing or speech problems.

Appointments should be made two weeks before the clinic comes to town. The general clinic appointment chairman is Miss Bertha Hastad, 111 S. Kendall ave. Her telephone number is 681-4752.

Appointments chairman for the hearing and speech portion of the clinic is Mrs. Joe Dostal, Jr., 308 Conley ave. S. Her telephone number is 681-2581.

The general clinic and hearing and speech clinic are available to all families of handicapped children. There is no clinic charge. Children requiring periodic follow-up and whose parents cannot provide the necessary care may return to the clinic. Written referral from a physician is recommended for each new patient.

Examination and consultation services for each child will be provided by a pediatrician, orthopedist, octologist, audiologist, or a speech consultant. A report of their findings is sent to the family physician.

A public health nurse is in attendance to assist families in planning to carry out recommendations. A medical social worker is also available to help parents with any emotional, social or financial problems.

Treasurer Ready To Assist With Tax Credit Form

Certification of real estate taxes for qualified senior citizens seeking Minnesota real estate tax or rent credit can now be handled at the office of Ellsworth Jorgenson, Pennington county treasurer, in the courthouse in Thief River Falls.

While figures are now available, however, Jorgenson notes that there is no necessity for immediate haste since application for credit can be filed through June 30.

To be eligible for real estate tax or rent credit, applicants must have reached their 65th birthday on or before December 31, 1971; they must have lived in Minnesota for all of 1971; they must have had income of less than $5,000 from all sources during the year; and they must have owned or rented their place of residence in 1971.

If the applicant owns real estate, the county treasurer will fill out that portion of the application form certifying the real estate taxes due on that property. The individual making the application for credit must fill out the income portion of the form. Income includes social security payments, pension payments, wages, interest and other income. Persons figuring social security income should add $65.10 to the actual amount received to cover the monthly deductions made for medicare from their social security check.

If the applicant rents a place of residence, the treasurer will certify the amount of rent paid for occupancy only. Rent paid for application to utilities will not be counted. Again, the applicant must fill out the income portion of the application form himself or herself.

Forms were mailed to all persons who made application for credit a year ago. Others who did not receive forms in the mail may obtain them at the county treasurer's office. Persons who did receive forms are asked to use those particular forms whenever possible, since they contain special labels for use in computer processing.

RIGHT SEND-OFF

Here are a few tips for the woman and her family preparing for a winter vacation: 1) Make a list of what's in the suitcase, so you'll remember what to bring home. 2) Include a first aid kit. Whether you're going skiing, surfing or visiting, it will surely come in handy. 3) Don't forget to pack vitamins, aspirin, cold remedies and a convenient chewing gum laxative like Feen-A-Mint, which works when travel and unusual foods disrupt your system. 4) Secure the name and address of a reliable doctor in the town you'll be visiting. 5) If the trip is a long one, pack some easy-to-eat food for the journey, and a few games and toys to keep the children occupied.

their power. The erosion of power at all levels of local and state government is taking place at a rapid rate and the people are too complacent in allowing it to happen, he said.

There is something radically wrong with the way law is enforced and our courts are conducted, he added. Courts are often inefficient and it is usually difficult and often impossible to get ranking officials to act on matters that need action. Shaw blamed lack of career prosecutors—due primarily to low potential salaries—for much of the break-down in the court system.

He termed as "ridiculous" the $4,800 annual salary of legislators to handle a $3 billion budget. Legislators work without the benefit of the basic tools which the lowest corporate executive takes for granted—including secretarial help, privacy of an office and availability of research material or personnel.

Shaw deplored the long-established practice of ridiculing public officials and stereotyping them as lazy and corrupt. He said he was ashamed that newspapers often follow this practice. "This is not to say that criticism is not often justified," he said, "but I think we need to put an end to sneering at all politicians."

He encouraged emphasis on free institutions in the schools and suggested that students should be permitted or required to seek our courts and legislative bodies in session. "We have to emphasize to our children that there is no greater honor than to serve in elected public office," he said.

"If we don't strengthen them and make necessary changes, I'm afraid that our institutions will become just empty shells," Shaw said. "They will continue to run at half their potential, half their effectiveness. Laws on the books are nothing but empty words on paper. As a famous judge once said, 'Democracy must be enshrined in the hearts of the population'."

Head table guests included Sen. and Mrs. Donald Sinclair of Stephen and Rep. and Mrs. Richard Fitzsimons of Warren.

Telelecture On Nutrition Is Scheduled Here

So much information is available today about food, nutrition and health, it's difficult to determine what is myth and what is fact.

Pennington county residents who are interested in finding out the difference may attend an open meeting on Feb. 15 at 1:30 p.m. in the courthouse meeting room, Thief River Falls, on "Controversies in Nutrition", via telelecture.

Mary Darling, extension nutritionist at the University of Minnesota, will discuss many of the sources of nutrition information which may be a mixture of fact and fancy—from health spas, talk shows, paperbacks and magazines to advice from well meaning friends and relatives.

You may wonder, for example: Is all disease caused by faulty diet? Is our food supply overprocessed? Can that tired feeling by corrected with vitamins or other food supplement?

Since everyone is vulnerable to quackery, especially if he is seeking relief from suffering, it is easy to accept nutrition myths as fact, Miss Darling points out. The telelecture will include guidelines for evaluating nutrition information and a review of recommended books.

Pennington county is one of the large number of counties participating in this program. Each local installation will be equipped with a loudspeaking system, a microphone, projector and visual aids. A telephone hookup will connect the meeting room with the central studios on the St. Paul campus at the University of Minnesota where the university extension nutritionist will "broadcast" her lecture.

Following the lecture members of the audience may ask questions which are relayed to the lecturer. The discussion can be heard by participants at all stations.

The telelecture is sponsored by the university's agricultural extension service.

RRV History Group To Cite Students

Three outstanding high school history teachers and three outstanding high school history students in the Manitoba, Minnesota, North Dakota and South Dakota Red River Valley will be honored by the educators advisory council of the Red River Valley Historical society at the society's sixth annual spring awards dinner to be held Friday, April 28, at North Dakota state university in Fargo. Over 300 attended this event last year.

In addition, the educators advisory council is making available an annual outstanding high school history student award to each high school in the Red River Valley, to be presented by the individual school. From the individual high school winners, the top three history students in the valley will be selected.

Both the top three history students and the top three history teachers hall of fame annual winners, each year, will be selected by the officers and directors of the Red River Valley Historical society educators advisory council.

Officers and directors of the educators advisory council urge all high schools in the valley to participate in these rapidly growing youth programs and thus pay appropriate tribute to scholarship and excellence in the study and teaching of our heritage in each school. Nomination forms and awards program information may be obtained from Don Myrold, Executive Director, Red River Valley Historical Society, Minard Hall, North Dakota State University, Fargo, North Dakota 58102. All nominations must be submitted by April 1.

Educators advisory council sponsors these programs each year in order to encourage the study of, to focus attention on, and to maximize interest in the rich pioneer heritage of Red River land in Manitoba, Minnesota, North Dakota, and South Dakota; and in order to reward and draw public attention to exceptional achievement in the study and teaching of this heritage.

The recipient or recipients of this unique high school student award are selected by the administration and history faculty of each participating school. Criteria used in selection are:

1) The student should be in the 11th grade.

2) The student should have a record of outstanding achievement and genuine interest in the field of history through his or her entire school career.

3) The student should show evidence of a continuing concern and interest in the role and impact of history in the valley, the nation and the world, both past and present.

An attractive certificate of commendation is presented to the award winner at the school's spring awards program, or at some other appropriate or significant event. Every effort will be made to have the award presented by an officer or board member of the Red River Valley Historical society.

In addition, each winner's parents, teachers, principal, etc., will be recognized and honored at the annual Red River Valley Historical society spring awards dinner, held each year in a central location in the valley. Each award winner will have his or her name listed in the awards dinner official honors program.

Bergland Shocked At Defeat Of Grain Bill Act

In a broadcast originating from Washington, U.S. Rep. Bob Bergland expressed "shock and dismay" over the defeat in the Senate agriculture committee Wednesday of the grain reserves act and its provision to increase the price support loan rate on the 1971-72 wheat and feed grain crops.

Bergland, who helped guide the legislation through the House of Representatives, also accused Agriculture Secretary Earl Butz of "cutting a deal with the Cotton South" to assure the bills defeat.

In his attack on the secretary and "Southern members of my own party" the 7th District Congressman said, "They must learn that crops other than cotton are grown in these United States and that other farmers deserve the same right to an income high enough to allow them to remain on their land. While I do not advocate the politics of revenge," Bergland continued, "I have served notice to my Southern colleagues that all future cotton bills will come under the closest scrutiny."

Looking to the immediate future Bergland, who is "exploring new avenues to raise prices", called on the secretary of agriculture to "intervene and give meaningful relief to our hard pressed grain farmers." He emphasized that the secretary "has the power, by law, to raise the price support loan rate to levels even higher than those provided by the bill.

"It was only the secretary's stubborn refusal to accept any increase in prices which led us to introduce legislation which would require him to do so," he noted. "It is my plea to the secretary—and I ask each of you to join in this plea—that he come to his senses, use the power he has and do something positive about the disastrous price situation," Bergland concluded.

Venereal Disease Program Slated In Bloomington

Venereal disease in the United States has reached epidemic proportions. The 1971 projections for Minnesota alone show 6,025 reported cases of gonorrhea, a staggering 323 per cent increase since 1960.

A one-day program titled "The Health Professional and Venereal Disease Education" will be held Sunday, February 6, at the Sheraton Motor Inn in Bloomington.

Designed to provide concise, accurate information about venereal disease—its prevention, recognition and treatment—the program also is aiming at developing an understanding of the need for education on venereal disease for young people, the general public and health professionals.

Topics to be discussed by national and local experts include "The Disease Called Gonorrhea," "The Disease Called Syphilis," "Related Diseases" and "Prevention: A Multi-Faceted Problem."

Beginning at 4:35 p.m., a series of mini-workshops will take place. Participants may select three areas of interest to them.

The program is sponsored by the general extension division of the University of Minnesota, Minnesota department of health and the Minnesota Pharmaceutical association.

The seminar is aimed mainly at health professionals but others who have an interest in venereal-disease education may attend.

Fee for the course is $20. For further information or to register contact Director, Continuing Pharmacy Education, Nolte Center, University of Minnesota, Minneapolis, Minn., 55455; phone: (612) 373-2186.

MPCA Extends Deadline For State Retailers

Grant J. Merritt, executive director of the Minnesota pollution control agency (MPCA), has announced a deadline extension from February 15 to March 1 for some 3,700 statewide retailers to post a list showing the phosphorus content of laundry and dishwashing products they sell.

Merritt said results of an agency mailing on January 17 announcing the February 15 deadline and containing the names and phosphorus content of more than 350 products indicated that about 50 products are now being marketed in Minnesota which have not been certified to the agency as to phosphorus content. He said the Agency has written the manufacturers of the 50 some products asking for certification of phosphorus content in the products, but that it would probably take an extra two weeks to obtain the information, which would then be forwarded by the agency to the retailers.

A 1971 state law forbids the sale of household laundry and dishwashing products unless the phosphorus content of each has been certified to the MPCA by the manufacturer. The act also requires that no such product be sold unless a list containing the product name and its phosphorus content is prominently displayed near the product display.

Minn. Senators Issue Statement On Duluth Plant

Senators Hubert H. Humphrey and Walter F. Mondale Friday issued the following statement on the U. S. Steel corporation's announcement that it will close part of its Duluth, Minnesota plant, affecting 1,600 workers:

We are deeply disappointed that the United States Steel corporation has seen fit to announce today that the "hot" side of the Duluth steel plant will be closed permanently.

Neither the employees of the plant, the city of Duluth, nor the State of Minnesota deserve this kind of treatment. The employees are among the most outstanding in the nation. The people of the city of Duluth are doing everything they can to make it possible for U.S. Steel to modernize the Duluth steel plant, and the Governor of the state of Minnesota has indicated his willingness to support legislation which will make the modernization of the plant economical.

Furthermore, the state of Minnesota already has passed a constitutional amendment which provides substantial assistance to the taconite industry—an amendment which was passed in large measure on the assumption that U. S. Steel would continue to process iron ore into steel in the city of Duluth.

We call on the United States Steel corporation to reconsider its decision and to meet in good faith with the governor's committee and to outline to that committee steps that can be taken by the city, the state and the federal government that will insure the modernization of the Duluth plant.

We have given and will continue to give any help we can to insure the continued operation of the Duluth steel plant and to assist in the diversification of industry in Duluth.

The United States Steel corporation must realize that it has a profound obligation to the people of Northeastern Minnesota.

Interprovincial Pipe Line Co. Reports Income

Interprovincial Pipe Line company announced today that consolidated unaudited net income for 1971 amounted to $35.6 million, equivalent to $1.40 per share. In 1970 the company earned $29.5 million or $1.16 per share.

Crude oil and natural gas liquids delivered by the system in 1971 averaged 977,350 barrels per day, 8.5 per cent more than the 900,010 barrels per day averaged in 1970.

The company also announced that consistent with its policy of adjusting tariffs as throughputs and earning warrant, effective April 1, 1972, it is reducing its short haul rates by amounts varying from .6 cents to 2 cents per barrel and its long haul rates by 1 cents per barrel. This is the fifth time the company has reduced its tariffs since commencing operations in 1950 and they have never been increased.

At their meeting today, the board of directors also increased the quarterly dividend by one cent per share. The March 1, 1972, dividend will be paid at the rate of 23 cents per share to shareholders of record on February 7.

Watchdog Group Will Sniff Out Corporate Farms

Red Lake county Farmers Union has established a countywide "watchdog committee" designed to assure compliance with a state law requiring all corporations engaged in farming in the state to register with the secretary of state.

The registration law was adopted by the 1971 Minnesota Legislature and was favored by Farmers Union although the organization also recommended the imposition of strong controls on farming activities by corporations.

A committee of five members was appointed by Alvin Fore of Oklee, chairman of the Farmers Union county organization.

The county group will coordinate its activities with a statewide task force on corporate farming, recently established by Cy Carpenter, acting president of Minnesota Farmers Union.

Serving on the county watchdog unit will be: Robert W. Larson, Crookston, chairman; Leslie Flage, Lake Falls; Leverne Berget, Oklee; Wesley Myhre, Brooks; and Mrs. Oscar Lunke, Plummer.

"The county watchdog committee will be activated after March 15 and will check to see whether any known corporate farming operations had failed or refused to register with the state," chairmen Fore explained.

He noted that the number of corporate farms in the state had nearly doubled from 1968 to 1971 and the registration law may bring out more instances.

Dental Health Week Scheduled February 6-12

Minnesota department of health advises Minnesotans that "Happiness is a healty month," especially during the 23rd annual observance of National Children's Dental Health week, February 6-12, 1972. The American Dental association and the Minnesota Dental association annually sponsor the week to remind children—and parents—of the importance of good dental health all year long.

Vincent Pugnier, D.D.S., acting chief of the state health department's section of dental health, agrees with the American Dental association that "The relationship of good dental health to good general health is highly important. For this reason, it is imperative to develop good oral hygiene habits in childhood, so that they carry over into adulthood."

Dr. Pugnier suggested that parents teach their children the basics of home oral hygiene, which he outlined:

Brush your teeth after eating. Food and other debris in the mouth work with bacteria to form plaque, a colorless substance which clings to teeth and which is a major factor in decay and gum disease. Interruption of the plaque-forming process is all important to healthy teeth and supporting tissues.

Use dental floss to interrupt the plaque formation between the teeth where the toothbrush can't reach. The family dentist can show you the proper flossing technique to achieve effectiveness while not injuring the gums.

Cut down on sweets, because carbohydrates are a major cause of tooth decay. Be sure to eat an adequate diet.

Drink fluoridated water to prevent decay. If the water supplies are not fluoridated, the dentist will suggest applying fluoride directly on the teeth at certain intervals in the child's development.

Have regular dental check-ups for the entire family. The dentist can check to see that there is no plaque build-up, no beginning decay and can correct any dental problems they may be in their early stages.

Dr. Pugnier stressed that "every family that follows these important oral hygiene practices faithfully will have good dental health for a lifetime."

DNR Changes Will Please Merchants Selling To State

Commissioner Robert Herbst has announced that the Department of Natural Resources is modifying its fiscal procedures following a recently completed intensive study, and with approval of the Department of Administration, state auditor and public examiner.

Establishment of local bank accounts to pay bills at regional headquarters has already saved volumes of paper work for Department of Natural Resources personnel at one headquarters and greatly speeded payment of bills to local merchants.

Called an "imprest cash" fund, the system was first installed at the department's regional headquarters at Brainerd. It permits the payment of some bills incurred by the headquarters without the need of funneling invoices, forms and other 'paper' through the department's central headquarters in St. Paul.

Under the old method, a merchant would have to wait until the paper work was processed in St. Paul and a check for his goods or services to be sent to him from the department's fiscal section.

This often takes eight to 10 weeks or even longer. Under the imprest cash system, most bills get paid within 10 days.

The result is vastly improved relations with local merchants, a greater interest on their part in doing business with the state, and a savings to the taxpayer resulting from discounts on department purchases.

Since being initiated at Brainerd on July 1, 1970, about 4,000 checks have been issued by the regional headquarters covering some $100,000 in bills for goods and services.

Starting March 1, the imprest cash system will be installed at Bemidji.

Department officials estimate that when all five regional headquarters are established, about 50,000 items of "paper" will be eliminated. This comprises approximately one fourth to one third of all the paper processed at the fiscal section in St. Paul.

Also 'in the mill' is a complete revamping of fiscal procedures in the St. Paul central headquarters.

When this is accomplished, it is expected that even large bills can be paid within 30 days. Other benefits and savings will be realized through the elimination of duplication.

Robert Herbst, Commissioner of Natural Resources, said the fiscal changes and regionalization "represent a continuing effort on the part of the Department to reduce costs and improve resource management, and is in accordance with Governor Anderson's Department conference at Arrowood to stress improvement in government operations."

Prowlers Clobber Eagles 13-0 In Region 8 Action

Thief River Falls refered to the saying, "double your pleasure, double your fun," last night as the Prowlers scored goals in pairs to humble Red Lake Falls 13-0 in the sports arena.

The Prowlers seemed to score at will in the first period against the out-manned Eagles as they erupted for an 8-0 lead after the first 15 minutes. A change of Eagle goalies and Prowler line-up changes found the Lincoln skaters scoring just once in the second stanza before adding four more goals in the final period.

Junior center Jeff Bottem opened the game's scoring just 1:33 into the contest as he skated in on Eagle netminder Lex Prenevost and slipped the puck past the committed sophomore on an assist from linemate Tom Goddard. Just 27 seconds and one shot later senior wing Rory Anderson put the Prowlers on top 2-0 with a slow backhand that crept under the screened Prenevost. Jon Jensen was given an assist of the scoring play.

The next two Prowler goals were spaced just 1:15 apart as junior wing John Wangberg fired home both scoring shots for a 4-0 lead with 8:13 remaining in the first period. Wangberg's first goal came with 9:02 left as he slipped behind the defense and flipped the puck into the high right corner of the net. Goddard earned an assist on the goal. The fourth Prowler score was set up by a perfect centering pass by Bottem as Wangberg again flipped the puck high up into the net from close range.

Individualism then took over the Prowlers as they scored four straight unassisted goals. Senior center Mike Hamilton's quick backhand from an odd angle on the left side set the Prowlers up with a 5-0 lead with 2:52 remaining.

Two more goals, spaced just 28 seconds apart, lifted the Prowlers to a 7-0 lead. Jensen's backhand blast from 15 feet and senior Don Brown's close range wrist shot were both unassisted tallies.

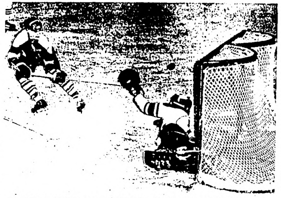
Freshman Alan Stokke took over the Eagle goaltending chores and kicked out 15 Prowler shots in a lackluster second period as a number of Prowler skaters saw extended ice time for the first time.

Tom Goddard tipped in a Jeff Bottem blast for a 9-0 Prowler lead with 11:45 remaining in the second period for the only score of the stanza.

The Prowlers went back to their double-score thing again in the third period as Goddard and Hamilton scored within 24 seconds of each other. Goddard poked in a rebound on assists from Bottem and Wangberg, and with Ted Hellie still announcing the Prowlers' tenth goal, Hamilton broke open for a clean breakaway and an 11-0 bulge with 12:36 left in the game.



JON MARKSTROM'S close range shot sailed inches wide of the Red Lake Falls net during last night's game in the Thief River Falls arena. The Prowlers outshot the Eagles 45-9 in the game as LHS goalies Pete Sullivan and Stan Ehrenstrom combined to give the Prowlers their first shutout of the 1971-72 season. The Prowlers will be back in action tomorrow night (Thursday) when they host East Grand Forks and Saturday night against Roseau in the sports arena.

The final two Prowler goals came within 42 seconds of each other as senior wing Larry Sampson notched his first goal of the year when he tipped in Gary Burstad's pass with 43 seconds remaining in the game.

Prowler captain Mike Protz finished the game's scoring with a 15-foot blast from the left side with one second showing on the scoreboard clock. Hamilton and Anderson received assists on Protz' goal.

Prowler goalies Pete Sullivan and Stan Ehrenstrom were forced to make just nine stops the entire game. Ehrenstrom took over the netminding duties at the outset of the second period and had to make just two saves in the second stanza and none in the final period. Youthful Eagle goalies Prenevost and Stokke kicked out 32 Prowler shots.

JUNIOR WING John Wangberg flips the puck past fallen Red Lake Falls goalie Lex Prenevost for the Prowlers' fourth goal in the first period of last night's region eight game in the Thief River Falls sports arena. Wangberg, along with Tom Goddard and Mike Hamilton, scored two goals in the lopsided 13-0 triumph. The win raised the Prowler season record to 10-4, including seven straight victories.

LHS Skaters Face EGF, Roseau In Region Tilts

Lincoln high school will be seeking its eighth straight hockey victory tomorrow night (Thursday) when the Prowlers host region eight rival East Grand Forks in the Thief River Falls sports arena. Game time will be 8 o'clock, with junior varsity action scheduled for a 6:15 start.

The Prowlers will also see duty Saturday night when they host Roseau in the city arena for an important, region eight showdown.

Coach John Schmitz' icemen have not lost a game since a 3-2 loss to powerful Anoka December 28 in the Roseau holiday tournament. Since that one-point loss, the Prowlers defeated St. Paul Hill (3-2) in the second game of the tournament and then went the entire month of January without tasting defeat as they beat Bemidji(4-2), Roseau (4-2), Warroad (10-3), Grand Forks Central (5-3), Hallock (3-2), and Tuesday night added Red Lake Falls to their list of victims.

The surging Prowlers will be facing an improving East Grand Forks team that has won four of its last five games, upping the Green Wave record to 6-9 for the season. Among the "East Side" victories were wins over Crookston Cathedral, Moorhead, Superior Central, Red River, Roseau and Baudette. Losses have come at the hands of Grand Forks Central (twice), Thief River Falls, Fargo North, Fargo South, Grafton, Bemidji, Duluth Central and Warroad.

Top scoring threats for the Wave include senior wings Dale Pesch and Lynn Olson, along with junior center Dave Flom. Veteran Gordy Hangsleben guards the "East Side" nets, with senior Bill Mero anchoring the blueliners.

Terry Abram will bring his Roseau squad into the city arena Saturday night with the Rams looking for revenge from a 4-2 loss to the Prowlers two weeks ago.

The Rams have suffered through a dismal 5-10 season at this stage of the schedule. The Rams stunned Anoka 4-3 in their holiday tournament and added wins over St. Paul Park (5-4), Hallock (6-2) and twice over Baudette. Ram losses have come at the hands of Crookston Central (3-1), Grand Forks Red River (7-3), Minneapolis Southwest (9-1), St. Paul Hill (1-0), International Falls (5-4), Warroad (6-5), Bemidji (4-1), East Grand Forks (4-2), Grand Forks Central (3-2), and Thief River Falls.

Top scoring threats for the Rams are forwards Rick Vatnsdal, Tim Fevold and Mike Hallie. The defensive play is led by seniors Dana Byfuglien and Arlan Tviet, while Willard Comstock plays the nets.

The region eight hockey standings as of January 30 are as follows:

North Half

	w	l	pct.
TRF	7	1	.875
Warroad	10	3	.769
Baudette	8	6	.571
Indus	8	7	.533
Hallock	4	10	.285
Roseau	3	8	.272
RLF	0	10	.000

South Half

	w	l	pct.
Bemidji	9	1	.900
Crookston	11	2	.846
Detroit Lakes	11½	4½	.718
EGF	5	3	.625
Moorhead	5½	8½	.392
Fergus Falls	3	8	.272
Brainerd	1	6	.142
Alexandria	1	9	.100

The standings are based on a won-lost point system, not on the team's record. A team is awarded one point in the standings for a win against a team it plays twice during the year, and two points for a win against a team it plays just once. Standings are determined by percentage of points won compared with points played for.

Enrollment in the Work Incentive Program (WIN), rose from 90,000 at the beginning of fiscal year 1971 to 109,000 as year's end. This growth in on-board strength was steady throughout the year, each month's figure rising above that of the preceding month.

Prowler-Pirate Showdown Set Friday In LHS Gym

Crookston Pirates will invade Thief River Falls Friday night for a key Big Five Conference basketball game in the Lincoln high school gym. Crookston, along with Thief River Falls and East Grand Forks, top the Big Five standings with all three clubs holding 4-1 league records.

The Pirates are 8-3 for the season, with wins over the Prowlers, Warren, Fisher, Climax (twice), Grafton, Ada and Fosston. Crookston losses have been to Breckenridge, Devils Lake and East Grand Forks.

Crookston is headed by an all-senior starting line-up which finds Doug LaFriniere (5-11) and Dave Hovelsrud (6-1) at the guards, Scott Youngquist (6-2) and Gary Wagner (6-1) at the forwards and Dwight Lindquist (6-3) at center. Juniors Chuck Potter (5-9), Dave Dahlberg (6-5) and Dave Brockemeier (6-3) also see extended action for the Pirates.

The Prowlers are 10-4 for the season, including back to back conference triumphs over Warren and Climax. Prowler head coach Lee Swanson was happy to report that for the first time this season his entire squad should be healthy for a game. That would find the starting line-up consisting of juniors Ordean Peterson (6-2) and Kent Smith (6-1) at the guards, junior Jeff Rhoden (6-3) and senior Tom Kays (6-2) at the forwards and senior Rande Smith (6-5) at center.

"We have a lot of respect for Crookston," stated Swanson. "We know they're capable of hurting you, but we're capable of beating them if we play the caliber of ball we did against East Side."

The two schools have played each other 121 times since their rivalry began in the 1915-16 season with the Prowlers winning 81 and losing 40. But the Pirates have won the last two, including an 81-77 triumph at Crookston this season when the Pirates overcame a 10-point Thief River Falls third quarter lead.

The Prowlers will also see action Saturday night when they travel to Fosston for an 8 o'clock game against the Greyhounds. "Fosston has a good club," reported Swanson. "They're playing about .500 ball, but they played East Grand Forks and Crookston real though before losing. They have a couple of fine individuals on the team, and I'm sure we'll have our hands full.

Junior varsity action will start at 6:15 each night.

JC Skaters Host Tech Tonight

Swede Lund's Northland junior college hockey squad will host Crookston Tech in the Thief River Falls sports arena tonight (Wednesday) beginning at 7:30.

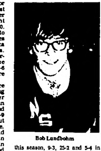
The Northmen will be trying to bounce back from two losses suffered at the hands of Itasca last weekend in the city arena. The double loss dropped Northland into third place in the MJCAA standings with an 8-6 league mark. The Northmen are 9-6 overall.

Itasca leads the conference with a 9-1 record, while defending state champion Rainy River holds down second place with an 8-5 league mark. After Northland stands Lakewood with a 3-9 record and Hibbing rounds out the conference with a 1-9 slate.

The Vikings from Itasca lead the league in scoring with an average of 8.1 goals per game in conference play. Northland and Rainy River score an average of 6.8 goals a game while Lakewood carries a 5.4 average and last place Hibbing scores at a 4.9 clip. Northland and Rainy River give up the foewest goals per game, 4.8. Itasca gives up an average of 4.9, Lakewood 8.3 and Hibbing 8.5

After tonight's game against Crookston, Northland will travel to the Iron Range for a four-game series against Mesabi and Itasca before hosting Rainy River February 11 and 12.

Northland has already defeated Crookston three times this season, 9-3, 25-2 and 5-4 in overtime. This is Crookston's first season of intercollegiate hockey, and Northland's second.



Bob Lundbohm

Sophomore center Bob Lundbohm continues to lead the club in scoring with 21 goals, 23 assists and 44 points in 15 games this season.

Northland Cagers Face Mesabi, Vermilion In Weekend Games

Northland state junior college basketball team will see double duty this weekend as the Northmen host Mesabi Friday night and Vermilion Saturday afternoon in a pair of MJCAA conference games.

Northland split against the two Iron Range schools earlier this season, losing to Vermilion 63-71 at Ely, but beating Mesabi 95-93 in overtime at Virginia.

Friday night's game against Mesabi will have a 7:30 starting time while the Vermilion contest will begin at 2 o'clock Saturday afternoon.

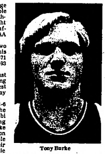
Mesabi carries just a 3-6 Northeast Divison record, but the Norsemen are 8-8 overall. Mesabi boasts of some outstanding scorers in Neil McKenzie, Mike Mihelich, Rick Thoreson and Don LaLond. All four scored in double figures against Northland in their earlier meeting, with McKenzie getting 22. Two new men will probably appear in the Mesabi line-up with 6-6 Dan McKay and 6-3 Jeff Norsted working their way into the starting five.

Against Vermilion, the Northmen will be facing the number one defensive team in region 13. The Ironmen give up just 65.5 points per game; a figure that ranks as eleventh best in the nation.

The Ironmen also have the region's sixth leading scorer in 6-5 forward Dick Weber who is averaging 22.8 points per game. The Vermilion squad is the defending Northeast Division champion and the Ironmen currently stand 8-1 in conference play for a wide lead over second place Hibbing. Vermilion is 11-2 overall this season.

The Ironmen graduated two All-Conference selections this year, but three starters return, along with Weber and Larry Potter, two of the top high school prospects in northern Minnesota last season. Vermilion is led in rebounding by 6-5, 250-pound center Tom Marinaro, while 6-0 guard Rick Anderson also plays an important role in the attack. Potter was an All-State selection on the state champion Duluth Central squad last year.

Northland carries a 9-10 season record at this stage of the year, including a 3-6 Northwest Division mark. Northland is averaging 88.5 points per game as a team and is giving up 84.2 points a game. The squad is shooting 47.1 from the field and opponents have combined for a 47.2 per cent mark. The Northmen show a 60.6 performance from the free throw line after 19 games, compared to their opponents 64.5 mark. Northland holds a 910-748 rebound advantage.



Tony Burke

Northland sophomore center Tony Burke ranks among the top scorers in the region, holding a 21.3 average. Burke ranks seventh in average, but leads everyone in total points with 405. In last Saturday's 82-75 win over Rainy River, Burke broke a school record for field goals in a single season with 174.

Fabulous Magicians Play Basketball Here

Lincoln high school junior and senior classes will sponsor a basketball game putting the Thief River Falls coaches against the Fabulous Magicians in the LHS gym on Monday, February 14, at 7:30.

The Magicians are a sound basketball team and one that excels in the shooting department, as well as being funny. Having great comic routines to go along with the dribbling skills of the famed Marquis Haynes and the amazing scoring by Eugene "Sugarfoot" Johnson, the Magicians add tactical skill as well as lots of fun and laughs to a basketball game.

Fans who have watched the Magicians in previous seasons know they shouldn't leave their seats until the final gun sounds. The team, under the fantastic hand of Haynes, is working on a current record of over 5,000 wins against only 9 losses; a string that includes an 857 game consecutive winning streak.

Haynes is considered by most competent observers to be the finest dribbler and ball handler in the history of professional basketball. He leads the 40 minutes of court skill into a comedy and crowd pleasing routine that makes the last minute of their performance as entertaining as the opening moments of the game.

There is no shot the squad can't make. The ball-handling and play formations, both on offense and defense, looks simple in the hands of such standouts as Haynes, Josh Grinder, Ken Scott, Art Steele and "Sugarfoot."

Although the Magicians excel in comic antics on the court, don't overlook their genuine basketball skills either. Led by Steele and Scott, the team carries an amazing points per game average. Steele is a 6-7 product by way of Mississippi Valley college and is the Magicians' top rebounder. Steele also has his own comical routines, such as dunking two basketballs at the same time.

The admonition to stay around until the final bell is worth heeding because "Sugarfoot" might elect to bounce the ball through the hoop at the buzzer, or Grinder, the famed set-shot star, might hit one of his home runs from the middle of the court.

Advance tickets for the event will be $1.50 for adults, $1 for senior and junior high students and 50 cents for children under 12. Tickets at the door will be $1.75, $1.25 and 75 cents. Advance tickets are available at all Thief River Falls schools, including the junior college and vocational school, as well as at Larson Music, Model Barber Shop, Corner Drug, Ekeren Drug and J & B Drug.

Otter Tail Co. Earned Revenue Of $38,138,144

"The fact that our company's revenues and earnings increased in 1971 will make it easier for us to attract investment funds to finance our largest expansion program in history," Otter Tail Power company president Al Hartl told the directors of his company meeting in Fergus Falls last week.

Hartl went on to report to the directors that 1971 operating revenues were $38,138,144 compared with $34,456,729 in 1970. Net income in 1971 was $4,860,734, up from $4,098,432 in 1970. Earnings per share of common stock were $2.21 in 1971 and $1.88 in 1970.

Accounting for more than half of the company's record $93 million construction program in the five-year period 1972 through 1976 will be the company's 47.5 per cent share of the $120 million Big Stone power plant to be constructed by Otter Tail and two other power companies in northeastern South Dakota.

In the same five-year period the company will require more than $104 million from outside and internal sources to finance the construction program, provide for the retirement of maturing bonds and meet other company financial obligations.

"I'm confident that we will be able to successfully carry out the necessary financings to expand our electric system to keep pace with the growing demands of our customers," Hartl said. "Our current strong financial condition will help us earn the confidence of the investors as we compete in the money markets with other corporations from all parts of the nation for the funds necessary to carry out this expansion."

Sub-Committee Will View State Wildlife Project

A legislative sub-committee will be in the field February 9-11 viewing forest wildlife habitat improvement projects of the Department of Natural Resources it was announced today by Commissioner Robert Herbst.

At the regular 1971 legislative session the department received an appropriation of $100,000 from the game and fish fund. Another $500,000 was earmarked in the contingency fund during the special session, but approval of the legislative advisory committee is needed before this money can be appropriated.

To date, the LAC has released $180,000 for projects: $100,000 to improve deer habitat, $50,000 for upland game and waterfowl, and $30,000 for fisheries.

During the tour, the sub-committee will join DNR officials in examining projects in the counties of Aitkin, Carlton, Cass, Crow Wing, Itasca, Pine and St. Louis.

Projects include sites where shearing, dozing and prescribed burning have been used to manage forest vegetation to benefit deer and grouse.

Other projects include temporary roads to help in the logging of isolated timber stands near deer yards to encourage growth of new deer browse.

The sub-commitee will also view winter fish rescue operations and other fisheries projects.

Many of the projects are a cooperative effort on the part of the department's divisions of lands and forestry and game and fish. Federal and county forestry agencies and private landowners have also cooperated on the program.

On Thursday, Feb. 10 at 7:30 p.m., a public meeting will be held at the Hotel Duluth to answer questions from sportsmen and others interested in the forest wildlife program.

Hearing Set To Fix BWCA Rules

Department of Natural Resources has scheduled a public hearing in Ely on Thursday, Feb. 24, to hear testimony on a proposed amendment to its regulation banning the transporting of non-reuseable food and beverage containers across state lands and water in the Boundary Waters Canoe area.

The hearing will be held at 10 a.m. in the court room at the city hall at Ely; however, written testimony will also be accepted from now until March 15 regarding the proposed changes.

Such testimony should be sent to the Department of Natural Resources, commissioner's office, Centennial office building, St. Paul.

Present regulations provide that reuseable food and beverage containers may be transported across state lands and water inside the BWCA provided that all such containers, food, equipment and other objects brought in the BWCA must be packed out if not completely burned. They may not be buried in the BWCA.

The proposed amendment would exempt until Jan. 1, 1976, those who hold reserved property rights to use certain lands within the BWCA for residential, scientific, educational or other non-commercial purposes.

Also to be exempted from the regulations are the operators of the Loon river and Beatty mechanical portages who are located on lands leased from the state.

Farm Leaders Try To Halt Railroad Cuts

Ninety - member Minnesota task force of farm and agri business leaders, armed with a spokesman for Governor Wendell R. Anderson and state government, will visit the nation's capital this week to try to head off pending cuts in rural railroad service.

Heading the delegation will be Agriculture Commissioner Jon Wefald and Minnesota agri-gowth council president and former state agriculture commissioner Russel G. Schwandt.

Other members of the task force will include farm organization spokesmen, small town businessmen, bankers and representatives of the news media.

While the current concern focuses primarily on opposition to the applications by the Chicago and North Western and Burlington Northern railroads to discontinue freight service to 20 rural Minnesota communities, one of the spokesmen indicated a bigger objective.

"Our real goal is to convince federal authorities that a total national moratorium is needed on any further reductions in rural rail service, in the general public interest as well as being vital to the national government's present commitment to rural development," insisted Commissioner Wefald.

Schwandt agreed with Wefald that "decent and consistent rail service is as essential to the rural community as the need for fair farm prices."

The task force will inform federal authorities that the proposed abandonments now pending before the Interstate Commerce commission "will deny the 20 Minnesota communities a balanced and competitive commercial transportation service, increase transportation costs for farmers and small town businessmen and unnecessarily shift a heavy freight volume to the public highways, adding to both safety and maintenance problems."

Commissioner Wefald said the "curious railroad maneuvers are now driving the wrong kind of spikes—that will result in making an economic coffin for rural America—by cutting service to the nation's biggest industry, agriculture.

"The railroads are vital to the economy of the state and nation. It is absolutely essential that we maintain the rail service to these rural communities. Congress is going to have to take whatever steps are necessary to see that railroads maintain the rural branch lines, and if this means additional subsidies to the railroads these will have to be made."

Commissioner Wefald declared "consumers have a big stake in this issue, too. Any withdrawal of rail services will mean a less competitive transportation system and increased freight rates that always are passed along to the consumer."

Schwandt added that the fate of several small businesses in rural Minnesota is resting on the decision by the Interstate Commerce commission on the present applications by the Chicago and North Western and Burlington Northern railroads.

He cited the proposed abandonment of the Chicago and North Western freight track between his home city of Sanborn and Wanda as one example. On the basis of 1966 assurances by a railroad official and April 12, 1971, renewal by the railroad of the lease to the Farmers Elevator cooperative at Wanda, the cooperative members approved an over $200,000 expenditure for a new corn unit. The unit was completed and put into operation last October.

Bert Bellig of Sanborn, vice chairman of the Wanda elevator board, who will be in Minnesota's task force to Washington next week, said the planned abandonments of rural rail freight tracks will particularly jeopardize the grain elevators, along with agricultural fertilizer plants and other rural service businesses that must handle a heavy volume of freighted merchandise. He charges that a shift to truck hauling of grain will bypass many of the rural elevators.

Minnesota's task force plans a strategy meeting with the state's Congressional delegation on arrival in Washington on Tuesday, February 1. Federal agencies on the subsequent agenda will include the Interstate Commerce commission and the departments of agriculture and transportation. The group plans to remain in Washington at least two days, with a third day reserved if needed to complete lobbying efforts against the pending rail service cutbacks.

Farmers Work At Slave Wages, Says Wefald

"Low farm prices are keeping farmers in a slave labor economy," Minnesota Agriculture Commissioner Jon Wefald charged today, recommending federal action to assure farmers "a decent minimum wage".

He said the average Minnesota farm family—as a unit—is earning only about 84 cents an hour, when net farm income is computed on the same basis as industrial and trades wage schedules.

"And that handsome 84 cents includes government subsidy payments," Commissioner Wefald noted.

That earning rate compares with official reports that hired Minnesota farm workers received an average of $1.80 in 1971, and $1.69 in 1970, or with the average factory worker in Minnesota who received $3.88 per hour in December, 1971.

"I am not saying that the hired farm worker or the factory worker are overpaid. But I am saying the average farm family is shockingly underpaid, and without any consideration for either their tremendous investment or efficiency," he added.

The 84 cents an hour figure was computed from official farm income and man-hour statistics compiled by state and federal government agencies, and is based on the fact that average net income per farm in 1970 was $5,371, or $103.29 per week. (The 1971 net farm income estimate will not be available until late July.)

Monthly figures on the work hours of Minnesota farm families for 1971 indicated that the operator averaged 50.2 hours per week, although he worked as long as 59.8 hours per week in the peaks of planting and harvest, and as few as 37.8 hours in the non-field work weeks of the winter months.

Added to the operator's labor is an average of 32 hours per week by other members of the family. That boosts the average farm family work week to 82.2 hours, year-around including Sundays and holidays.

To equate the family hourly rate on the same basis as industry workers who get overtime pay for over 40 hours, the 82.2 farm work hours was adjusted. Even disallowing overtime factors, Commissioner Wefald noted, the average farm family is earning only $1.25 an hour.

Weather Hurt Honey Producers In Minnesota

Unfavorable weather conditions for Minnesota's bee industry in 1971 reduced honey production 38 per cent, dropped this state one notch to third in U.S. rankings, and cut gross farm income from honey and beeswax by $881,000, reports Agriculture Commissioner Jon Wefald.

Minnesota's 1971 honey production totaled 12,168,000 pounds, or only 62 per cent of the 1970 output, according to the state-federal crop and livestock reporting service of the Minnesota department of agriculture. Only Montana experienced a sharper reduction, 52 per cent of 1970 production.

Value of the crop, including 195,000 pounds of beeswax or 56 per cent of the prior year's total, is estimated at $2,441,000, compared to 1970 value of $3,322,000.

California moved ahead of Minnesota into second place in U.S. honey production rankings and was the only state among the top five to report an increase for 1971. Top ranked Florida produced 89 per cent as much honey in 1971 as it did in 1970.

Highest honey prices nationally since 1947 helped offset an even more serious economic blow to that industry. Minnesota producers received an average price of 19.1 cents per pound, compared to 16 cents in 1970. The U.S. price average last year was 21.9 cents. Lower prices here put Minnesota fifth in value of the 1971 honey crop.

Weather was the biggest factor in Minnesota's honey production and income cuts. The average yield of honey per colony of bees last year dropped to 78 pounds, compared to 110 pounds in 1970. However, the total number of colonies also dropped to 156,000 or 21,000 less than for the previous year.

About 55 per cent of Minnesota's honey production is by apiaries operating 300 or more colonies of bees. Minnesota has 79,000 colonies in this phase of commercial honey production and the average yield last year was 83 pounds per colony, six pounds above the state industry average. California, Florida and South Dakota rank ahead of Minnesota and Wisconsin in honey production by the large commercial apiaries.

University Reduces Its Own Programs

By Bill Huntzicker
University News Service

In the military, "R and R" means rest and recuperation.

But at the University of Minnesota, the initials are taking on just the opposite meaning. At the university, "R and R" now stands for retrenchment and reallocation, a new budgeting process which may lead to an unprecedented shake-up in the academic community.

Facing a reduction in resources and feeling a need for change, university officials devised a plan to trim existing programs to finance new and revised ones.

The total cut will amount to six per cent of the $65 million instructional budget. About $2 million or three per cent of the budget has been reallocated to colleges within the university and substantial changes in programs have resulted.

The institute of technology (IT), for example, was cut $551,000 with $276,000 restored to the college after it convinced the administration, a university senate committee and the regents that the funds would be used for innovative and necessary programs. The other $276,000 was retrenched to central administration.

"I.T. was hit hard by the retrenchment coupled with a reduction in federal research money," according to I.T. Dean Richard A. Swalin. "The five per cent across-the-board cut last year (after the legislature) hit all non-essentials. The decline in resources is clearly beginning to cut into the operation."

The largest I.T. budget cut this year was in the chemistry department, which lost $90,000. Some $65,000 was trimmed from geology and $59,000 from aerospace engineering and mechanics. Reallocated funds totalling $33,000 were given to architecture and $10,500 to computer science departments.

Of the three per cent retrenchment which is reverted to the administration, 2.5 per cent will be reallocated by the administration with the advice of the university senate consultative committee. One-half per cent is lost by cuts in the university's requests to the 1971 legislature.

Decisions have not yet been made about where central administration funds will go. Each college and unit has listed its priorities for funds in case they are chosen to receive centrally reallocated money.

I.T. for example, has requested $63,000 for physics, $47,000 for astronomy and $75,500 for computer science. Swalin said these departments were hardest hit by cuts in federal funds. They also serve large numbers of students who are majoring in fields outside the institute, thus can be aided by all-University funds, he said.

In the college of liberal arts (CLA), R and R has been more controversial. CLA was reallocated $414,000 and sent $405,000 to central administration.

The entire budgets of the natural and social science programs were eliminated. In the case of natural science, the director is retiring and the courses could be taught in I.T., according to John G. Turnbull, CLA associate dean.

Turnbull said the humanities program was cut 32 per cent. These three programs are of an interdisciplinary nature and their courses could be taught through a proposed school of cross - disciplinary studies which may be built on the St. Paul campus, he said. CLA has requested $331,000 in all - University funds to pay for the school.

In the English department, a reduction in the requirement for freshmen English courses will allow the department to cut back $115,000 in salaries of teaching assistants and associates (TAs) who teach these courses.

"The present means of filling that requirement has come under continual review and criticism," Turnbull said. The change would be from a three - to a two - quarter course requirement. Some students may be exempted from the course by a written examination.

CLA has further cut its budget by proposing to offer certain low-enrollment language courses on an independent study basis rather than as regular courses.

Formal courses in Luchuan, Thai, Tibetan, Turkish, Persian, Bengali, Urdu and Marathi will be dropped. Courses in Danish and Finnish will be offered alternate years rather than every year.

Unlike many other units of the university, the college of education took its 1971-72 budget cuts in a planned rather than an across - the - board fashion, according to Dean Jack C. Merwin.

The college had a long-range plan which it used for determining budget cuts last year so was not faced with an immediate across - the - board cut. The college, then, was better prepared for a retrenchment and reallocation procedure for 1972-73, he said.

Education cut all of its regular departments to pay for a substantial reallocation of money to departments of human relations and intercultural education, adult education, higher education and instructional system resources. This reallocation is part of an on-going reorganization of the college of education, Merwin said.

Question Safety Of Retreaded Truck Tires

How safe are retreaded tires on trucks? "This is a question raised with us occasionally, usually by persons concerned with the safety of drivers," says Minnesota Commissioner of Public Safety W. R. Hoaglund.

"There is no pat answer. Minnesota law is silent on the use of retreads, and federal standards do not cover them. Use of retreads is up to the judgment of the user.

"However, in making the decision," Hoaglund said, "the user should bear in mind that truck tires must withstand much harder use than passenger car tires. Tires on a loaded truck run much hotter, for example. Add to this the greater braking performance required on trucks, and there is real danger of peeling the treads off under severe conditions. When this happens on a front wheel it can be serious.

"With the bureau of motor carrier safety planning new and stricter federal standards for brakes to go into effect next July 1, truck operators will do well to review their policies on retreads. Their relative safety depends upon loads, speed, and general travel conditions, and only the operator familiar with all conditions can answer as to their safety."

Fire Drivers Should Check License Dates

Minnesota department of public safety Commissioner W. R. Hoaglund today asked all volunteer firemen to check the expiration dates of their driver licenses.

The reason for this, Hoaglund said, is to determine whether a higher class driver license will be required to drive the fire rig after January 1 of next year.

In accordance with an attorney general opinion to the old law, volunteer firemen who drove the engines were not required to have a chauffeur's license. The 1971 legislature abolished the chauffeur's license and deleted the statutes governing licensing. During this year, chauffeur's licenses will no longer be issued or renewed. They will be replaced by the new classified driver license.

Therefore, the exemption for volunteer firemen remains in effect through this year, and those drivers now holding chauffeur's licenses have the option of renewing the chauffeur's license or changing to the new classified license during 1972.

Starting on January 1, 1973, volunteer firemen driving rigs heavier than those authorized by a regular driver license will have to change to the new classified license. This change may be accomplished during this year if the driver so desires. If the driver's regular license expires during this year, or even next year, it would be advisable for him to obtain whichever class license is necessary for the type of equipment he operates.

Under the new system, there are three classes of licenses:

Class C: Valid for all passenger automobiles and two-axle vehicles up to 24,000 pounds gross weight. Also valid for farm trucks by owners, immediate members of family, and certain employees. (This would cover the smaller fire vehicles).

Class B: Valid for all vehicles in Class C and all other single unit vehicles, including buses.

Class A: Valid for any vehicle (including Class B or C) or combination thereof.

Endorsement to the driver license is required to operate a school bus or motercycle.

Those drivers who will be applying for a Class A or B license, and do not now have a chauffeur's license, will be required to pass a written and a road test to obtain the new license. However, if he has proof of having passed the road test within the past two years, he would not have to take the road test again. He must, however, take the written test.

All of the new classes of licenses are good for four years.

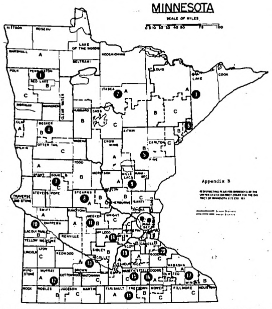
Federal Court Panel Airs Reapportionment Criteria

(Editor's Note: Following is a statement by the three-judge federal court panel regarding its plan of Legislative reapportionment in Minnesota.)

We have followed the criteria which we previously established in apportioning the State of Minnesota into thirty-five (35) Senate districts and one hundred five (105) House districts with one (1) senator and one (1) representative to be elected from each district.

The controlling description of each Senate and House district is set forth in Appendix A. Appendix A also contains extensive statistical analysis of Senate and House districts created by the Court's plan. Appendices B, C and D are maps on which the Senate and House districts are outlined. If there are any variances between the descriptions in Appendix A and other sections or appendices of this opinion, Appendix A shall control. The written descriptions included in this opinion are specifically not intended to be precise, but will hopefully provide a general geographic description.



The Senate Districts

Seventeen (17) Senate districts are essentially outstate in character.

Fifteen (15) Senate districts are wholly metropolitan in character. Four (4) of these districts are in Minneapolis, three (3) are largely in St. Paul, and eight (8) are in suburban Anoka, Hennepin, Ramsey and Washington Counties.

Three (3) Senate districts combine outstate and metropolitan areas: Dakota-Goodhue, Dakota-LeSueur-Scott, and McLeod - Carver - Hennepin.

All Senate districts meet the population criterion we established. The largest Senate district deviates from the ideal district of 108,716 persons by 1.16 per cent; the smallest district deviates from the ideal by 1.37 per cent. The ratio between the largest and the smallest Senate district is 1.03 to 1.

Sixteen (16) Senate districts deviate by less than one-half of one per cent from the ideal district, and twenty-seven (27) Senate districts deviate from the ideal district by less than one per cent.

In forming Senate districts, we have adhered to political subdivision lines wherever possible. Nonetheless, we found it necessary to split eleven (11) of Minnesota's outstate counties and some municipalities in the metropolitan area.

St. Louis County was split because its population is more than twice that necessary for two (2) Senate districts.

Those portions of St. Cloud lying within Benton and Sherburne Counties were split from those counties in order to retain St. Cloud and its major suburbs in a single Senate district.

Eight (8) other outstate counties—Beltrami, Otter Tail, Morrison, Stevens, Blue Earth, Martin, Steele and Olmsted - were split to keep the Senate districts within the two per cent (2 per cent) deviation limit.

In the metropolitan area, Dakota and Anoka Counties were split once because of their excessive population and a second time because of the necessity of adhering to the two per cent (2 per cent) deviation limit.

In the metropolitan area, we have tried to avoid dividing municipalities between Senate districts; in only one case have we had to split a single municipality between more than two (2) Senate districts.

Minneapolis is generally divided along recognized neighborhood lines established by the Minneapolis Planning Commission. While it was not possible to follow these neighborhood lines exactly, we have attempted to join together identifiable neighborhoods which have traditional ties.

In determining which political subdivisions to group into Senate districts, we have given careful study to the plans submitted by the parties, intervenors and amici curiae. We have also tried to instill a degree of permanency in our plan by including, wherever possible, one or more population centers in each of the Senate districts.

The requirement of contiguity has produced a few obvious, although minor, distortions from compactness. Generally, these distortions reflect irregular boundaries of counties, townships or other political subdivisions. It was not possible, in most instances, to cross these irregular boundaries because of the unavailability of necessary census data.

We recognize that Senate Districts 1, 2, 3, 4, 5, 7, and 10 are large geographically; but since the population in these districts is sparse in comparison to other districts, no other alternative delineation was available if the two per cent (2 per cent) deviation limit was to be observed.

The House Districts

Fifty-four (54) House districts are essentially outstate in character.

Forty-nine (49) House districts are essentially metropolitan in character.

Two (2) House districts combine outstate and metropolitan areas.

All House districts meet the population criterion we established. The largest House district deviates from the ideal district by 1.95 per cent. The smallest House district deviates from the ideal by -1.99 per cent. The ratio between the largest and smallest House district is 1.04 to 1.

Thirty-four (34) House districts deviate by less than one-half of one per cent from the ideal, and sixty-one (61) House districts deviate less than one per cent from the ideal.

We found it necessary to divide twenty-nine (29) counties to form House districts. Seven (7) of these counties had populations in excess of that necessary to form a single House district, and would have had to be split in any plan.

Some of the House districts are not as compact as they might have been had we ignored the requirement of keeping political subdivisions intact, where feasible. In other instances, the existing boundaries of the township or other political subdivisions give the districts an irregular appearance.

In formulating the House districts, we have also considered the plans submitted by the parties, intervenors, and amici curiae, and we have attempted, wherever possible, to insure the inclusion of a population center in each of the House districts.

Our studies revealed significant minority populations in the Powderhorn section of Minneapolis and the University-Selby section of St. Paul. In an effort to increase the probability that the minorities living in these areas will be represented in at least "one house of the Legislature, we have formed House districts which include the bulk of those minority populations. We would have included the near northside Minneapolis minority population in the Powderhorn district if this arrangement had not too seriously compromised the criterion of compactness.

We avoided forming districts wholly or almost wholly surrounded by another district in the same county or counties.

Special Aids For Handicapped In State Rest Areas

Special aids for handicapped travelers, built into the highway department's 24 modern roadside rest areas, are perhaps another instance of that singular interest in the "quality of life" the state shares with Californians, as disclosed by an independent study made by the state of Missouri a few years ago.

The study revealed Minnesota as second only to the Golden State in its esteem for a high "quality of life", as evidenced by the ways tax dollars are spent. Minnesota ranks second only to California in wayside amenities for motorists, too, the latter having 28 rest areas.

Highway travel is a distinctive pleasure for many house-bound handicapped persons, but careful planning is necessary to avoid inconvenience on long-distance trips. Mindful of this, the American Association of State Highway Officials has been instrumental in establishing design standards for new rest area construction to meet their needs.

Among them are the use of ramps instead of steps, wide doorways with easily-opened doors, wide aisles and corridors, toilet stalls that can accommodate wheelchairs, mirrors, and drinking fountains, as well as wide paved sidewalks, ramped curbs in the parking lot, extra wide parking places reserved for those in wheelchairs, and telephones mounted at a convenient height in obstacle-free booths.

Removal of "architectural barriers" to the handicapped, defined in the highway department's road design manual as "any feature of the man-made physical environment which impedes or restricts the mobility of physically impaired people," also extends to new highway construction in urban areas, where curb ramps are now a design element of pedestrian crossings.

According to the President's committee on employment of the handicapped, all of Minnesota's highway rest areas are 'barrier-free', or nearly so, and considered to be convenient for use by persons in wheelchairs or those otherwise severely handicapped. All of them are manned by a custodial service employee twenty-four hours a day.

FARAWAY PROBLEMS?

The snow is just the way it should be — and the sky's so blue, it's unbelievable. The air is fresh and clean and it's hard to realize that pollution exists. All the world's problems seem far away.

But for this young man there will be a tomorrow and a next tomorrow. Circumstances won't be the same. Perhaps John is a little more aware than most of us of the ills that beset this world — for he is a theological student. He is determined to make things better. And he is equipped with enthusiasm, understanding, a keen mind and a deep faith.

How about you — and your tomorrows? Certainly the best way to begin doing your part is to cover that short distance to church next Sunday.

Beverly Sills Leads Mothers' March Against Birth Defects

By PATRICIA O'CONNELL

The Mothers' March, now in its 22nd year as a social force against crippling childhood disease, continues to draw top leadership.

Beverly Sills, internationally acclaimed opera star, is national chairman of the Mothers' March against birth defects for The National Foundation-March of Dimes. She succeeds actress Jane Wyatt, who will expand her work with the health organization as national chairman of volunteer services.

Miss Sills, a leading coloratura soprano with the New York City Opera Company, has deep-rooted feelings about her role in the Mothers' March. In private life, she is Mrs. Peter Greenough, wife of a distinguished journalist. They know too well the anguish of birth defects. Their daughter, Muffy, 12, a bright, beautiful girl, was born deaf. Their son, Peter Jr., 10, is mentally retarded.

"We used to ask, 'why us?' " she says. "Now we ask, 'why them?' Medical science offers such hope today that other parents, ultimately, will be spared these sorrows."

Working Chairman

Despite her rigorous schedule, Miss Sills has talked with Mothers' March leaders in cities where she has had singing engagements these past months to learn firsthand how they are directing their energies to overcome birth defects. About a quarter of a million babies are born with physical and mental damage every year in this country.

She also has met with scientists and physicians who direct March of Dimes research and Medical Service Programs around the country.

Contributions from the Mothers' March help support these programs, professional and public health education, and community service projects. Funds also go to The Salk Institute in San Diego.

SHE SANG IT WITH FLOWERS. Opera star Beverly Sills, national Mothers' March chairman against birth defects, visits the March of Dimes Service Program at New York Hospital-Cornell Medical Center.

Mothers' March leaders are anxious to build public awareness about medical progress in preventing, treating and controlling congenital diseases. This year, some million and a half volunteers in about 2,700 March of Dimes chapters are distributing bookmarks that emphasize possible environmental hazards to the unborn child. The bookmark also has other useful information about steps that couples can take that reduce the risk of having children born with birth defects.

In a number of communities, Marching Mothers will circulate material about Rh blood incompatibility disease and the Rh vaccine which could end this source of birth defects.

For many volunteers, prevention of birth defects is a year-round concern. Mrs. Kenneth Stults of Flint, Mich., assists patients at a prenatal care clinic co-sponsored by her chapter, the health department and women's service organizations. She helped plan the clinic and is a weekly "regular."

Then there is Mrs. Irving Saltzman, Mothers' March co-chairman for the borough of Queens, New York City. She has organized and participated in volunteer programs for prenatal care clinics at Queens Hospital Center and Coney Island Hospital, and arranged health education projects for local high schools. Mrs. Saltzman is a district leader of B'nai B'rith Women, who co-sponsor "Operation Stork," a nationwide prenatal care program with the March of Dimes.

Mrs. Ray C. Freeman of Seattle, Wash., has been coordinating medical and nonmedical activities at the March of Dimes Birth Defects Center, University Hospital, since it opened in 1961. Volunteers provide many services: typing, talking with, and listening to, patients and their parents, and meeting families at airports and bus stations when they come from out of town. Volunteer registered nurses work directly with the hospital staff.

"The center is geared to education," she says. "Each fall we send invitations to high schools to visit the hospital. The project is mostly aimed at making them better informed as future parents."

Markets Call For More Soybean Acres

Strong foreign demand in 1972 will call for more than half of America's soybean crop—an estimated export equivalent of nearly 625 million bushels.

Soybeans and products are in strong demand. Industry marketing specialists are predicting a 1972-73 demand for about 1,375 million bushels—a full 206 million bushels more than were produced in 1971.

Why the increase in soybean demand for 1972? Marketing specialists point to a growing world demand for both food fats and oils and protein. U.S. soybeans are the chief oilseed source of these products.

The projected soybean demand would call for planting about 50.1 million U.S. acres to soybeans this spring. That's a 6.5 million acre increase over 1971's estimated soybean planting of 43.2 million acres.

The Illinois-based National Soybean Crop Improvement Council sees the 1972 soybean need as an unparalleled opportunity for U.S. farmers. The Council says strong market demand, coupled with near-record soybean price projections, could provide a welcome boost in farmers' 1972 cash returns.

Soybean marketers justify their optimistic soybean demand projections this way: Soybean disappearance has exceeded production by 100 million bushels annually since 1969. This supply/demand "gap" was filled with soybeans from the nation's reserve carryover. Now, this carryover has been reduced to little more than a month's operating supply—not enough reserve, according to most marketing specialists.

The result is that soybeans to fill 1972-73 marketing needs will have to be produced this year. "It's a production opportunity that farmers may not have again," says the Council's Robert W. Judd. "Soybeans promise to be the brightest cash crop in 1972."

"It is recorded of Samuel Butler that on his deathbed he made it plain he wanted to say something, and what he wanted to say was that he had written that life was ninety-nine per cent chance and he wished to correct this figure to one hundred per cent. No fact in human nature is more characteristic than its willingness to live on a chance." — William James

A Big District

Under the proposal of the three-judge federal court panel on legislative redistricting, Northwestern Minnesota would have a very large Senate district in terms of area. House districts would also be greatly enlarged, effectively removing the elected representatives further from the majority of people they serve.

Aside from the legal question or whether or not the court panel has the right to reduce legislative numbers, the question of practicality is uppermost in our mind. As individual freedoms and responsibilities are constantly eroded and the people accept these losses, it becomes more and more necessary to fight to retain what we have. Too readily we compromise freedom for what is loosely termed "efficiency", and too often we confuse bigness with goodness.

Is there efficiency in a smaller legislature for Minnesota? Perhaps there could be some. But there is efficiency in anarchy as well, and we do not consider that to be a popular alternative.

Those who believe a smaller legislature would save legislative costs are greatly mistaken. With fewer legislators to share the load, the burden would be greater for each. This means full-time legislators would be necessary. A full-time legislator would need a salary several times the present amount. He would need research and secretarial assistance to a much greater degree.

But think about one other thing: When do you have personal contact with your legislator? We'll bet it's a lot more often during the interim when he is at home in his district than during the legislative session when he is in St. Paul. If he was a full-time, year-around legislator, how much contact do you think he would have with his constituents and how well would he have the feel for what the people really wanted back home?

Increase the size of the districts to nearly double and the elected officials will be still further removed from the people. We don't think that is good for government or good for Minnesota. We are frankly afraid of the concentration of governmental power, and any degree of activity toward that end is disturbing to us.

In this northwest area of the state, the political significance of the court panel's proposal is not too apparent on the surface. Within the Senatorial district, an incumbent Conservative would be matched against an incumbent Liberal—Sen. Donald Sinclair against Sen. Roger Moe. It is likely that Sen. Sinclair will not seek reelection, since he was tempted to retire from the legislature before the last election. This will likely create a situation where an incumbent Liberal will have the inside track against a non-incumbent candidate.

Within the district, Conservative Rep. Richard Fitzsimons of Warren would not be matched against any incumbent. This doesn't bother the Liberal judges on the court panel, because they know that Rep. Fitzsimons would likely be reelected regardless of the competition. He's just that good a legislator.

So the district is arranged whereby Rep. Andy Skaar of Thief River Falls would face Rep. L. J. Lee of Bagley—another Conservative - Liberal clash—and Rep. Willis Eken of Twin Valley would face Rep. William Kelly of East Grand Forks, both Liberals.

When political maneuvering is done in reapportionment, and district size is increased, the general attempt has been made to match two incumbents of the same political persuasion and thereby eliminate one. But the complexion changes when reduction in numbers is coupled with increased district size. Anyone who thinks the three-judge panel was being entirely impartial had better think again. The whole situation is political from the word "No", and we refer to Gov. Anderson's veto of the legislature's own reapportionment plan.

We hope the supreme court rules against the federal court panel and tosses out the plan to reduce legislative numbers. Three men should not have the power to accomplish change of such major nature.

Alcohol Problems

Alcohol remains a major problem for the men of this nation, according to the Health Insurance News. It is a problem for many women too, of course, and is certainly a problem for society in general. And there is little doubt that alcohol abuse is the most widespread form of chemical abuse in the country.

Just how big a problem is the so-called "alcohol problem"?

Based on a national survey conducted by University of California researchers, the outlook is pessimistic. The survey involved 1,561 men who ranged in age from 21 to 59 years.

The survey concluded that one out of two American men had some drinking problem within the last three years, and that the problem was considered fairly severe in one out of every three cases. It also found that drinking problems appear to be the most common among the youngest men studied, those aged 21-24. Problems particularly severe were listed as "binge drinking, loss of control, symptomatic drinking, problems with friends and neighbors, police problems and financial problems".

The drinking problem also appeared to be especially grave among men in the lower socioeconomic status. One of the survey's conclusions, in fact, indicated that "economic status, large-city residence, age, childhood deprivation, race and religion" all played key roles in creating alcoholic problems.

While all of this may be significant to the drinker himself or herself, that significance is magnified by the number of people whose lives the drinker affects. In the case of drinking and driving, for instance, the lives of innocent people are often forfeited. Many families are hit hard economically by the cost of liquor consumed. Physical abuse of others results from problem drinking.

What is the answer? There is no easy answer. Education of the young will help, but will not be accepted without adult example. Former alcoholics have the most effective answer: Don't take that first drink. You may not have alcoholic tendencies, but if you never take the first drink, you'll never never have to find out. The road back is a lot harder than the road down.

More Understanding

Thief River Falls is fortunate among Minnesota communities in that industrial growth has come here while other communities across the state are regressing. We are among the favored few rural cities which have been able to add an industrial base to its agricultural economy.

The Murray County Herald recently commented on a talk by Congressman John Zwach which indicated that the only salvation for rural Minnesota is increased industrial activity. Here's what the Herald had to say:

Many rural Minnesota leaders have been advocating this approach to the problem for a long time—but, like the congressman, we haven't discovered exactly how to bring it about. One thing, however, is certain. A state tax structure and a state administration which insists on making the tax climate for firms of the type needed here as unattractive as possible certainly isn't making the task any easier.

Would you, as a businessman, move a plant into Slayton, Pipestone or Worthington today when you could do the same thing in a neighboring state only a few miles away at a tremendous saving in taxes and other expense? Of course not. Yet this is the problem facing industrial development groups throughout our area—and this is also the reason that the out-migration will continue and the number of family farms continue to decrease in the months ahead.

All of Minnesota must realize this and react accordingly or this cancer on our rural economy will only continue to spread. The problem is as great in the metropolitan area as it is in Murray county for the simple reason that most of the people leaving here matriculate to the city—causing more problems for them, more expenses in the form of welfare and other types of assistance, and more ghettoes with which to contend.

It's everybody's problem and most of us know the answer—but we can never seem to put ourselves in proper position to do anything about it. A little more honest understanding, and a little less politics, from both St. Paul and Washington would help.

Borrowed Nonsense

Son—"Dad, in English class they keep talking about a Grecian urn. What's a Grecian urn?"

Dad—"I don't know, son. Guess it depends on what he does for a living."

The two cannibals were chatting after a hearty meal. "That was certainly delicious soup," said one.

"Yes, my wife does make a good soup," replied the other, "but I'm going to miss her."

A European passenger on a tran-Atlantic flight was conversing with the stewardess with the obvious purpose of impressing his fellow passengers with his English. He asked: "How high is this plane, please?"

"Nineteen thousand feet," she answered.

He nodded solemnly; thought for a moment, then inquired loudly: "And how wide is it?"

Country Girl: "If you treat a cow with affection, it will give more milk."

City Girl: "Big deal, so will the milkman."

Fruity Cereal Cookies

Breakfast cereals are one of the most versatile foods in the kitchen. They are good sources of thiamine, niacin and iron and combine with juice, milk and toast for a nutritious breakfast. They can be used as ingredients in many other foods. In Fruity Cereal Cookies a ready to eat cereal is mixed with dates, raisins and eggs to make a cooky that is nutritious. These will become a favorite dessert or snack.

Each cereal package gives specific nutrition information about added vitamins, minerals and other nutrients. Certain essential vitamins have been added to some cereals so a one ounce serving provides ⅓ of an adult's Minimum Daily Requirements (MDR); others supply 100%. Some cereals furnish extra quantities of protein and the amount present is stated on the package. Read the label. It contains a wealth of information.

The small amount of cooking required to make Fruity Cereal Cookies is done on top of the stove. These chewy cookies keep well in the refrigerator for several days.

FRUITY CEREAL COOKIES

- 2 eggs, beaten
- ½ cup sugar
- 1 cup chopped pitted dates
- 1 teaspoon vanilla
- 2 cups honey-flavored puffed wheat
- ½ cup seedless raisins
- ½ cup coarsely chopped walnuts
- 1 can (3½ ounce) flaked coconut, about 1⅓ cups

Combine eggs, sugar and dates in cold lightly buttered skillet. Cook over low heat, stirring constantly about 5 minutes or until mixture is thick and leaves the sides of the pan. Remove pan from heat and stir in vanilla. Add cereal, raisins and walnuts; stir until cereal is evenly coated with egg mixture. Drop rounded tablespoonfuls of mixture onto coconut. Sprinkle with coconut; place on baking sheet. Chill; store in refrigerator until served. Yield: 2 dozen cookies.

Do you really want your brother-in-law to know how much you earned last year?

Of course not. It's nobody's business but your own.

However, annually millions of taxpayers bear this kind of personal information to people who really shouldn't know. For what? Just so they can save a few dollars doing their income tax.

That's some price to pay.

You see, for only a few dollars more than it costs to do it with any amateur who might not know that work clothes in some instances are deductible, or that income averaging might save tax dollars, you can have your tax return done by a specially trained member of the H & R Block team with complete confidentiality. There are thousands of them in over 6,000 conveniently located offices. H & R Block's fees start at $5 and the average cost was under $12.50 for the 7 million families we served last year.

Furthermore, if your return is audited we will accompany you, at no extra cost, to the Internal Revenue Service and explain how your return was prepared, even though we will not act as your legal representative.

This means that H & R Block is ready to offer you year 'round tax service for just one low fee a year, with no extra charge for audits and estimates.

Yes, we cost a little bit more than your relatives or friends or neighbors but when you think of what we deliver, you can't afford anything less than H-&-R-Block.

DON'T LET AN AMATEUR DO H&R BLOCK'S JOB.

How's Your Health

(Prepared in the public interest by the Minnesota Medical Association.)

Is there repeated illness in your home during the winter?

It could mean you are spending most of your time in surroundings that are excessively heated, inadequately ventilated, and completely deficient in proper humidity. A hot, dry environment is not only physically uncomfortable, it is frequently harmful to health.

For good health, the membranes of the nose, throat and bronchial tubes require a humidity of 40 to 50 per cent. With the onset of cool weather, however, windows are closed, furnaces turned on and the humidity content of our homes practically vanishes. Head colds and respiratory infections begin.

One of the primary functions of the membrane lining the nose is to supply moisture to inhaled air on its way to the lungs. If the air is dry, this moistening function becomes more difficult to perform.

Without the mositening, disturbances in the nose, sinuses, ears, throat and nasal membrane may result. Nasal membranes made unhealthy by dry air are more susceptible to attack by bacteria and viruses.

A relative humidity of 50 per cent has a lethal effect on nearly all infective bacteria and viruses. It causes germs emitted by sneezing or coughing to quickly settle and die. Dry air, on the other hand, carries infectious agents—sometimes for weeks.

You should continuously add water to the air in your home to maintain a healthful humidity level during winter. Ideally you should try to humidify the entire home, however, if central units are not feasible, portable units are helpful, says the Minnesota state medical association.

Noise has always existed, but never has it been such a nuisance.

It is with us at all times—during work, sleep, play and travel. In the factory, it comes from heavy machinery; in the office, from telephones and typewriters; at home from the radio or television and in commuting, from heavy traffic.

All this noise affects our health, assaulting our nerves as well as our ears, says the Minnesota State Medical Association. Excessive noise or unwelcome sound may erode emotional well-being, hinder mental effort, and interfere with sleep. In addition, it is estimated that exposure to noise above 85 decibels for several hours each day over many years can cause gradual hearing loss. (A decibel (db) is a measure of sound intensity. Most people can hear comfortably in a range from one db to around 80 db. One db is equivalent to the rustle of leaves; an ordinary conversation is about 70 db; a jet plane roars off at over 150 db.)

Unless we take measures to stop it, noise pollution will increase as our society becomes more mechanized.

Legislation to muffle transportation vehicles and to require better soundproofing in buildings may be one possible positive step. In addition, each person can attempt to reduce the noise in his own environment as well. Be considerate of others in the timing and intensity of the sounds you make. Seek the help of the proper authorities to curb noise over which you do not have personal control.

Alcohol is a drug, says the Minnesota State Medical association.

Like any drug, it affects a person' body.

We have all seen its most apparent effects, slurred speech, clumsy motions, but how does it bring about these behavior changes? Let's look at the action of alcohol in the body.

Alcohol, unlike most foods, requires no digestion before it is absorbed by the blood. Some passes directly into the bloodstream through the stomach wall but most passes into the small intestine where it is absorbed rapidly and carried to all parts of the body.

Once it reaches the brain, it begins its intoxicating effect, steadily putting the brain to sleep. Judgment, inhibition and memory are affected first. Then follows loss of coordination with slurred speech, hearing and visual difficulties; then stumbling, falling and eventually coma.

Most food, after digestion, can be stored in the body for future use. Alcohol cannot. It circulates in the blood and body tissues until it is burned up or oxidized.

While circulating, it enters all tissues. For most drinkers there is little danger that alcohol will harm body organs. This is not true of the regular, excessive drinker. Large amounts and high concentrations of alcohol may lead to irritation or inflammation of parts of the digestive system. Prolonged and heavy drinking may seriously affect the heart, liver, stomach and other organs.

The risk involved in drinking, however, is less one of bodily damage than of changes in personality which may ruin a person's life.

Have you ever heard of parrot fever?

Sounds as if it may be for the birds, doesn't it? It is. Parrot fever may be endemic in certain species of birds, especially parrots, parakeets and pigeons. But parrot fever, known medically as psittacosis or ornithosis, may also be acquired by humans.

Generally, the person contracting the disease inhales the virus which causes it. And, in most instances, the virus is transmitted through contact with the infected bird, its droppings or inhalation of particles of droppings disseminated in the air. Feeding pigeons, then, is very risky.

The disease can also be transmitted from person to person.

Birds do not usually show any symptoms of the disease and may shed the virus in droppings and nasal discharges for weeks or months.

In man, the disease resembles pneumonia with fever and headache.

Regulations concerning the importation of birds, quarantine and the use of medicated feeds have aided in reducing human cases.

Yet, precautions should be taken in purchasing and taking care of pet birds. Purchase your bird from a reputable dealer—local health officials should know if particular dealers have had problems with this disease.

Feeding pet birds from the lips should be avoided and when cleaning cages, avoid inhaling dried droppings and wash hands afterwards, says the Minnesota State Medical association.

No Pollution From Wild Rice Paddies

While a number of probelems do plague farmers involved in paddie culture of wild rice, a research project by Bemidji state college indicates that the rice growers do not have to worry a great deal about pollution from their use of water to flood paddies.

At the fourth annual meeting of the Wild Rice Growers association in Grand Rapids January 22, Dr. Kenneth Lundberg, BSC chemistry dept., and Pat Trihey of the BSC biology dept. presented statistics showing that minute increases in nitrate and phosphate levels of water discharged from rice fields probably does not affect the overall condition of receiving waters in the areas that have been studied.

While data did indicate some increase in the amounts of nitrates and phosphates in waters used to flood paddies, the amounts were well within Minnesota pollution control standards of 1 p.p.m. total phosphorus.

Most significant finding from research conducted last summer in Clearwater and northern Beltrami county wild rice paddies was the fact that mechanical thinning operations released large amounts of phosphates into the paddie water.

Thinning of paddie stands of rice is required because wild rice grows too thickly in the cultivated fields. Machines go through the paddies and destroy part of the crop so that the remainder will produce a better yield.

Following thinning operation, however, phosphorus levels in paddie water rose to more than one part per million. This level was attained again at the end of draining operations prior to harvest.

The BSC scientists do not see these rises in nutrient levels as a threat to receiving waters because almost no water is released during the time that thinning takes place, and the phosphate levels did not exceed one part per million again until draining was nearly completed.

Most of the nutrients released by thinning had settled or had been used by the plants prior to draining, and the rise in phosphate levels at draindown concentrated the phosphorus in smaller amounts of water. Trihey told the growers, "Next summer, we hope to be able to run a number of analyses in the field and follow the course of events associated with thinning operations that apparently disturbed the soil and resulted in the higher level of nutrients."

"We do not feel that the paddy systems we studied pose any threat to the Clearwater River which receives the drainage from the paddies," Trihey said. "Amounts of water discharged during the growing season are extremely small and the major discharge at draindown for harvesting occurred prior to the increase in phosphorus concentrations."

While they do not believe the nutrient levels pose a threat, the BSC researchers do intend to concentrate more study on those times when the nutrient levels spiral upward and compile more elaborate statistics on this phase when they resume their research next summer.

Lundberg pointed out that the ability of the water to contain ions of nutrient is an important part of the study. This is called the loading factor in chemical parlance.

"Once we know the loading factors, we'll be able to estimate the volume of each of these nutrients that is discharged through normal operation of a paddie," Lundberg states. "This will add considerably to the overall value of the study."

One note of pessimism did creep into their report, Trihey said, "While we don't see nutrient enrichment as a major problem in properly designed paddy systems, we do foresee and predict some problem with water utilization in the future—especially in regard to availability of ample water and discharge of extremely large volumes of paddy water into small brooks and streams."

This is a problem of which the fledgling industry of wild rice growers is cognizant and was discussed at some length throughout the two day meeting in Grand Rapids. Several experts on water rights did participate in the program of the association.

The sponsoring environmental protection agency has granted funds for continuation of the BSC research project, and Trihey and Dr. Lundberg will continue their research throughout the winter and begin fresh sampling of water next spring.

2,522 Employers Practice Age Discrimination

U. S. Department of Labor reported it found 2,522 employers, employment agencies and labor unions practicing illegal age discrimination during fiscal year 1971.

Under the age discrimination in employment act of 1967, employers of 25 or more persons may not deny workers aged 40 to 65 jobs, promotions, pay increases, fringe benefits or discharge them because of their age.

However, 683 employers were found refusing to hire workers in the covered age group, while 110 were found to have discharged them and 265 to have denied promotions because of age.

Act also forbids labor unions with 25 or more members and employment agencies which serve covered employers from classifying, refusing to refer for employment or otherwise discriminating against any member or client because he is between 40 and 65.

Violations of these provisions were found in four unions and 351 employment agencies. Most, or 1,765 of the total 2,522 establishments in violation were found placing illegal discriminatory help-wanted advertisements.

Ads including such phrases as "ambitious young man," "junior executive," "recent college graduate," or others implying that qualified applicants between 40 and 65 would not be considered were placed by 1,180 employers and 585 employment agencies.

Back wages of $738,074 were found due 655 workers as a result of violations of the age discrimination law during the year, and informal negotiations with employers resulted in 615 workers between 40 and 65 being hired, rehired or retained.

The department's employment standards administration noted that almost all of the employers, agencies and unions found violating the law agreed to comply in the future. This has resulted in the removal of discriminatory barriers from 119,254 jobs, the department estimated.

Discriminatory policies and practices affecting one million additional jobs were also eliminated through non-investigatory contact with more than 30,000 employers, employment agencies, and labor organizations.

Grygla-Goodridge Boards Meet With Commissioner

COMMISSIONER OF EDUCATION Howard Casmey (right) met with boards of the Grygla and Goodridge school districts Wednesday afternoon at the Pennington county courthouse in Thief River Falls. At left is Roland Klamar, a member of the Grygla board. Purpose of discussion was to find avenues of agreement by which boards could work for mutual benefit of their areas.

Speculative look at the future of the Grygla and Goodridge school districts was presented at a combined meeting of the two districts' boards Wednesday afternoon in Thief River Falls. The meeting was arranged by Howard B. Casmey, Minnesota commissioner of education, who was in attendance.

Avowed purpose of the session was to conclude litigation which has been undertaken by each district and which makes cooperative action between them legally impossible. While the purpose was not reached in that the boards did not agree to drop litigation, they did agree to meet again at both Goodridge and Grygla to inspect the existing schools. First meeting has been tentatively set for Goodridge this Thursday.

Casmey presented to the board members a preliminary data report for School District 447—the Grygla - Gatzke district. The report had been prepared by the state department of education and provided school census figures, projections based on those figures, summary of school facilities existing and proposed, summary of educational program projected and minimum personnel required, finance, costs and conclusion.

Little optimism for the future was held forth by the commissioner, as he noted that changes were taking place in education and that school boards were losing their local autonomy. The northern regions of the state have been losing population and there is little to indicate that this trend may be reversed. With a portion of the Grygla district set off to the Middle River district, it may even be questionable if the last bond issue vote in the Grygla district is valid, he said, adding that the

430 Enroll For Record At NSJC

With 430 students enrolling, enrollment reached a new high at Northland state junior college during the recent winter quarter registration. The previous high enrollment occurred a year ago during winter quarter registration when 407 students were enrolled.

Analysis of the 430 enrollment reveals 309 full-time students and 121 part-time students. Also, in the total enrollment are 114 special students—those enrolled who desire to benefit educationally and personally from a selected course and not pursuing a degree.

Enrollment figures include students enrolled in on-campus courses (daytime and evening) and students enrolled in off-campus offerings at Warren and Hallock.

A more important aspect of enrollment analysis is referred to as F.T.E. (Full-time equivalence)—a figure arrived at by dividing the total number of student credit hours in a quarter by 15. By comparison of figures from a year ago, Northland's winter quarter F.T.E. has increased from 353 to 360.

"With college enrollment leveling off, or decreasing, it is significant to note that in total enrollment and in F.T.E. Northland has shown an increase," states Victor Charles, Northland president.

"If one were to look for the most significant reason for Northland's increase in enrollment, it is probably due to the expanded on-campus evening program and the off-campus offerings at Warren and Hallock."

Northland hopes to expand course offerings to other communities in its service area when interest and demand are indicated.

Fire Destroys Karlstad Shop

Fire of unknown origin completely razed the Thompson Construction company workshop in Karlstad last Tuesday evening. The fire department was called to the scene about 6:15 p.m., but the building was totally afire by that time and nothing could be saved.

The building, located just north of the Karlstad cemetery, was being used this winter as an auto repair shop by Wyman Johnson and Keith Lindgren. A good deal of tools and equipment and two late model cars were destroyed in the blaze.

DFL Caucus

Precinct caucus of the Pennington county DFL party will be held Tuesday, February 22, at 8 p.m. in the Thief River Falls city auditorium.

Activity Center To Rent Building On North Main

Thief River Falls day activity center will have its own building as of June 1, according to Art Heinze, chairman of the DAC board. The board has entered into a contract with Bro-Mac Rentals, Inc., of Thief River Falls to lease the former Tunberg warehouse building at Main avenue and 13th street. The building will be totally remodeled to specifically meet the needs of the local day activity center.

Funds from the local Mrs. Jaycees Charity Ball, the Lincoln high school Sno-Fest, and other local charity will be used to help pay the rent for the new facility.

With its own building, the day activity center will be able to provide more and better services to local and area retarded persons. The center has grown substantially in size and services since its initial opening nearly 10 years ago, Heinze said. Since that time the center has been operating in the basement of several churches.

Sister Relates Life Style Of Columbia

by Pete Volkert
Times Reporter

"Most people in Columbia are so poor," said Sister Mary Martin, "that the only thing they can do with their little free time is to drink or go to church."

The sister, who returned from that country after teaching at an elementary school for six years at Bogata, the country's capital, made the statement to point out the disparity between the poor and rich in Columbia, where, on the extreme northwest side of the South American continent, one can go from sandy beaches to mountains and in the interior to the high reaches of the Andes.

While teaching at the Colegio San Carlo, which in English is St. Charles' elementary school, Sister Mary Martin had the opportunity, through her students, to become acquainted with many of the leaders of the country.

Fluent in Spanish, she said that teaching Spanish to American students "sometimes bugged me". She said the students would complain that although she might be using only one Spanish word, it took three or even more words to express the same idea in English.

She also worked in the slums of Bogata, which was founded in 1538 and is situated in the Andes at an altitude of more than 8,000 feet. She had worked in the Chicago slums before going to South America, but she was appalled at the human misery she saw in the Bogata slums. "To teach there," she said, "means only to show people how to read and teach them the most simple LEADERSHIP awards consisting of $50 savings bonds were presented by the local Elks lodge Thursday to Darrell Hursman and Nancy Knutson, seniors at Lincoln high school. Making the awards were Jon Metusalem, left, youth activities chairman, and Milton Relerson, exalted ruler. Miss Knutson is class president and business manager of the school yearbook, was junior class secretary and football cheerleader for the past two years. Hursman is president of the Future Farmers of America chapter, was reporter for the chapter last year, is a student council representative and photo editor for the school yearbook. Both students are now eligible for $500 state awards, which will be based on a portfolio prepared by the students and submitted by the local Elks lodge. Judging standards were based on leadership, citizenship appreciation, perseverance, resourcefulness and sense of humor, with major emphasis on initiative, organizational ability and influence on others.

Make New Pledge To MiSCCA's Courage Center

New pledges totaling about $250,000 were made for the Courage Center fund campaign during December, Harry C. Benson, general chairman of the campaign has announced.

Courage Center is the comprehensive rehabilitation facility being built by the Minnesota Society for Crippled Children and Adults (MISCCA), on a seven-acre site in Golden Valley overlooking Wirth park golf course.

About $525,000 remains to be raised to finance the $2.8 million project, plus additional funds for equipment and furnishings, Benson said, adding that a special appeal is being made to clubs and organizations for help in furnishing and equipping the rooms in the center.

Recent major gifts for Courage Center include $100,000 from the Phillips foundation, Minneapolis, $60,000 from the Alice M. O'Brien Foundation, St. Paul, $25,000 from the Thomas and Kathleen Moore foundation, St. Paul; $24,520 from the John O. Dickerman Estate, St. Paul; $20,000 from the B. C. Gamble Foundation, Minneapolis; $20,000 from the Charles Blandin Foundation, Grand Rapids; $15,000 from the General Mills foundation, Minneapolis; and $10,000 from the F. C. Hayer company, Minneapolis.

W. B. Schoenbohm, executive director of MISCCA, reported that construction of the facility, which was started last spring, is now scheduled for completion by next August, far ahead of original schedule.

Courage Center will offer year-around programs of treatment, training, employment and recreation. It will supplement the residential camping program carried on at Camp Courage, Maple Lake, also operated by MISCCA.

The building, comprising some 115,000 square feet, will provide a new home for the Minneapolis curative workshop, doubling its capacity for therapy and training of pre-schoolers at a time when they most need help to prepare them for public school. Medically supervised outpatient care in physical therapy, occupational therapy and speech and hearing services for all ages, plus treatment of children with perceptual motor disorders and family counseling, will also be provided.

Statewide headquarters from MISCCA, now located at 2004 Lyndale Avenue South, Minneapolis, will also be moved to the new center, where there will be expanded facilities for vocational and on-the-job training for disabled adults. The center will also provide a variety of homebound services, including home therapy and arts and crafts training in the home.

A gymnasium-auditorium will provide opportunities for sports, such as wheelchair basketball and other recreational social activities for handicapped individuals and groups.

State Hospital Opens Center For Retardation

Enrollment At Bemidji State Remains High

Enrollment figures at Bemidji state college continued to be bright compared with other Minnesota colleges, as preliminary registration figures for winter quarter showed an increase of about 130 students over the winter enrollment of 1971.

Total enrollment for winter quarter 1972 is 4,708 compared with 4,572 for the same quarter last year.

At the same time, a decrease was recorded in the number of students continuing from fall quarter, when 4,865 students took classes at BSC. About 180 full-time students left BSC at the end of the fall term, but this figure was offset to some degree by an increase of 22 part-time students from fall to winter quarter.

Graduate enrollment increased by 16 students from winter quarter of 1971, as a total of 249 are registered this year and 233 were recorded in 1971.

The number of new freshmen enrolling at BSC for the first time is up from 66 for winter quarter, 1971, to 107 for winter, 1972. Transfer enrollment is down for the same time from 77 to 56.

The 249 graduate students is an increase of 29 from fall quarter of this academic year, when there was a total of 225 graduate students enrolled.

The total increase in enrollment from a year ago can be attributed primarily to a substantial increase in the number of women students. A total of 1,174 women were enrolled last year, while 1,867 women registered for winter quarter, 1972. This increase in the number of women students has been observed for comparable periods for the past three years.

An increase of 40 part-time students was recorded, as 310 are registered this year, compared with 270 students last year on the part-time rolls.

In 1905 congested traffic at rush hours was described as the number one problem of large cities in the United States, and pictures of traffic jams in the days of horse-drawn wagons and electric cars attest to the fact that congestion was bad long before the motor vehicle made it worse.

Woodmen Club At Grygla Has Merit Award

Mrs. Norman Newton, Grygla, junior director of Modern Woodmen Junior Service club 9192, Grygla, has led the group to Merit Club status for 1971.

Modern Woodmen of America is a fraternal insurance society with its home office in Rock Island, Ill.

Of the society's more than 300 junior service clubs throughout the nation, 103 attained merit status this year.

The local club determined its own merit rating through its performance and home office evaluation of monthly activity reports. Club members' efforts in monthly meetings and programs, community service events and membership increases were all rated by Modern Woodmen home office personnel.

Mrs. Newton, the local club's junior director, earned special recognition from Modern Woodmen for the junior club's merit rating. Cathy Newton, Grygla, the club's assistant junior director was also honored.

The local club received a special citation ribbon denoting its status as a merit club for its decorative axe trophy.

First Aid Tips

Don't be helpless if an emergency arises. Knowing simple first aid procedures can help save lives, according to an article in the new St. Joseph Family Almanac Calendar, available free at your local pharmacy. For major burns, keep the victim lying down to lessen shock. Cut clothing away from the burned-area, but don't pull it away if it adheres to the burn. Cover burn with thick pad of sterile dry dressings. If that is not available, cover with clean sheets or towels. Treat for shock if necessary, by keeping the patient lying down with head lower than feet. Cover him lightly. If he can swallow, give warm fluids.

KITCHEN KARNIVAL

Features from the Kitchen of

Without a fire or insulated container, going on a snowmobile trail ride can give one a ravenous appetite and a hot lunch on the trail can taste mighty good.

Ideas for food to be eaten on the trail should be satisfying and easy to prepare as well as easy to carry on a snowmobile.

The following recipe will keep hot for several hours and be sure to bring back all the paper and foils. Don't be a littersnobug.

Trail Ride Tuna Burgers

Just before you're ready to leave on the ride, heat oven to 450 degrees.

For 20 people you'll need:

40 humburger buns
4 cans drained tuna
1 can cream of celery soup (without water added)
¼ cup chopped onion
¼ cup chopped celery
salt, pepper to taste

Mix the tuna, soup, onions and celery. Butter the hamburger buns. Put a generous amount of filling on each one. Then wrap two burgers together in strips of aluminum foil, sealing the edges well. Place wrapped buns on a cookie sheet and bake 20 minutes in the hot oven. Then remove the wrapped buns, and wrap in several thickness of newspaper and place them in a brown paper bag. Seal the bags with tape.

There's one way to have a hot meal out on the trail without a campfire or anything else.

But what about when the hungry snowmobilers are heading back, and the Tuna Burgers have worn off? Now our thoughts go to a food that can be prepared in advance, satisfying enough for the hungriest of snowmobilers, and warm everyone up. The next recipe that we have is called a red bean casserole. It is different and delicious. This is a hot dish that will "stick to the ribs" and could be served before a trail ride as well.

For the "Red Bean Casserole" you will need:

1 lb. red beans, (soaked overnight)
1 lb. sausage meat (more if desired)
1 large chopped onion,
1 No. 2½ can apple slices
2 cans tomato sauce or a large can tomatoes
2 cloves garlic (minced)
¼ tsp. pepper
1 tsp. chili powder
1 tsp. dry mustard
¼ cup brown sugar and some sour cream

Method: Cook the beans, brown the sausage and onion. Combine all ingredients except sour cream. Simmer until all the flavors are well blended, 1-2 hour. Top each serving with a dollop of sour cream if you wish.

BURIAL URN fashioned in the likeness of the person whose remains were placed in it after cremation is one of the many pieces of pottery brought back from Columbia by Sister Mary Martin. Other pieces of crockery, wooden dishes and woven baskets on display at the Northwestern Regional library are the normal household utensils in that country.

Sister Relates Style Of Life In Columbia

arithmetic". She now teaches the fifth grade at St. Bernard's school here.

As an educator, she becomes deeply concerned when discussing the educational problems of the country. "The law states that all children must go to school, but there are not enough schools and not enough teachers."

Originally from Wells, Minn., Sister Mary Martin received her education at Mankato state college and Mount Marty college at Yankton, S.D. She left the United States in 1961 with a group of 13 other nuns to begin work in Columbia.

"It was unbelievable at first, and it still is," she says. "For all their pride, they have no idea of how to cooperate. In the United States, if 10 people got together and said 'let's build a house', they would build the house, but in Columbia, there would be 10 different people building 10 different houses."

"They are trying to establish their identity as the people of Columbua, and they resent any talk of their Spanish heritage," she reported. She said that more and more, the Columbian people are looking to the Chibchas, an Indian nation which produced a very high culture before Columbus discovered America. She sometimes wears on the upper left of her habit a gold symbol, a replica of a chief's ornament. Such jewls signify their identity with the Chibcha culture.

Most of the tribes carefully restrict themselves to their own clan group, she said, and they have strict rules concerning inter-marriage and other relationships among the clans. Also, most of the original Columbian residents away from the populated areas of the country usually manage to do without clothing.

"One of the Columbian missionaries," she said, "was able to meet, talk with and teach the Indians only after he discarded his clothing and wore only a loincloth. Now, when they come into Bogata to visit with him, they don clothing."

She explained the massive education problems in Columbia. "Only 20 to 25 per cent of its citizens are literate. They like to set their statistics high," she said. She has earned a certificate qualifying her to teach adult illiterates.

She said that another religious order had planned to start teaching the poorer people of the city, having been given a donation by a wealthy patron who had not realized what his money would be used for. The school was closed after the patron came to the head of the education project to withdraw his support, saying "Who will we have for servants if you teach these people to read?"

She also talked about other problems of Columbia, such as traffic, government restrictions and student unrest.

Although the custom of the siesta, a long lunch with time for a nap from noon until 2 p.m., is still widely observed, it is becoming less popular. Since most people travel by bus, the siesta traffic jams can be disastrous. "One man told me," she said, "that it often happens that when he gets home on the bus for his siesta, he can only take a package filled with food and re-board a city-bound bus immediately, otherwise he would be tied up in traffic for hours past his lunchtime."

She also tells about the time when, stricken with dysentery—"it's part of living in a foreign country"—she took a bus to the city. "I was feeling horrible by the time I was ready to return to the school, but I managed to get aboard the bus, barely. It was a 60 passenger bus, but there were more than 100 people on it, which is not uncommon, and I was standing on the bottom step next to a soldier. I wasn't too worried though," she laughed, "I don't think a soldier would let a nun fall from a moving bus."

On the problem of student unrest, she said that political interest generally begins at the university level in the Latin countries.

Although she said she deplored student violence in all countries, saying it was "counter-productive"—a coined word she says she doesn't really approve of—she said that she thought the unrest on American campuses was subsiding and hoped for more positive action by young people—"such as in the Peace Corps. Whenever they could get into Bogata, they loved to talk to any other Americans," she said.

She also noted that Bogata was nearly destroyed in rioting in 1948. "The city was a shambles," she said. "Most of the suburbs of Bogata came into being after that, and it has only been recently that the downtown area of the city began to reach its former importance. That might be one of the reasons for the enormous traffic tie-ups."

Also frustrating to her were government regulations. "They have no idea of international cooperation. A car from America that cost $3,000 in the United States would be at least twice that much in Columbia, due to government import taxes. They have no true industrial development themselves and must import technicians from other countries, yet they will not allow corporations or technicians to take their earnings home with them—unless they want to give 20 per cent of it to a tourist agency, who will give them the remaining 80 per cent in American dollars.

(This was something she learned when it came time for her to leave, and she was informed that she could not take what she had earned in her six years out of Columbia. She called the father of one of her pupils. He happened to be the president of the Banque de Republica, the national bank of Columbia, and had just returned from a trip to France. "It's easy, sister," he said (in Spanish), "just go to a tourist agency!")

On the whole, however, Sister Mary Martin in enthusiastic about Columbia and her work there. "There is no country in the world where you can find such a variety of plant and animal life. To see how things grow, how flowers are constantly in bloom, which is a phenomenon of the equator something that people from other countries cannot realize until they see it."

Her interest in Columbia is evidenced by a large collection of Columbian artwork, utensils and other objects that she brought back when she returned to the United States. These objects are currently on display at the Northwestern Regional library in Thief River Falls. The display will remain at the library for about two more weeks.

MARACAS, rattle-like musical instrument used in Columbia, are part of Sister Mary Martin's collection of Columbian artifacts which she collected in the nearly six years she spent in that country teaching at the San Carlos elementary school in Boghta, the nation's capital.

Federal Land Bank Lowers Interest Rates

"The billing rate on variable interest rate loans closed after January 27, 1972, has been reduced to seven per cent" according to a statement by Hans T. Hagen, president of the Federal Land bank of Saint Paul.

The board of directors also reduced to seven per cent the billing rate on $370,000,000 of 7.5 per cent variable interest rate loans outstanding effective as to interest periods beginning March 1, 1972, or thereafter.

Hagen noted this was the third time in the past 14 months the bank has reduced the interest billing rate by one-half of one per cent.

"This action is in line with the bank's policy of providing long term credit to farmers and ranchers on the variable interest rate plan at the lowest possible cost consistent with sound business practices," Hagen continued.

Glenn E. Johnson, manager of the federal land bank association of Warren, reported the interest rate drop would affect over $2,784,000 in variable rate loans in the Warren office.

Farmers in the seven and one-half county area borrowed over $1.2 million through the Warren office in 1971, according to Johnson. Presently the Warren office has in excess of $8 million in long term real estate loans to 841 farmer-members in Marshall, No. Beltrami, Kittson, Roseau, Red Lake, Pennington, Koochiching, and Lake of the Woods counties.

Cargill To Pay Oil Premium On '72 Sunflowers

Grower contracts for high oil sunflowers are now available from Cargill, Inc. for the 1972 crop year.

Ken Johnson, sunflower project manager, said new features in the contract largely offset a reduction in base price necessary because market conditions do not look as promising as last year. Main features of Cargill's 1972 contract are:

Reduced seed price—30 cents per pound FOB elevator for certified seed (Peredovik or VNIIMK 89.31) against last year's price of 45 cents, reduced test weight required—27 lbs. per bushel of seed delivered (29 lbs. in 1971).

Also oil content premium—5 cents per hundredweight for each tenth of one per cent over 40 per cent oil. (Discount applies in the same proportion in reverse.) Cargill growers averaged 42.45 per cent oil in their 1971 seed. The premium is new this year; and the price of four cents per hundredweight delivered to contracting elevator.

Johnson said the contracts are available at about 70 elevators cooperating with Cargill throughout the growing area

Goodridge And Grygla Boards Meet Wednesday

bonding limit of the district is now less.

If a school district gets into financial trouble, it must get itself out. There has been no provision made for state emergency aid after 1972, Commissioner Casmey emphasized, and added that the role of the school board will soon be merely to select the teachers, determine where they will teach and provide supervision.

Casmey also said that he had received a number of calls and letters from residents of both the Goodridge and Grygla districts, as well as visitors at his office in St. Paul, stating that the fighting between the two districts must be stopped. "Who knows how much has been spent for legal action up to now," he said, "and you haven't gotten anything out of it."

It was suggested by the commissioner that the two boards study the department report on the Grygla - Gatzke district and reach their own conclusions. "Just let me say that the education program estimated for a high school at Grygla is the absolute minimum," Casmey said, "and if that minimum program would be violated we would shut your doors."

School census for the Grygla district showed 389 students ages 6-17 who would be expected to attend school in the 1971 census year. This compares with 400 in the same age group in 1969 and an estimated 271 by 1977.

According to the report, a high school at Grygla would need about 14 additional teachers and administrators. Current budget for instructional and secretarial personnel is $118,000. A staff of 14 secondary school administrators and teachers could be expected to approach $140,000 to $145,000 by 1973-74. That estimated additional cost does not include secretaries, clerks, custodians, cooks, bus drivers and other related personnel.

Aware that the district does not have structures in which to hold a high school program, the district voters approved a bond issue of $696,000 several years ago. The addition proposed by the architect employed by the district would have 36,720 square feet of space. Construction costs now are approximately $22 per square foot, the report indicates, making the cost of a 37,720 square foot building approximately $807,000. Addition of 20 per cent ($161,568) is suggested for architectural fees, equipment, movable furniture, legal fees, fiscal fees and site improvement.

Assessed valuation of property in School District 447 is $463,824. A bond issue of $696,000 repaid over a period of 25 years would require an annual payment of approximately $61,400 (including principal and interest), which would require an annual mill levy for debt redemption alone of 132.37 mills. That increase does not include building maintenance and instructional costs.

Other data is also included in the report, and Grygla board members said they would like to have the report explained to residents of the district. Commissioner Casmey assured them that a representative of the department woul be made available to present the report at such a meeting if desired by the board.

Scouting
Helps Boys Learn To Serve Others

Service is fundamental to the Boy Scout ideal: service to individuals and to the community at large. Scouting teaches a boy to put himself in the other fellow's shoes, instills a spirit of helpfulness, fosters the skills to make it work. Scouting is concern.

A Total View

If indications surfacing at the combined meeting of the Grygla and Goodridge school board are carried through, members of both boards should have a pretty fair total view of the two districts. This is something which likely did not exist before.

We admire the spirit with which the two boards met on Wednesday afternoon with Commissioner of Education Howard Casmey. It takes a good deal of courage to swallow a large lump of pride and face a possible change in the direction you have sincerely taken for a number of years. It takes more courage when you know that there are a number of your constituents waiting to criticize whatever you do.

Agreement of the two boards to meet and inspect the existing facilities in both districts is an excellent start toward greatly improved relations. It would seem that there are problems which may never be completely solved to satisfaction, but there are other problems which can be solved. It must be better to solve some problems than to solve none or create more.

Perhaps it is true that the years are numbered for the existence of either or both districts. School populations are declining and costs of education are increasing, regardless of what manner in which they are paid. But it seems wise to cooperate and thereby at least buy a little time.

Medicine prescribed by a doctor may not cause a patient to live forever, but it can extend life considerably. The patient would be ill advised not to take that medicine. So it is with the Goodridge and Grygla districts. Without the medicine of cooperation, neither can expect long life. With cooperation, they can likely extend that longevity.

We hope that residents of the two districts support their board members as they attempt to work together for mutual benefit. Talk of winning or losing should immediately cease. There is no winner or loser where there is no contest, and there is no contest where there is cooperation. Working together can provide the total view so necessary to proper consideration of alternatives and eventual wise decisions on weighty matters.

. . . Just Underfinanced

Members of Hennepin Avenue Church in Minneapolis who did not respond to the first letter received concerning pledges for 1972 received a letter which is too good to limit to that congregation, so we share it here:

"Anyone who reads the paper or hears the news these days can't help wondering about the future of the world.

"One hundred and fifty billion dollars buy a lot of war.

"We need not only buy a lot of war, but we buy a lot of fringe benefits, too, like crime and corruption, drug abuse, disenchanted youth, and a sagging economy.

"A little research indicates that our Hennepin Avenue congregation involuntarily spent nearly four million dollars on the war effort last year.

"This is ten times as much as our total church budget.

"Some people say the church is ineffective, and even that God is dead.

"God is not dead, He is just underfinanced. But in spite of that, He still controls the market.

"Be diversified. Invest in your church. Add a little God in your portfolio. It's a growth stock.

"Keep current on your spiritual security tax. No matter what happens to the world, you'll come out ahead."

Understanding Needed

It has always likely been so that the grass looks greener on the other side of the fence. People who do not understand the problems of others are too quick to make assumptions that those other people have minor problems. We feel this is true of the way in which consumers look at farmers and in which salaried employees look at business.

Let us cite a couple of situations which should be more generally known.

A. M. Tewksbury writes in the Oregon Voter Digest that "American agriculture faces grave economic problems. The most important is the low financial return to farmers for their hard work and their big investments in land and equipment. Farm income is so inadequate that two out of three farmers earn over half of their annual incomes from off-farm sources, according to the 1969 Census of Agriculture.

"In 1970, for the first time on record, farm earnings of U.S. farmers totaled less than their off-farm earnings: $15.9 billion from farming and $17 billion from nonfarm sources. This is an unhealthy situation which bodes ill for the future of the most basic, most important sector of our economy."

And Richard C. Gerstenberg, chairman of General Motors corporation, states that businessmen have the responsibility to work for greater public understanding of the profit system before hostility and indifference lead government to limit freedom of enterprise still further and weaken the ability of U.S. industry to compete throughout the world.

He said that while the average manufacturer makes about four per cent profit on sales, after taxes, the public generally believes it's around 28 per cent. At a time when profit margins are close to the lowest in a quarter of a century, the American public's estimate of profit is at its highest.

More understanding is needed of agriculture and business, just as it is needed of labor and the professions. All is not sunshine and flowers in any field of endeavor, and it is time more people recognize that fact.

Housekeeping Hints

On the assumption that homemakers occasionally read these columns and are occasionally interested in solutions to homemaking problems, we offer these suggestions from Mrs. John Pfund's column in the Norman County Index:

Cover your closet floors with old throw rugs. When cleaning day comes, just take out the rugs and shake.

To keep pans spotlessly clean, remove stubborn burns with a typewriter eraser. For a really tough burn, use scouring powder with the eraser.

To remove surface soil from plastic dinnerware, rub it with baking soda sprinkled on a damp cloth. Soda removes the soil with a gentle action that won't take off the finish or scratch the surface.

If your curtains are made to hang at either end, turn them after each cleaing—because the bottoms have a tendency to wear out first.

Working barehanded? Apply hand cream under nail tips before you begin. It helps keep out grease and grime and wipes away easily when the job is done.

To keep buttons from slipping and sliding while you try to sew them on, secure them to the garment with transparent tape. After the first few stitches, remove the tape.

Remove the mineral deposit that clogs a shower head by unscrewing the head, covering it with vinegar, and simmering it for about 20 minutes. Then, cool and rinse in cold water.

Make ordinary meat loaf look festive by baking it in a salad mold.

To keep cream from dripping on your table, put a thin coat of butter inside the pitcher spout.

Start your garden in your kitchen by planting seedlings in paper cups. When the plants are large enough, you need not disturb them in transferring them to your garden. Moisture will soften the paper cups and roots will grow right through them.

Advice for Shoppers

The president of the Better Business Bureau of Metropolitan New York, Inc., Mr. Woodrow Wirsig, offers some advice to consumers that, if followed, would go a long way toward solving most consumer protection problems.

In a brief Reader's Digest piece, entitled "Five Steps to Smarter Shopping," he shows why some consumers ". . .never seem to have any big problems in their buying. Their appliances work, their servicemen do repairs promptly and reasonably, nothing ever seems to get unmanageable." These consumers, finds Mr. Wirsig, ". . .pay attention to. . .five operating principles. . .when they shop." These principles he lists as follows: 1. Always shop in reputable stores and deal with reputable companies. 2. Don't look for "something for nothing." It doesn't exist. 3. Shop around, comparing prices and values, before you make a major purchase. 4. Before doing business with a repair service unknown to you, check the experiences of your friends. 5. Read contracts and warranties before you sign any installment contract. Be sure you understand.

If consumers will but realize it, reputable businessmen and business establishments, which represent the vast majority of all those with whom consumers deal, are more than anxious to please consumers—to do a good job. No one knows better than the businessman, the manufacturer or the dealer that business longevity depends on consumer satisfaction.

Letters to the Editor

To The Editor:

Congressman Neal Smith (D-Ia) demonstrated very dramatically to members of Congress from the city, during debate on his strategic reserve bill, that food is cheaper than dirt—cheaper in fact than manure.

To prove that farm prices have little to do with food prices, Smith took five-pound bags of cornmeal, flour, dirt, cat litter, cow manure and sheep manure to the House floor when his bill was debated.

One by one he held them up and announced what they had cost him in Washington D.C., stores. The cornmeal cost 59 cents, the flour cost 59 cents, the cat litter cost 79 cents, the sheep manure cost 79 cents and the cow manure also cost 79 cents.

The point is, the Iowa congressman told House members from the city, this bill to help farmers who cannot finance themselves for another year, has absolutely nothing to do with the cost of groceries in the basket.

This must be another case where a picture is worth a thousand words, because the House passed the bill, only to have it shot down by the Senate.

Most recent figures show that when we lose six farmers they take with them one large business from our area, so it was more than farmers that suffered defeat.

There is no object in manufacturing equipment and products for farmers when they can't afford to buy them. In spite of some comments to the contrary, the amount of new equipment standing on machine lots indicate slow sales. Weld and patch up the old equipment seems to be the way of life for most farmers today. Hence I believe that everyone in America lost in this most recent blow.

Sincerely Arnold R. Thompson

Editor, The Times
Dear Sir:

Funny thing about names: If the Feb 22nd shin-dig were called the once a year "Friendly Meetings", Everyone would turn out to attend them, and rightly so. Do you suppose that simply changing the name to "Friendly meeting" would help? Let's examine what goes on: Friends and neighbors get together and talk over their plans for the coming year; reflect upon how last year went; may mention a mistake made once that won't be repeated; probably discuss their ambitions, fears and anxieties; likely argue some: and generally enjoy themselves and good company over coffee and home-made cookies and other good stuff. The wives meet new neighbors and the men visit with friends seldom seen throughout the year except at these once a year affairs.

I really think it's a downright shame to stick a name like "precinct caucus" on the "Friendly meetings" held this year on the 22nd of February. It doesn't do them justice. Precinct caucus sounds cold, stiff and formal. And it's not.

It's friends of like philosophy getting together and asking:

(1) How are things with us?
(2) Do we have problems?
(3) What may be the solution?
(4) What do we want for our future?

Probably one of the best and easiest ways to prepare for a "friendly meeting" is to jot down any problems that you can think of, and possible solutions. Bring them, (your notes) and your wife or husband along for coffee and other good stuff at the annual friendly meeting: the precinct causus on the 22nd.

notes from the governor

In 1971, Minnesota greatly expanded and enriched its program of property tax relief for our state's low-income senior citizens.

Tax department commissioner Arthur Roemer estimates that 61,000 elderly homeowners and renters now are eligible for the $8 million provided for this purpose.

Those refunds are available either as a direct credit against state income tax returns, or as a cash payment if little or no income tax is owed.

Yet if history repeats itself, many Minnesotans who badly need this relief will not claim it.

The state has launched an intensive effort to improve on this record.

The tax department, through contacts with all senior citizens' clubs, spot radio and television announcements, and other means, is encouraging those eligible to file for this relief.

The governor's council on aging is conducting a series of 31 informational meetings on the new law throughout the state. Because of changes in the law, refunds are easier to claim this year.

First, the senior citizens' tax form is printed on yellow paper to make it distinctive. The type is larger and easier to read.

The deadline for filing is June 30, which means applicants can wait until after the April 15 rush if they so choose.

If you have not received the yellow 1971 Minnesota forms and instructions for claiming the senior citizens income tax credit (it's a yellow booklet) in the mail, you can obtain the forms by calling 612-221-3364, or by picking them up at almost any bank or post office in Minnesota.

If you are an elderly homeowner or renter with an income of less than $5,000 a year, be sure to take advantage of this change in the tax law. It was passed for your benefit.

Snowmobiling and Minnesota's northern wilderness areas are usually mentioned in the same breath. But did you know about the great wilderness trips available in the state's southeastern corner?

Stretching from Hastings all the way to the Iowa border is the Memorial Hardwood state forest. Unlike the softwood northern woods, this one offers a more "domesticated" wilderness experience, embodying a totally different kind of natural beauty.

The state foresters have recently opened a new snowmobile trail, starting from Reno, which climbs and winds for about 19 miles through some otherwise inaccessible, choice areas. It is not a trail suited for speed demons, as the traveller encounters numerous cutbacks and curves in reaching the summits of several great hills.

But in this enchanted country, who wants to travel fast? The scenic vistas are breathtaking and the opportunity to observe wildlife is ever present.

Having seen the majestic Hiawathaland bluffs from Highway 61, imagine being on top looking down. Perhaps at a sleepy farmyard tucked away in a valley extracted directly from Grimm's Fairy Tales. Or examining unusual limestone protrusions which seem to have no business occurring so high. Or exploring a cave or two where perhaps the Indians of two hundred years ago sought shelter during a hunt.

Discover the ruins of a log cabin, perhaps belonging to one of Minnesota's first pioneers, and wonder how it can be that the old pump still delivers fresh water. Stop and watch the grouse scurry across your path, or look behind you to glimpse the deer trying to figure out what you and your machine are doing here.

Observe the forest itself—great oak and maples not unlike those seen in a Walt Disney animated feature—and think about a summer backpacking tour through the same area.

Yes, southern Minnesota does have a unique brand of wilderness, and a snowmobile is about the only way you can enjoy it in winter. Take a friend or two, a couple of thermos jugs, some lunch, and enjoy a part of Minnesota you probably didn't know existed.

Cross-country skiing is one of the nation's fastest growing winter sports. And Minnesota, with its open spaces and frozen lakes, is a mecca for cross-country skiing enthusiasts.

The skier merely dons his skiing garb and takes off across fields, hills or scenic paths. It is a relaxing, safe winter sport that even a novice can enjoy almost immediately.

Minnesota provides the cross-country skier with quiet back trails away from the urban area. Cares are forgotten as the skier moves along a quiet, winter wonderland trail.

Cross-country skiing provides a new social life for people of all ages. It has given rise to cross-country skiing parties, as groups gather at a friend's home, take off on a ski tour and return to the house for refreshments to warm up and talk about the pleasures of winter in Minnesota.

Only about a half hour is required to master the fundamentals of cross-country skiing. The procedure used is similar to walking with some gliding mixed in. It is somewhat like walking in snow shoes, except that it is more graceful and much easier. The skier can move across pastures, frozen lakes or over gentle slopes and hills with ease.

With proper clothing, the cross-country skier need not worry about winter's discomforts, even in sub-zero weather. It is important that clothing be loose and easy. Alpine stretch pants should not be used, and shirts or tops must not bind the shoulders.

Clothing should breathe. Nylon clothing should be avoided because it makes the skier perspire, soon making him cold and clammy. Heavy clothing is unnecessary because he is always moving. The skier's body generates enough heat to keep him warm. Remember, the cross-country skier does not have to wait for a chair lift or ride sitting idly in it. Hats, earbands and gloves are a necessity, but they should not be too heavy.

Minnesota has some of the best cross country skiing areas in the nation. Following is a list of some of them.

Minneapolis-St. Paul Area—Theodore Wirth park, on Glenwood parkway between U.S. 55 and Golden Valley road; Jonathan (Oakvik House)—Southwest of Minneapolis, take Minnesota 5 west from 494, then south on Hwy. 41 for 1.8 miles; all Twin City golf courses; Hyland Lake park reserve, southwest of the Twin Cities, take 494 west from Normandale road, turn south on Bush Lake road; Dakota county parkland, 10 miles from St. Paul, take U.S. 61 to Cottage Grove, then left only County 19 at the Chemolite plant, then 6.5 miles to the turnaround; Carver park, 35 miles from Minneapolis, take Hwy. 5 through Victoria, turn right at Dairy Queen for two miles; Marine-on-St. Croix, 45 miles from St. Paul, between Taylors Falls and Stillwater.

Central Minnesota—Alpenhorn, near Lake Koronis at Paynesville; Hollister Farm at Mora; Camping Unlimited near Cambridge; Sherburn national wildlife refuge; Banning state park at Kettle River; El Rancho Manana near Cold Spring; St. Croix State Park near Hinckley.

Northeastern Minnesota—Ski trail owned by city of Cloquet; Gooseberry state park, 12 miles east of Two Harbors on Lake Superior; Hidden Valley or Burntside North at Ely.

Northwestern Minnesota—natural history area at Crow Wing; Val Chatel at Park Rapids; Pillsbury state park near Brainerd.

Southeastern Minn—Cannon River scout camp near Cannon Falls; Welch village 30 miles southeast of the Twin Cities, take U.S. 35 or 61 south to highway 50 and then east on 61 seven miles to the turnoff.

The American Conscience

by Dr. RUDY SKOGERBOE

President Teddy Roosevelt was famous for being a great President, but one of his statements lives in our memories perhaps even more. He said, "Speak softly and carry a big stick." This foreign policy idea seems forgotten today. Many in our country have watched with horror the establishment of a hostile enemy base within 90 miles from Florida. There has been a lot of noise about Cuba, but our performance rests with the disaster of the Bay of Pigs.

Today one thinks of the unified spirit during World War II and one is impressed with the change today. There is a mushrooming spirit of dissent which seems to say that loyalty to our country is not important. There is a spirit that seems to ignore the stated aims of the world communist movement. I noticed President Nixon was very careful to regard these voices as loyal differences of opinion. I am not able to be quite so charitable.

Some say, and I'm inclined to agree, that the multitude of those who denounce our participation in the Viet Nam War have actually prolonged it. It was this spirit of antagonism which the leaders in Hanoi used to keep up their morale and determination to continue. In fact, the enemy even used the speeches by our leaders to brain wash or torture the American servicemen in their prisons.

Senator Kennedy implied recently that we are the ones that keep this war going. He said, "We know the monstrous bombing will continue. And we know that thousands of soldiers of North and South Viet Nam. . .will die for the simple reason that Mr. Nixon will not allow the Saigon Government to falter until he is secure at home for another term in office. . ." "Let us end completely every aspect of our military involvement in Viet Nam once and for all." Now this is one voice that might confuse our image of a unified nation.

Senator McCarthy refused to sign a loyalty oath in Illinois recently. His reason was that it was not relevant. Now the fact that loyalty to the United States is not important to one that runs for the Presidency is also a new attitude, at least.

In 1970 a blue ribbon bi-partisan panel studied our national military situation and flatly stated we were falling behind Russia and unless we changed our course quickly, we would be vulnerable to nuclear blackmail. Senator Muskie has his own ideas of defense and stated, ". . .we are already more than strong enough to defend our security." This is another opinion.

No wonder we are a country without a solid front before a hopeful and perhaps a wistful world. Free people still look to us for leadership as well as help. We have some tough choices to make. The choice is which set of drums do we want to hear. Is it the near and thunderous beat of defeat and appeasement, or is it the measured, time tested rhythm of loyalty to freedom and strength? If we make a choice, it might be well to let some of these leaders know how we feel. It might be necessary for our future as one of these leaders of different opinions might become our next President.

Step-Saving Trio

For tight meal schedules, Kay Kellogg recommends serving Easy Meatballs. This hearty entree is prepared using a trio of step saving ingredients including corn flake crumbs, an economical binder and extender for many ground meat main dishes. Packaged spaghetti sauce mix is used as a seasoning for the meatballs and in combination with canned gravy to make a savory mushroom sauce. While the meatballs are baking, there is ample time to prepare accompaniments such as hot fluffy rice, buttered noodles or mashed potatoes and a simple green vegetable.

A helpful shopping tip — two pounds ground meats packaged for meat loaf, often available in supermarkets, may be substituted for the beef, pork and veal.

EASY MEATBALLS

4 cups corn flakes or
1 cup packaged corn flake crumbs
1 egg
¾ cup milk
1 1½-oz. pkg. dry spaghetti sauce mix
1 lb. ground beef
½ lb. ground pork
½ lb. ground veal
2 10½-oz. cans (2½ cups) mushroom gravy

1. If corn flakes are used, measure; crush into fine crumbs.
2. Place corn flakes crumbs, egg, milk and ½ package spaghetti sauce mix in mixing bowl; beat well. Add ground meats; mix only until combined. Shape rounded measuring tablespoonfuls of ground meat mixture into balls. Place in single layer in foil-lined baking pan.
3. Bake in moderate oven (375°F.) about 30 minutes or until well browned; remove from oven.
4. Meanwhile, in small mixing bowl, stir together gravy and remaining ½ package spaghetti sauce mix; pour evenly over meatballs.
5. Return meatballs to oven for about 15 minutes or until sauce is thoroughly heated.

Yield: 8 servings, 5-6 Easy Meatballs each

EAST GRAND FORKS goalie Gordy Hangsleben somehow managed to block this breakaway shot by Prowler center Mike Hamilton during first period action in Thursday night's game in the city arena. The Green Wave netminder thwarted Hamilton on three clean breakaways during the game, but the Prowler senior scored his teams' third goal on a deflection to raise his total to 19 for the year. The Prowlers will be back in action tomorrow night (Tuesday) when they host a strong Crookston Central squad in the sports arena.

LHS Pucksters Squeeze By Rams 3-2 In Final Seconds

Mike Hamilton's unassisted goal with just 30 seconds remaining in the game gave Thief River Falls a thrilling 3-2 region eight hockey triumph over arch-rival Roseau Saturday night before a large crowd in the sports arena.

With the score tied at 2-2 in the final period, the determined Rams skated off two successive Prowler power plays with 6:01 and 4:02 remaining. Both teams tested each others' goalies in the final minute of play as the fans began settling back in their seats to await a five-minute sudden death overtime period.

But suddenly the Prowlers swarmed around the Ram net and Jon Jensen's close range backhand slipped under Roseau netminder Willard Comstock and slowly crawled toward the Ram goaline. A Roseau defenseman managed to get his stick on the puck, however, and swept the disk out of the goal crease, only to have Hamilton appear out of nowhere and poke home the winning goal.

Both teams had played on even terms throughout the entire fast moving contest with goalies on both squads turning in remarkable performances. The Prowlers' Pete Sullivan blocked several Roseau rebounds as he turned aside 25 shots for the evening. Comstock kicked out 34 Prowler shots, including a number of clean breakaways.

The Prowlers displayed sharp passing in the opening period, but couldn't quite connect on several near misses. Jensen, a junior wing, put Thief River Falls in front 1-0 as he stickhandled past two Roseau defensemen, deked the goalie and scored on a close range backhand with 13:26 remaining.

Roseau came back to tie the game 1-1 as freshman Bruce Olson slammed in a rebound from the right side on an assist from Dana Byfuglien with 6:51 left.

The two teams kept both goalies busy in the second stanza as Sullivan came up with 13 saves and Comstock stopped 12. Although the sharp passing continued, the Prowlers were frustrated on numberous scoring opportunities until Rory Anderson's perfect lead pass caught Hamilton in full stride down the middle for a breakaway goal with 10:08 remaining.

The Rams came right back, however, as another freshman, Mike Burggraf, poked in his own rebound with both teams skating a man short. Burggraf was credited with an unassisted goal with 5:52 left in the second period.

The Prowlers were completely thwarted in any attempt to assemble a power play in the third period as the youthful Rams let it be known that they have their eyes on a second straight region title.

THE PROWLER junior varsity won its second game in a week against the Roseau Bees in the preliminary contest. Thief River Falls won Saturday night's contest 3-1 after posting a 4-2 triumph over Roseau in a prelim to the Red Lake Falls varsity game Tuesday night. Mike Froehle, Ross Gutterud and Gary Elleson scored for the TRF junior varsity Saturday night.

PROWLER WING Tom Goddard raises his arms in hockey fashion after scoring a goal against East Grand Forks Thursday night in the Thief River Falls sports arena. The puck rests in the net as the Lincoln junior celebrates his seventh goal of the season. The score came with 44 seconds remaining in the first period on an assist from Jeff Bottem. Thief River Falls won the region eight battle 4-2.

TRF Stops Green Wave Skaters

Thief River Falls flooded Green Wave goalie Gordy Hagsleben with 30 shots in the first two periods Thursday night as the Prowlers fired home four first period goals enroute to a 4-1 triumph over East Grand Forks.

John Schmitz' icemen capitalized on Hangsleben's flopping style of play at the Prowlers flipped the puck over the prone senior netminder for a 3-0 lead with 6:16 remaining in the opening stanza. "East Side" countered for a 3-1 contest before the Prowlers grabbed a 4-1 advantage with just 44 seconds remaining in the period. East Grand Forks cut the difference to 4-2 in the second period, but both teams offenses were hindered with a rash of aggravating penalties during the final two periods.

Junior wing Jon Jensen's unassisted long range blast over Hangsleben's right shoulder opened the game's scoring with 10:11 remaining. Moments earlier the "East Side" goaltender stopped Mike Hamilton's clean breakaway, but the Prowlers continued to pressure the Green Wave defense, culminating with Jensen's scoring shot.

The Prowlers grabbed a 2-0 lead when Jon Markstrom poked in a loose puck over the downed Wave goalie with 7:20 remaining. Linemates Mike Fitzgerald and Don Brown were given assists on the rebound shot.

Just 1:04 later the Prowlers upped their lead to 3-0 as Hamilton deflected Tom Wurst's rifle shot from outside the blue line.

The Prowlers maintained advantage in the roughly-played first period until senior wing Dale Pesch poked in a rebound from the right side with 1:22 remaining. Dave Flom and Lynn Olson earned assists on the close range shot.

Junior Tom Goddard put the Prowlers out in front 4-1 as he beat Hangsleben with a rebound from close range. Jeff Bottem's perfect centering pass earned an assist on the play with just 44 seconds left in the first period.

Dale Pesch scored his second goal of the game to bring the Wave to within 4-2 with 6:10 left to play in the second period. The shifty senior tallied from close range without a Prowler defenseman in the vicinity on a Green Wave power play.

The second period Wave score was the last goal of the contest as the teams combined to accumulate nine penalties in the last two periods. The Prowlers suffered four minor calls in the last stanza alone.

Prowler junior netminder Pete Sullivan stopped 28 Green Wave shots, with 12 saves in the third period being the busiest portion of the contest. The Green Wave skated six attackers against four in the last 40 seconds of the game with the Prowlers skating a man short and Hangsleben pulled from the "East Side" net. The senior Wave goalie turned back 36 Prowler drives.

THE PROWLER junior varsity began the night's activity with a 3-1 triumph in the preliminary game.

Scott Reed broke a scoreless contest in the second period for a 1-0 Prowler JV lead. Mike Drury's scoring shot made it 2-1 going into the last stanza when Mike Onkka scored the game's final goal. Joel Folger turned in a one-goal performance in the nets.

Prowler Hoopsters Beat Crookston And Fosston

Thief River Falls saw a 14-point 57-43 lead with 5:21 remaining in the game slip to just a two-point 57-55 lead with 1:55 left before the Prowlers sank a series of crucial free throws enroute to an exciting 68-63 Big Five Conference win over Crookston Friday night in the Lincoln gym.

The triumph over the Pirates, plus a Saturday night 72-62 victory at Fosston, upped the Prowler season record to an impressive 12-4. The squad will be back in action tomorrow night (Tuesday) when the Prowlers travel to Ada for a make-up contest scheduled for a 7:30 start.

The Prowlers used a stifling defense and complete teamwork on offense to race to an 18-9 first quarter bulge over the strong Pirate squad. The visiting Pirates managed to trail only 35-27 at the half, despite being able to get off just 16 field goal attempts against the aggressive Prowler defense in the first half.

Thief River Falls maintained an almost-comfortable margin during the third quarter as the Prowlers took a 48-37 lead into the last stanza.

Lee Swanson's quint pulled out to their biggest lead of the contest when Ordean Peterson's fast break lay-up gave the Prowlers a hefty 57-43 advantage with 5:21 remaining in the game. But the Pirates, on the verge of being routed by a team they had beaten 72-66 earlier this season, respounded with 12 straight points over a 3:26 span to climb to within 57-55 with 1:55 left.

Kent and Rande Smith gave the Prowlers breathing room as they calmly sank four straight free throws for a 61-55 lead with 1:15 left. The Pirates cut the margin to four, 61-57, but the Prowlers again appeared to have everything under control on three Kent Smith free throws for a seven-point 64-57 lead with just 42 seconds remaining. However, the Pirates quickly came back for six straight points and a 64-63 contest with still 19 seconds remaining.

The Pirates' pressing defense committed a two-shot backcourt foul with 15 seconds left and Peterson sank both gift tosses for a 66-63 lead. The lanky junior guard added insult to injury as he stole the Pirates' inbounds pass and made an easy lay-up with 10 seconds left for the 68-63 final.

Although the Prowlers scored just one field goal the last 5:32 of the game, the squad made the most of their free throw opportunities as the Prowlers sank nine of 10 gift tosses the last 1:39 of the noisy affair.

The Pirates attempted just 36 shots in the game, but Crookston connected on 22 of them for a sizzling 61 per cent performance. The Prowlers shot an even 40 per cent on 26 of 65 attempts. The Pirates were even more effective at the free throw line where they sank 19 of 23. Thief River Falls turned in a commendable performance from the gift line on 16 of 22 shots.

As the case has been all season, the Prowlers enjoyed balanced scoring with Peterson getting 19, Jeff Rhoden 18, Rande Smith 14 and Kent Smith 10. Lean Dave Broekemeir led all scorers with 27 while Gary Wagner added 10 for the Pirates who slipped to 8-4 with the loss.

The Prowlers made it four straight wins Saturday night with a 72-62 triumph over a stubborn Fosston quint. Thief River Falls pulled out to a 19-13 first quarter lead, but the Greyhounds fought back to gain a 33-33 tie at the half. The Prowler offense caught fire in the third stanza as Thief River Falls ran to a 52-42 lead going into the final eight minutes with Rande Smith leading the way. The 6-5 senior center scored a game-high 28 points, with nine field goals coming in the third and early part of the fourth quarters.

The Prowlers pulled out to an 18-point lead midway through the final period before Swanson inserted reserves for valuable playing experience. With Smith in double figures for the Prowlers were Ordean Peterson with 15, Tom Kays 12 and Kent Smith 12. Rande led the way with 12 rebounds while Kays hauled down 10. Peterson was credited with eight assists in the game.

"We're pleased with our performances," said coach Swanson. "We finally put two good games back to back. We had real good team togetherness from the entire squad to produce both wins. The key to Friday night's game was rebounding; we held a 36 to 21 advantage which is pretty dominate. Rande pulled down 19 to lead us in that department. Saturday night Fosston played us real though, but our kids seemed to get stronger as the game went along, and I think that was a telling factor. We're real happy with the total team effort. Glen Peters and Vern Treat have been working real hard with the boys and we'll just try to go out and win those last four games and then see what happens."

Fertile Wins NW Title

Fertile won the team championship with 114 points in the annual Northwest Invitational wrestling meet held Saturday in the Falcons' home gym.

Crookston with 105 and Oklee with 102 points were the nearest competitors to the balanced Fertile squad. The rest of the field included Greenbush with 88 points, Thief River Falls 70, Roseau 51, Waubun 29 and East Grand Forks 21.

Ed Krystosek's Lincoln matmen failed to claim an individual championship with three wrestlers tasting defeat in the finals. Perry Omdahl (145) and Mark Kaushagen (155) suffered championship match pins at the hands of Oklee wrestlers Lance Mandt and Kelly Lunden while Steve Thorstad (180) lost a 3-0 decision to Mike Grahn of Roseau.

Ron Kalinoski (112), Joe Hezar (126) and Steve Wold (138) placed fourth in the meet. Lonnie Olson (103), Steve Sorvig (167) and Larry Panek (heavyweight) finished fifth while Steve Furuseth (135) was a sixth-place finisher.

The Prowlers will finish the regular season portion of their 1971-72 season tomorrow night (Tuesday) when they host Mahnomen in the Lincoln gym, beginning at 7:30. The district 31 wrestling meet will be held Saturday at Warren.

NORTHLAND FORWARD Jay Forney (12) leans into a shot while Vermilion's Gary Beckman (24) raises a hand in an attempt to block the shot during Saturday's MJCAA game in the Northland gym. Northland's Kent Hanson (42) and Tony Burke (54), along with Vermilion's Bob Hoffner (30) trail the play. Vermilion won the game 78-71. Northland gained a split in weekend action however, as the Northmen nipped Mesabi 82-81 Friday night. Next action for Northland will be Wednesday night when the Northmen host rival Crookston Tech in a 7:30 conference game.

NSJC Cagers Stop Mesabi 82-81 But Lose To Vermilion 78-71

Northland state junior college split a pair of close MJCAA conference basketball games against Iron Range foes over the weekend as the Northmen squeezed by Mesabi 82-81 Friday night before losing a 78-71 decision to powerful Vermilion Saturday afternoon. Both games were played in the Northland gym.

Chet Engelman's NSJC quint evened its record at 10-10 for a few hours following their dramatic 82-81 triumph over Mesabi as freshman guard Dale Hanson (TRF) sank a free throw with the game tied 81-all and time expired.

"It was a great play on Dale's part," said Engelman, "he pressed (Jeff) Norstad, deflected his pass, recovered the ball and drew a foul as the buzzer sounded."

Northland grabbed a 2-0 lead on Tony Burke's game-opening field goal and held a slim lead until Mesabi's Dan McKay sank two free throws for a 9-8 Norseman lead with 16:10 remaining in the first half. The Virginia-based quint pulled out to its biggest margin of the first twenty minutes at 43-32 with 50 seconds remaining before Willie Bayne's field goal cut it to 43-34 at the half.

Mesabi pulled out to its biggest lead of the game, 52-40, with 16:59 remaining, before a Northland comeback effort finally overhauled the Norseman 62-58 on four straight free throws by Burke with 11:07 left.

The game remained close the rest of the way with Neil McKenzie's free throw tieing the contest 81-81 with 43 seconds remaining. Norsted missed the first shot on a one and one situation with seven seconds remaining, with Burke drawing a foul from McKenzie on the rebound.

Burke's free throw was also off target when Norsted grabbed the rebound, only to have Hanson turn in his game-ending performance.

The Northmen were led in scoring and rebounding by Burke. The 6-6 Bemidji product scored 24 points and pulled down 15 caroms. Also in double figures for the Northmen were Willie Bayne with 14, Jay Forney 13 and Kent Hanson with 12. McKay led the Norseman with 16, while Rick Thorson scored 16, Norsted 14 and Don LaLonde 11.

Northland held a 44-32 rebound advantage over Mesabi. The Northmen shot 42 per cent from the field and 70 per cent from the free throw line while Mesabi turned in a 44 per cent performance from the field and 67 per cent mark from the gift line.

Northland played a strong Vermilion quint on even terms throughout the first half Saturday afternoon, before the Ely hoopsters broke loose for a couple of scoring sprees in the second half for their ninth win against only one loss in conference action.

The Northeast Division leaders led only by short margins until they scored eight straight points for a 36-25 lead with 6:21 remaining in the opening half. The Ironmen stretched their lead to 41-29 before Northland trimmed the difference to 43-38 at intermission.

Both squads exchanged scoring streaks in the second half as the Ironmen pulled out to leads of 11 and 13 points, only to have the Northmen climb back to within 5 and 6 points.

Vermilion led 66-54 with 6:53 remaining, but two field goals by Bayne sandwiched around a Kent Hanson free ghrow cut the margin to just 66-59 and Burke's short jumper made it 66-61 with 4:51 remaining.

The Ironmen moved to a 71-63 lead with 3:26 remaining, but the Northmen fought back to trim the margin to just 75-71 with 21 seconds left in the game. However, missed free ghrows by Northland and a fast break lay-up, along with a pair of free throws by the Ironmen gave Vermilion the 78-71 triumph.

Four Northmen reached double figures as Kent Hanson scored 16, Burke 15, Forney 14 and Dale Hanson 11. The Ironmen were paced by Larry Potter and Doug Schmoll with 17 apeice, Tom Marinaro with 15 and Gary Beckman 12.

Northland shot 44 per cent from the field, but managed just a poor 15 of 32 performance at the free throw line. Vermilion connected on a 47 per cent performance from the field and only 12 of 21 from the gift lane.

"Despite losing to Vermilion I was happy with our performance," stated Engelman. "The kids hustled well and played pretty fair ball once we got going. Our free throw shooting hurt us most in the Vermilion game. I still think we have a pretty fair club and we'll just try to win our last four games and finish with a .500 record for the first time in Northland's history."

The Northmen will be back in action Wednesday night when the Northmen host Crookston Tech in the Northland gym, beginning at 7:30.

MORE THAN 99% NEVER BECOME LITTER!

Less than one percent of beer cans or non-returnable bottles ever result in litter.
Is it logical to single out a major Minnesota industry and ban or impose deposits on 100% of its "one-way" packages because perhaps one-in-a-thousand containers may be discorded by careless people?
Even if all brewers were literally put out of business, most of the litter-problem and most of the litter would remain.
Brewers want litter-control, but the first fair and sure step to STOP LITTER is to STOP THE LITTERERS.

HIGH-JUMPING Larry Potter (34) didn't have to jump very high on this shot over Northland's Dale Hanson during Saturday's Vermilion-NSJC game in the Northland gym. Potter's style might seem a bit strange, but it's very effective as the freshman forward pumped in 17 points to lead the Ironmen to a 78-71 triumph. Potter was an All-State selection last year at Duluth Central.

Lincoln Matmen Nip Ada 27-24

Prowler senior Steve Thorstad gained a second period pin in his 180 pound match Thursday night to break a 21-21 tie and propel Thief River Falls to a 27-24 dual meet wrestling victory over Ada in the Vikings' gym.

Paul Dahlin's 3-1 decision over the Prowlers' Steve Sorvig in the 167 pound match tied the meet at 21-all with just two matches remaining. Thorstad moved to a 2-0 lead before pinning Bruce Docken with 20 seconds remaining in the second period. Sophomore Steve Luchau closed the final gap to 27-24 when he recorded a narrow 4-3 win over the Prowlers' Larry Panek in the heavyweight finale.

The win gives the Prowlers a 5-6 dual meet record this season with just one match remaining before the squad enters district 31 competition Saturday, February 12. Ed Krystosek's matmen will host Mahnomen in the Lincoln gym tomorrow night (Tuesday), beginning at 7:30.

Kurt Muzzy started the Prowlers off in his customary winning fashion as the Prowler junior pinned Viking freshman Mark Lines for a quick 6-0 Prowler lead.

Ada came right back however, as eighth grader Mike Ambuehl stretched the Prowlers' Lonnie Olson with 35 seconds remaining in the first period of their 103 pound match for a 6-6 score.

The Vikings continued their winning streak as senior Mark Hellerud gained a 4-point, 10-0 triumph over sophomore Daryl Myers in the 119 pound match for a 16-6 Ada lead.

The Prowlers' Lyle Olson scored six first period points and held on for a 6-4 triumph over the Vikings' Tim Merkins, a seventh grader, to narrow the Ada margin to 16-9.

Prowler Dave Furuseth and the Vikings' Eric Benesh battled to a 7-7 draw at 132 to maintain a seven-point Ada lead, 18-11.

Two wins by Tim Wold and Perry Omdahl tied the match 18-18 with just four matches left. Wold battered the Vikings' Mitch Vakock for a 16-0 blasting in their 138 pound match to cut the Ada lead to 18-15 and Omdahl gained a 4-2 triumph over the Vikings' Rick Klockman to tie the match.

The Prowlers took a 21-18 lead when Mark Kaushagen gained a third period reversal to defeat Jeff Sorenson 5-4 in the 155 pound match, before Dahlin tied the score at 21-21.

The District 31 matches will be held at the Warren high school auditorium Saturday, with the region eight matches scheduled Friday, February 18, at Bemidji state college.

Northland Pucksters Drub Crookston 15-2

Lundbohm opened the game's scoring with a goal 1:53 into the first period on an assist from Marshall. Crookston quickly tied the contest 1-1 as Mike O'Neil beat sophomore goalie Maurie Pearson just seven seconds after the Northland score.

The Northmen then went to work as they rapped in three more goals before the first period ended. Bolduc scored twice and Barger added a single goal for the 4-1 first period lead.

Snowcat Safety Taught To 60,000 In DNR Program

Approximately 60,000 Minnesota boys and girls have completed the snowmobile safety training course conducted by the Department of Natural Resources, it was announced by Commissioner Robert L. Herbst.

The program was established by state law in 1969.

Purpose of the course is to instruct young snowmobilers in safe operation, knowledge of the laws and regulations, respect for property and environmental problems.

The training program is taught by some 3,000 volunteer instructors, some of whom belong to organized clubs, and is under the supervision of the Department's division of enforcement and field service.

"Many individuals have volunteered their services for this program" said Herbst "and we commend them highly."

Burt Ellig, safety coordinator, said persons who wish to take the course or teach it should contact their local snowmobile club or conservation officer for information.

If unable to make arrangements locally, Ellig said he could be reached at department headquarters, Centennial building, St. Paul. Phone 221-3376.

Interim Report On Snowmobile Injuries Issued

Interim report on an independent medical research study of snowmobile accidents, being conducted in northwestern Minnesota and the upper peninsula of Michigan this winter, indicates a decrease in snowmobile accidents related to mechanical failure, but an increase in lower leg injuries to snowmobile operators.

Larry Sell, M.D., of Manistique, Mich., a Physician who is principal investigator of the research study Enterprises, Inc., of Thief River Falls, reported that of the 130 cases tabulated to date, 48 per cent of the subjects have received lower leg injuries, 26 per cent have required hospitalization and 24 per cent of the injured subjects have indicated use of alcoholic beverages prior to their accident.

In a similar study conducted in Michigan last year, Dr. Sell found 46 per cent of the subjects treated sustained lower leg injuries. He attributed the increase in this type of injury to the sparse snow cover in the study's test area this winter.

The principal investigator noted that only 3.5 per cent of the injuries recorded in his current study were related to mechanical failures, compared to about seven per cent in his study last year.

About 24 per cent of the 130 cases reported involved head and neck injuries. Dr. Sell said his statistics indicate helmet and goggle usage is down about four per cent from last year. At that time, about 50 per cent of the subjects wore helmets and 60 per cent of the subjects wore helmets or goggles. "This fact is particularly disturbing," he emphasized, "when you consider a great deal of the reported snowmobiling fatalities result from severe head injuries."

Close to 86 per cent of Dr. Sell's subjects in the study to date were males and 14 per cent were females. About 51 per cent of the accidents occurred during darkness and 12 per cent of the subjects were under 12 years of age. About 26 per cent of the subjects were between 12 and 20 years old. The average age was 24.5.

Although no fatalities were reported in the study area, a total of 14,500 square miles, snowmobile fatalities have increased in both Michigan and Minnesota this winter. Dr. Sell said, a review of all fatal accidents in Michigan to date reveals approximately 60 per cent involved a collision with automobiles and occurred in high population density areas. "This indicates the need to further urge all snowmobilers to use established trails and stay off roadways," he said.

Upon completion of the study, Dr. Sell will present specific recommendations on machine design, equipment-use and snowmobile safety standards to Arctic Enterprises.

Signs Are Aiding

'No Trespassing' signs seem to be keeping snowmobile operators out of restricted areas in Itasca state park, the Department of Natural Resources reported today.

Park officials had been troubled for some time with the problem of keeping snowmobilers on the established trails and keeping them out of wilderness and scientific study areas.

"It may be a bit early to start crowing about the success of these signs," said Waino Kontola, Itasca state park manager, "but it does look encouraging."

Marques Haynes Leads Magicians

Marques Haynes, "Mr. Basketball" to millions of fans throughout the world, will lead his Fabulous Magicians basketball team into Thief River Falls Monday, February 14, when the Magicians meet the area coaches in the Lincoln high school gym.

Haynes is kept busy 12 months of the year as owner, player, coach and president of the Magicians. The master of his trade, a real heard worker on and off the court, the Oklahoma native has made his Magicians one of the most sought-after and popular attractions in his entertainment and sports fields.

Marques continues to perform at high peak, despite the fact that he has been touring professionally for almost three decades. Haynes is devoted to the sport of basketball, but perfers the entertainment phase of the game. He gets a kick out of watching the fans react to the comedy in basketball. Still physically fit, and always ready for top-flight action, the master Magician intends to play in another two ro three thousand games before he retires. He's already performed in 6,894 contests prior to the 1971-72 season.

The three ring circus of fun that Haynes and his fabulous Magicians put on for the spectators is the kind of good wholesome family entertainment that is really enjoyed by everyone, young and old.

Whenever possible on tour, Haynes sets up free clinics for youngsters. The boys and girls enjoy all of the fundamentals taught to them by Haynes and his staff.

"The most rewarding part of my career has been teaching the youngsters," said Haynes, "If they go home knowing a little more than they did before they came to the clinic it makes me happy."

Haynes has repeatedly rejected offers from the pro clubs to play in the NBA. There are loyalists who think that Haynes could still help any NBA or ABA quintet. He's certainly in tip-top condition and shoots with the best of the pros. But he's very happy in his present position and that is making the Fabulous Magicians one of the top attractions in the sports world.

Advance tickets for the event will be $1.50 for adults, $1 for senior and junior high students and 50 cents for children under 12. Tickets at the door will be $1.75, $1.25 and 75 cents. Advance tickets are available at all Thief River Falls schools, including the junior college and vocational school, as well as at Larson Music, Model Barber Shop, Corner Drug, Ekeren Drug and J & B Drug.

Fergus Falls State Hospital Is Center

by Jeannette L. Baker, M.D.
Medical Director, and
Robert F. Hoffmann
Hospital Administrator

In 1971, the Fergus Falls state hospital became the first regional center in the state of Minnesota. This means that the hospital is now authorized to admit and program for all mentally retarded from the 16 counties of the Lakeland and Northwest areas in addition to Roseau county. We also admit and program for all mentally ill and all drug dependent persons from these 17 counties.

In addition to Roseau county, this area includes the following counties: Kittson, Marshall, Pennington, Red Lake, Polk, Norman, Mahnomen, Clay, Becker, Wilkin, Otter Tail, Traverse, Grant, Douglas, Stevens and Pope.

Planning for this change has been going on for approximately five years as a cooperative effort with the Lakeland and Northwestern mental health centers and area committees, the 17 county welfare departments, the department of public welfare and other community agencies concerned with the mentally ill, mentally retarded and drug dependent persons.

In 1969, we began admitting drug dependent persons and received by transfer mentally retarded residents from the Brainerd and Cambridge state hospitals whose counties of residence would be closer to the Fergus Falls state hospital. In 1971, Brainerd state hospital initiated programs for the drug dependent persons and mentally ill from the Upper Mississippi-Northern Pines areas. Simultaneously, as these new programs were established, we ceased admitting patients from these two areas and they were, instead, received at Brainerd state hospital.

As a consequence, Fergus Falls state hospital admissions for 1971 decreased slightly from 1970 when we admitted 591 mentally ill, 186 mentally retarded, and 360 drug dependent persons for a total of 1,137. In 1971, we admitted 484 mentally ill persons, 156 mentally retarded, and 419 with drug dependency for a total of 1,059. Admissions for drug dependency for 1971 represented an increase of 16 per cent over 1970. During 1971, the hospital provided services to 1,594 patients.

In 1972, our admissions of mentally retarded will probably be in the neighborhood of around 30. As a consequence, we project that our average daily patient population for 1972 will decrease from its present figure of approximately 600 to something under 550.

Another interesting fact is the change that we have been noting during the past several years, as a consequence of the Minnesota hospitalization and commitment act, in regard to the decrease in the number of committed patients that enter the hospital. This act encourages people needing help to enter the hospital by what is called voluntary admission for drug dependent persons and informal admission for the mentally ill. The success of this emphasis is indicated by the following figures.

In 1971, we admitted 286 patients voluntarily and 271 as informal admissions, and only 52 by legal commitment. Excluding transfers, this means that 5.6 per cent were admitted by commitment while 60.4 per cent of these patients entered the hospital of their own free choice. There were a number of other patients admitted by transfer or under provisions of the law providing for emergency and hold order types of admissions. These admissions were all changed eventually to either informal, voluntary or committed.

We feel these figures indicate a significant change in community acceptance of the fact that many of our citizens do occasionally need residential care to help them deal with their problems of living so that they may more rapidly and successfully return to their functional roles in society.

Each year we continue to discharge more patients than we admit, which means that we are constantly returning a small number of long term patients to their communities. This attests both to the success of our training and retraining programs as well as to a very close cooperation of community agencies concerned with finding resources at home to meet the needs of these individuals.

The Lakeland area boarding care project has been one of the examples of a community program established to meet this need. They have successfully placed a number of residents that our training programs have raised to a high enough level to participate in these programs. They are placed in homelike settings where they can get more individual attention and still participate in training along with the opportunity for many to engage in meaningful employment.

New day activity centers are being established each year to meet the training needs of the disabled in their home communities. Counties are continually adding alcohol counselors to deal with drug dependent persons by assisting them in their sobriety and encouraging them to seek additional help where this is necessary. Nursing homes are upgrading their programs not only to provide quality physical care but also training their staff to provide activities to make each day more pleasant for their residents.

There are so many individuals and agencies—public, private and voluntary—who have been of assistance in defining needs and in seeing to it that resources are established to meet those needs that we can only feel pride at being part of a rural community that continues to demonstrate concern for its fellow-man in need. We at the Fergus Falls state hospital look forward to the challenges of 1972, confident that with this continued community effort the mental health program in our seventeen counties will experience even greater positive growth.

New Machines Added At Arctic Karlstad Plant

Two new quilting machines will be added soon to the Arctic Enterprises, Inc., Karlstad plant, and with the machines will come an additional type of sewing at the factory, according to Merv Meyer, plant manager, who also said that the new machines will add an additional six to 10 employees in that department. The plant currently employs 170 people.

Myer said that he expects delivery of the two machines shortly, and has plans for installing another two late this summer. He said he expected the work force at the Karlstad plant to reach somewhere between 190 and 200 people later this year. He said that if the company begins doing quilting for companies other than Arctic, the quilting machines would be operated on a double shift.

If the production of the employees warrants it, the company also has plans for more automation this spring. Myer said that the company expects to install a transport system in the building by the end of March. The system will consist of two 60-station transports. The system will automate all of the handling of the garments from the cutting room to the operator, a job which is now being done manually.

The plant was closed a week ago for inventory, and during the brief layoff six new mechanisms were installed in present machines to position needles up and down automatically and to trim off excess threads.

The quilting machines will be used for sewing the filler on the inside of the snowmobile suits and experimentation will take place for the possible use of the machines in quilting the seats of the snowmobiles. Myer said that the quilting for all Arctic factories will be done in Karlstad. (This includes quilting for the plant at Detroit Lakes and another new factory site still to be named.)

Jack Angove, plant engineer, will have the job of installing the new machines. He worked with them at the factory in Pathay, N. J., and said that they will come disassembled and will be put together at the Karlstad plant. The machines, which cost between $12,000 and $14,000 each, will contain 128 needles each, and they will accept material up to 64 inches wide. Each machine weighs about two tons. Batting, the filler quilting material, will be delivered to Karlstad in various weights by boxcar to be used in the quilting machines.

Congratulations. You just saved $5 by doing your own income tax. And all it cost you was three long, sleepless nights.

And a slight case of heartburn.

If you had gone to H & R Block, on the other hand, you could have relaxed while someone else figured out your return. Quickly and confidentially. Probably unlike any way you've ever done it before.

And, when you figure your own, you may be entitled to deductions you're not taking and taking deductions you're not entitled to. For instance, do you know all about deductions for child care or casualty losses? Or, that if your income increased over the last few years, you may save tax dollars by "income averaging?" And even if you did, would you know how to go about "income averaging" to begin with? Probably not. And there's no reason why you should. After all, you're an amateur when it comes to doing income tax.

You see, when it comes to income taxes, amateurs should depend on H & R Block. We have over 6,000 conveniently located offices manned by thousands of specially trained personnel. They're warm and friendly people who are anxious to help you. They'll sit you down over a free cup of coffee and show you some things about your income tax that you might never have known existed.

Furthermore, if your return is audited we will accompany you, at no extra cost, to the Internal Revenue Service and explain how your return was prepared, even though we will not act as your legal representative.

This means that H&R Block is ready to offer you year 'round tax service for just one low fee a year, with no extra charge for audits and estimates.

H & R Block's charges start at $5 and the average cost was under $12.50 for the 7 million families we served last year.

Which is somewhat less than what you paid.

Not to mention the fact that aggravation isn't tax deductible.

And we are.

Minnesota State FFA President, Steve Thal of Watertown, Minnesota, is holding the milkboard. Governor Wendell Anderson has oficially proclaimed the week of February 19-26, 1972, as "FFA Week" in Minnesota. The theme, "FFA — Youth with a Purpose", focuses attention to FFA's main goal which is to provide training in agribusiness and natural resources occupations, develop leadership, character, patriotism and citizenship among its members, thereby encouraging them to participate in building our communities, and to contribute significantly to our state and nation. Give Hints To Prevent Heart Trouble In Cold

Recent heavy snowfalls have brought on the unhappy and often dangerous prospect of snowshoveling. The reason that snowshoveling is hazardous for many individuals with known heart disease is because the work of the heart is increased many times beyond the limits of safety.

Cold exposure increases the heart rate and raises the blood pressure due to constriction, or narrowing, of the arterial blood vessels.

If these same blood vessels are already narrowed due to changes that occur with aging, arteriosclerosis or other disease processes, the additional constriction may put too great a burden on the circulation of the heart, with resultant dire consequences.

There are certain basic codes of behavior recommended by Minnesota Heart association in order to avoid serious hazards in cold and snow.

If you are a known cardiac, refrain from shoveling snow or pushing stalled cars, regardless of how simple or necessary it may appear.

When In Good Health

If you are in good health to the best of your knowledge and are about to shovel snow, follow these commandments:

Dress warmly for the cold weather in loose, comfortable heavy clothing, ear muffs, throat muffler, waterproof shoe coverings and heavy, warm gloves.

Work slowly, with frequent rest periods.

If the job is too big, get help or do it in stages over more than one day.

Don't plunge into the new job after having worked all day at another job.

Allow at least one hour after meals before starting to work.

Warm Up In House

During the rest period, warm up in the house or a shed.

If you have any shortness of breath or muscular pains, especially in the chest, stop immediately and investigate.

Coughing is sometimes a manifestation of shortness of breath and should be interpreted as such until proven otherwise.

Don't smoke while working, because tobacco may produce constriction of the blood vessels, just as exposure to cold does. The combination may be dangerous.

Don't mix alcohol and work, because the alcohol may dull the sense of fatigue, thereby allowing overexertion.

In the words of Shakespeare, "Discretion is the better part of valor."

Woman Prof. At University Claims Sex Bias

Only female faculty member in the University of Minnesota's chemistry department has received word from President Malcolm Moos that he does not find her charges of sex discrimination valid.

Moos overruled the findings of his advisory and hoc committee on discrimination that Dr. Shyamala Rajender had not been considered for positions she was qualified to fill. However, he did agree with the committee's finding that the chemistry department shows a pattern of discrimination against women.

Mrs. Rajender, who holds a Ph. D. in biophysical chemistry, charged last summer that her apppointment as assistant professor is on a temporary contract which must be renewed each year, putting her in a position to be easily dismissed. She is the only faculty member in the department to hold a temporary appointment.

The 10-member ad hoc committee, after a lengthy investigation, unanimously concurred with her claim that there have been openings in her field she would be qualified to fill but that she was not considered. The committee also agrees with her charges that the "usual staff amenities," such as adequate office and laboratory space and secretarial help, have not been made easily available to her.

"There is no question that I have been discriminated against," Mrs. Rajender said. "I got my Ph.D. in 1965. Any man with a similar background would be at least an associate professor with tenure by now."

Moos overruled the charge of individual discrimination, stating that the department appeared to look only at candidates' qualifications when filling positions.

He did agree, however, that the department, which has not hired a woman for a permanent teaching appointment in 30 years, did show a pattern of discrimination against women.

"I expect the department to take immediate steps in its recruiting efforts to ensure that any personnel recommendation it makes will be from a talent pool that includes both minority and women candidates," Moos stated in his letter to Dr. Rajender.

The ad hoc committee also found that there might have been discrimination against Mrs. Rajender on the basis of her national origin. She was born in India but is now a U.S. citizen.

V. Elving Anderson, chairman of the ad hoc committee on discrimination, said there are avenues open to Mrs. Rajender if she chooses to appeal Moos' decision, but the ad hoc committee was not set up to handle appeals.

"Our committee was designed to be a low-key effort to see if we could resolve questions before they reach the senate judiciary committee," Anderson said. He is a professor and assistant director of the Dight institute of cell biology.

Dr. Rajender's case was the first to be heard by the committee, which was set up last year by President Moos to hear individuals' complaints involving discrimination in university hiring and promotion practices.

Mabel K. Powers, chairman of the council for university women's progress (CUWP), said CUWP will send a letter of protest to President Moos and the regents, as well as the head of the university study commission, Senator Edward Gearty.

"Since we have no real power, what we're going to be asking is, 'Why have an advisory committee if you're not going to listen to it?'", Miss Powers said. She is a professor and director of student personnel for the university college of liberal arts.

Mrs. Rajender said she regards her case as an academic matter which should be resolved within the university structure. She is a member of CUWP and said she is aware that a health, education and welfare team is due at the university soon to check for possible discriminatory hiring.

Since her temporary appointment means she could be dismissed at the end of the school year with no reason given, Mrs. Rajender said she doesn't expect her contract to be renewed after the actions she took.

"It's already been unpleasant at the chemistry department," she said, "and I expect that it's going to get worse."

Snowmobile Races To Open Saturday

Junior and ladies events Saturday and nine classes of men's events on Sunday will feature the fifth annual States-Dominion snowmobile races in Thief River Falls this weekend. All activity will take place at the Pennington county fairgrounds on both days, with no cross-country or LeMans style races being held this year.

In addition to the regular racing both days, the Jaycees are planning a Kitty Kat demonstration for youngsters five to 10 years of age. This is not planned as an open event, but a number of invitations have been issued to potential participants. The Kitty Kat, a miniature version of the regular snowmobiles, must be stocked in all respects for the exhibition. Youngsters must wear helmets and heavy snowsuits.

Kick-off for the event will be a snowmobile torchlight parade to begin at 8 p.m. Friday under joint sponsorship of the Jaycees and the Sno-Drifters snowmobile club. All snowmobilers are invited to take part and a 50-cent participation fee per person will include refreshments at a trail ride to follow the parade.

Forming area for the parade will be on the Red Lake river between the First street and railroad bridges, with form-up time set for 7:30 p.m. All drivers must comply to city snowmobile regulations and must be at least 14 years of age. Drivers between 14 and 18 must have an operator's certificate or proof of taking the operator's course. There is a limit of two riders per machine and maximum speed is to be 15 miles per hour. A rider under 14 may ride with a driver over 18 years of age.

Torches for the parade will be issued by the Sno-Drifters club and will only be given to machines who have both a rider and driver; the rider will carry the torch. Parade route will leave the river at Second street, follow Second west to Knight avenue, turn north on Knight to Third street and then follow Third to the river. The trail ride will be north on the Thief river with hotdogs and hot chocolate to be served for refreshments.

Saturday's races at the fairgrounds will be something new this year as events will be for juniors and women only. Registration will take place from 9 to 10:30 a.m. and racing will start at noon following an 11:30 a.m. driver briefing. Registration fee will be $5 for junior races and $8 for women's races with trophies to be awarded to the top three winners in each class. Women will also share in prize money distribution.

Juniors will race in three classes for two age groups with increased horsepower limits in each class. Limits will be 0-250cc for ages 12-13; 0-295cc for ages 14-15 and 296-345cc for ages 14-15. Women will have four classes of stock machines from 0 to 400cc and one modified class for 0-295cc machines.

Since the races are sanctioned by the United States Snowmobile association (USSA), all USSA rules and regulations will be followed. All drivers must be members of the USSA for 1972.

Men's registration will be held from 8 to 10 a.m. Sunday with driver briefing at 10:15 a.m. and racing to start at 11 a.m. Trophies will be awarded to the first three places in each class and 100 per cent of entry fees will be returned in cash. Added money from snowmobile industry suppliers will increase the cash prizes by a potential of several thousand dollars.

IMPRESSIVE TROPHIES will be awarded to winners at the States-Dominion snowmobile races to be held in Thief River Falls Saturday and Sunday. Miss Thief River Falls, Roxanne Langlie, will present the awards and is pictured with only a few of the many trophies to be presented.

AROUND THE BEND comes five-year-old Billy Wood, son of Mr. and Mrs. William Wood of Thief River Falls, who is practicing for the Kitty Kat exhibition this weekend. Youngsters from five to 10 years of age will take part in the exhibtition Saturday and Sunday at the annual Jaycees States-Dominion snowmobile races at the Pennington county fairgrounds.

New Attendance Method Used At Franklin School

Dr. Milton Hoff, principal of the Franklin junior high school, has announced that beginning now, the second semester, a new method attendance is in operation.

Students' schedules have been revised permitting attendance to be taken in the normal morning homeroom, at which time the administrative announcements are made, but attendance will then be taken seven different times throughout the day. Attendance will be taken during all the lunch mods, and at the clos of school.

Group Home Board Meets

Group home advisory board held an informational meeting recently in the Thief River Falls Library. Interested parents from Kittson, Pennington and Polk counties gathered information on starting group homes for the retarded.

Lois Zimmerman from the Fergus Falls state hospital explained the training that is offered parents who operate a group home.

Mr. and Mrs. Stan Brosam demonstrated the specialized care given at the Roger Young group home in Moorhead. They act as relief parents for the home, which has 10 retarded men. The Brosams told of planned activities such as fishing, camping, library trips, community activities, sporting events and regular family living.

The need for group homes is evident and more study and planning will be done.

1971 Pennington Tax Delinquency Is 2.75 Per Cent

Delinquent taxes in Pennington county as of December 31 totaled $84,187 or 2.75 per cent of the total levy of $3,053,728, according to A. E. Jorgenson, county treasurer. The figures represented an increase from $73,658 and 2.11 per cent in 1970.

Delinquency for 1971 is based on taxes levied in 1970 and payable in 1971. December 31 is used as a cut-off date for determining the percentage of delinquency, although a portion of those taxes considered delinquent has been paid since the first of the year, Jorgenson said.

Lowest percentage of delinquency in Pennington county was recorded in 1958 at 1.80 per cent. Highest delinquency percentage was in 1938 when 15 per cent was delinquent—$48,000 remaining unpaid on a total levy of $326,000.

Three taxing districts (townships or villages) in the county had delinquency of over 10 per cent in 1971, while three had delinquency of less than one per cent. Clover Leaf township replaced Reiner as having the highest delinquency with 15.45 per cent in 1971—up from only 3.77 per cent last year. Reiner dropped from 15.17 per cent a year ago to 9.44 per cent in 1971.

Other townships having delinquency in double figures were Goodridge township at 12.20 per cent and Goodridge village at 11.58 per cent.

Lowest delinquency at .31 per cent was River Falls township, down from the .53 per cent delinquent a year ago. Smiley township had only .46 per cent delinquent and Silverton had .89 per cent delinquent. In 1970 Rocksbury was low at .37 per cent, but in 1971 climbed to 2.79 per cent.

Tax delinquency in Thief River Falls rose sharply from .80 per cent in 1970 to 1.95 per cent at the end of 1971. In dollars, the amount delinquent was $10,285 in 1970 and $35,853 in 1971.

County treasurer Jorgenson noted that there is often more to the delinquency percentage than appears on the surface. For instance, one township has more than half of its total levy paid by pipelines, and the percentage delinquent on the remainder is twice as high as the township total shows.

A list of townships, city and villages with percentages delinquent in 1970 and 1971 is as follows:

Lyle Mandt, poultry producer and laying hen contractor of Oklee, has been chosen as a candidate for King Agassiz from Pennington county.

Mandt has done an exceptional job in the poultry industry, according to the county selection committee. He has several achievement awards for outstanding work in improvement of agriculture in his community.

Faced with crowded conditions in the middle grades, response to a call for vocational center school facilities and resultant lack of space, Thief River Falls board of education and school administration are considering alternatives to provide the needed space. Being speciflially considered at the present time is the downtown plant of Arctic Enterprises which has been offered to the school district for $700,000.

"Commissioner of Education Howard Casmey has stated privately and publicly his concern for the leadership furnished in vocational-technical education," states Supt. William Corliss. "The community has an opportunity to make forward strides in these areas for both the adult and the high school student. Space allocated for education in this facility (Arctic building) would be one way it could be accomplished."

To permit the school board to devote a full meeting to the proposal for providing needed space, a special public board meeting has been set for 8 p.m. Monday, February 21, at the Lincoln school. At that time the proposal and alternatives will be discussed in detail.

At the January school board meeting, an architect's estimate of a maximum of $786,000 for remodeling was presented to the board. This was planned over a program of several years as vocational center school enrollment grew.

"After receiving this estimate," Supt. Corlis said, "the board has consulted at length with the state department of education and local contractors. This has resulted in considerable modification and elimination from the original architect's plan for remodeling. There will be extensive use of the existing partitions.

"The restudy with the state department of education and a local contractor has resulted in a very suitable and reasonable cost estimate of $125,000 for remodeling amply adequate for the proposed program."

Problems of concern to the board and administration at the present time are several. They include:

(1) Age and condition of classrooms and offices in the condemned Old Washington portion of the senior high school;

(2) Rental of facilities for fifth grade classes, special education classes and school bus storage;

(3) Crowding at the junior high school where there are about 850 students in grades 7, 8 and 9, including a top enrollment of about 300 in grade 8;

(4) Declining enrollment in the lower grades with only 680 students in grades 1, 2 and 3;

(5) Space needed to provide vocational-technical training experiences for students in grades 11 and 12 of the senior high school;

Swenson Says Arctic Would Replace Plant

Lowell Swenson, president of Arctic Enterprises, told the Times this morning that his company would build replacement space of approximately 120,000 square feet if the school district does decide to acquire the downtown plant. The downtown plant is now fully utilized for garment design and parts storage and distribution, he said, and replacement would be with new facilities at the southwest plant site which is in the city limits.

Concern had been expressed by several people over loss of the downtown plant from the tax rolls if the school acquired the property. Assurance of necessity for replacement removes the need for the concern.

Swenson also said that the price placed on the building and site by his company to the school district was considerably less than its cost. Advantage of Arctic Enterprises from sale of the property would be the consolidation of facilities at the southwest site and saving of remodeling costs if the building was to continue in use for Arctic purposes.

Council Acts On City Ordinances

Thief River Falls city council took action on several matters Tuesday night, but in the absence of both the city engineer and the city attorney, was forced to delay action on a number of other items on the agenda.

Second readings of ordinances prohibiting open burning of refuse in the city, conforming the municipal code to state law with respect to holidays, and amending the municipal code reducing the electric power rates for power consumed over 100,000 kilowatt hours per month were read.

Progression raises were approved for Michael Solsten, an employee of the municipal liquor store, and for police department members Richard Melby and Duane Holland; both of whom are completing two years service in the department.

Letter from the Thief River Falls Ministerial association dated Jan. 28, 1972, and indicating opposition to Sunday morning hockey games, was referred by the council to the city park and recreation department.

Set Dates For Barrow Show

John Phillips, superintendent of the National Barrow show, announced today the selection of September 11-12-13 as the dates for the 1972 National Barrow show. This year's event will again be held at the Mower county fairgrounds in Austin.

The dates for this year's event were established after conferring with members of the National Association of Swine Records. The NASR—originator and a chief sponsor of the National Barrow show—is an organization composed of the executive secretaries of the major swine recording associations.

As has been the case in recent years, the 1972 National Barrow show will again be held on a Monday, Tuesday, Wednesday schedule. This format appears to benefit both the hog and commercial exhibitors and the numerous committeemen who assist in handling of the many show details.

The National Barrow show has continually sought to promote the widespread production of the meat-type hog and, at the same time, serve as a meeting place for the best in the industry—both hogs and hog producers. Well over 20 states, producing over 85 per cent of all the hogs in the United States, are annually represented at the show. Some 3,000 choice hogs are entered each year.

"For over 25 years, the National Barrow show has been recognized as the pacesetter of all other swine shows," said Phillips. "This is a reputation not easily earned nor lightly held, but all our efforts will be directed to making this year's show even more rewarding and beneficial to all of those associated with the swine industry."

School Considers Use Of Arctic Downtown Plant

post secondary vocational-technical school; and

(7) Consolidation of district services such as central offices for school board, superintendent, business, personnel, instruction, transportation, food services, buildings and grounds, maintenance and shipping and receiving.

The Arctic Enterprises plant under consideration has 118,000 square feet of space. It is proposed to use 51,000 square feet for the area vocational center school; 7,000 square feet each for industrial arts and agriculture; 6,000 square feet for distributive education; 6,000 square feet for central district services; 5,000 square feet for maintenance shops; 6,000 square feet for shipping and receiving; and 30,000 square feet for transportation.

Utilization of the Arctic facility would permit several things for the district according to the proposal.

(1) It would free enough space in the Lincoln school to permit classrooms and offices in Old Washington to be abandoned and yet allow the school to function for grades 9-12 in the 1973-74 school year.

(2) Moving of the ninth grade to Lincoln from Franklin in 1973-74 would allow Franklin to become a "middle school" for grades 6, 7 and 8. At present, Franklin is short of special facilities such as shop, home economics, science, art areas and small and large group areas for a comprehensive ninth grade program, Dr. Corliss said.

(3) Moving sixth graders to Franklin in 1973-74 would allow students in kindergarten through grade five and special education classes to be housed in the elementary schools.

(4) It is believed the location of the plant is close enough to the Lincoln school to permit students to walk there for vocational center school classes. It is anticipated that 200 Thief River Falls students in grades 11 and 12 will be enrolled in center school classes in 1973-74.

(5) Teaching of some subjects on a vocational basis (such as business courses) would result in reduction of duplicated space, machinery, equipment and instruction.

(6) Offices could be centralized and a central shipping-receiving-storage area could be arranged, as well as a central repair area for all equipment established.

Alternatives suggested include construction of a new elementary school in the southeast portion of the city ($450,000 estimated cost); complete specialized facilities (shop, science and home economics) at Franklin Junior high school ($180,000 estimated cost); and to the area vocational-technical school ($850,000 estimated cost); and add facilities for the vocational center school ($850,000 estimated cost for 50,000 square feet of space).

Long range alternate plan would be construction of a new senior high school in the area of the vocational-technical school and junior college. Approximate cost of such a school would be $2.5 million.

The proposal, alternatives and problems will be discussed Monday evening when the board of education meets at 8 p.m. at Lincoln school.

City Council Acts Tuesday On Ordinances

Assignments to the city council's 13 standing committees were made. The following aldermen were named to committees, with the first alderman named being committee chairman: Liquor store—Art Rambeck, Ambrose Wysoski, Arnold Narverud; Streets—William Froiland, Rambeck, Wysoski; Building—Wysoski, Rambeck; License and Insurance—O. E. Engelstad, Froiland, Rambeck; Finance—Milton Reierson, Robert Carlson, Wysoski;

The city would assess the firm a $50 per day penalty beginning next Monday and continuing each day until the city is able to operate the new outlet.

Bergland Joins Attempt To Release Funds

U.S. Rep. Bob Bergland today charged the Nixon administration with planning to impound at least $465 million during the next fiscal year "for programs badly needed by the American people".

According to Bergland this amount does not include the $1.7 billion already impounded by the President nor the $10.5 billion which the Administration claims to be holding in reserve. It does include: $300 million designated for the water and sewer grant program of the department of housing and urban development; $107 million withheld from the Rural Electrification administration; and $58 million impounded from the water and waste disposal program of the Farmers Home administration.

To spur the release of these funds Bergland has co-sponsored legislation, introduced last Wednesday, which would require the President to notify Congress whenever he impounds funds or authorizes the impounding of funds. If Congress does not vote to approve the withholding of these funds, the bill requires the President to release them immediately.

Bergland concluded by saying: "The people of the seventh District have too great a need for anti-pollution projects and the services provided by REA to allow the President to halt the distribution of funds just to make his election year budget look better to the voting public."

Hong Kong Flu Virus Reported On Increase

The Hong Kong flu virus seems to be going around the country right now—and it's on the increase, according to the Center for Disease control (CDC) in Atlanta.

During the past several years, January and February have been the peak of the flu season. This year, widespread outbreaks recently were reported in nine states—Maine, Massachusetts, Rhode Island, Connecticut, Nebraska, New Jersey, Delaware, Tennessee and Colorado—plus Washington, D.C. and New York City. Lesser outbreaks have been reported in 27 states, ranging from the Canadian border to the Mexican border.

The Hong Kong flu often attacks young people, from age seven to the early twenties. At school, youngsters may be exposed to the flu in groups. Frequently, they have never been affected by the disease before. Boys and girls, in turn, may bring the flu home to adult members of the family.

Although vaccine against the flu is available, CDC authorities caution that it is not as effective with youngsters as, for example, vaccine against smallpox. Further, flu vaccine takes at least one month to provide partial protection.

Two groups—people of any age who suffer from a chronic illness and older people in general—seem to be more vulnerable than others to serious cases of the flu and its complications, according to the CDC. For these two "high risk" groups, the CDC recommends an annual vaccination against the flu. Only a single booster dose is needed for those who have been vaccinated since the 1968-69 season. Otherwise, a series of two doses is recommended.

What can a homemaker do if her children or others in the family begin to complain about the headaches, fever, chills, sore throats and aching muscles of the flu?

The advice of medical authorities remains the same for this latest attack of the Hong Kong flu: rest, drink plenty of fluids and take aspirin to relieve the discomforts and fever.

And, even if it's small comfort, remember that public health authorities say there is—so far—officially no epidemic of influenza in the country.

Bergland Asks Halt On New Rail Cutbacks

U.S. Rep. Bob Bergland last week introduced a resolution calling on the Interstate Commerce commission to halt the cutback of rail services and the closing of rail facilities in rural communities until the end of 1973.

Bergland, chief author of the resolution, said that investigations would be held during that period to determine how railway service to rural communities can be maintained. "I recognize," he said, "that some rail routes are not profitable for the railroad companies. However," Bergland continued, "the economic life of many smaller communities depends on rail service. Profits for the companies can no longer be the determining factor in abandoning rail services," he added.

Bergland said that the "wholesale abandonments" of rail services in rural areas "which cause major disruptions in the commerce" of rural communities "comes at a time when both Congress and the administration have given the renewal of rural America the highest of priorities. We must actively demonstrate this concern by insuring adequate transportation in these areas," the Congressman said.

Concluding, Bergland expressed the hope that investigations held during the moratorium "will place the spotlight to a commitment that will restore our rail system and enable it to service the need of the future."

Rev. Mathre Is Bush Scholar In Collegeville

Rev. Wesley Mathre, pastor of Zion Lutheran church in Viking and Oak Ridge Lutheran church of Thief River Falls, has concluded a two-week workshop designed to provide continuing education of the clergy and held at St. John's university in Collegeville.

Rev. Mathre, affiliated with the American Lutheran church, is one of 68 Minnesota clergymen selected as Bush Foundation scholars at St. John's during 1971-72. Clergy of all denominations spend two weeks at the university studying a special field of the ministry. It is one of three segments of the Bush Foundation continuing education program for Minnesota clergy sponsored by a grant from the Bush Foundation of St. Paul.

Rev. Mathre, married and the father of two daughters, studied the "necessary theological content of an educational program preparing junior high students for the rite of confirmation." It is a continuing project, Rev. Mathre said, because "the confirmation program (educational aspects) must be continually reelevuated."

Commenting on the workshop, Rev. Mathre said: "Without this continuing education program it would be virtually impossible for me, within the parish with its duties and responsibilities, to undertake such a study program. The time to read and reflect afforded by the continuing education program was invaluable to me. I feel that it will be a great factor in the rejuvenation of my confirmation ministry."

Larson, Anderson Serve On Church Advisory Group

Chester Larson of rural Thief River Falls and Rev. Bruce E. Anderson of Goodridge were Northern Minnesota district advisory members in attendance at a recent American Lutheran church conference on rural ministry. The three-day event was held in Rochester, at Assisi Heights Catholic retreat center.

Other representatives from this area of the Northern Minnesota district were Rev. Clifford Kalmoe of Newfolden and Rev. Roy Seger of Red Lake Falls.

The conference on rural ministry was called by the department of special ministries of the ALC division of American missions to provide a format for local congregations to join in efforts to improve the quality of rural life.

The conference agreed that local efforts should be focused on five problem areas: The economic and political plight of rural America; the shape and size of the rural community; involvement of youth in parish life and an awareness of the implications of the movement of youth out of rural areas; the structure of the rural parish and possible changes; and a clear definition of the mission of the church through delineation of goals and means to achieve goals.

OAK HILLS BIBLE institute choir of Bemidji will present a sacred concert at 8 p.m. Saturday at First Baptist church in Thief River Falls. The 26-voice choir is made up of students at the institute. Kenneth Wold, instructor in music, is the choir director. The concert includes a section of solos and small-group numbers, as well as music for the full choir. Oak Hills Bible institute is a college-level school whose purpose is to train young people in preparation for living as effective Christians. It offers a two-year basic Bible course and a third year of special study for those planning vocations in the church.

LOL Manager Will Retire At Grand Forks

M. P. Keeley of Grand Forks, N. D., manager of the Land O'Lakes, Inc. Bridgeman division will retire May 1.

Keeley will conclude a 37-year career in the dairy industry. He will be succeeded by L. A. Kloek, manager of the Bridgeman operation at Duluth.

The announcement of Keeley's retirement was made by D. H. Henry, general manager of Land O'Lakes in Minneapolis, who said: "Morey Keeley is a leader and marketing innovator in the dairy industry and we regret he will no longer continue with us in an active role. His dedicated service to Bridgeman customers and Land O'Lakes will be long remembered. His many contributions to Land O'Lakes have shaped our present and will continue to have impact on our future."

Keeley was born and raised at Crookston. He joined the former Bridgeman creameries in Crookston in 1935. In 1939, he was promoted to manager of the Bridgeman plant at Minot, N. D. and in 1942 moved to Grand Forks Bridgeman plant. He has been a resident of Grand Forks since.

Land O'Lakes purchased Bridgeman creameries in 1952, and Keeley continued to manage the Grand Forks plant until his appointment as manager of the Bridgeman division in 1964.

Keeley pioneered and promoted the bulk milk tank method of handling milk in the northwest, which is now generally is use. In 1942, he started manufacturing ice cream novelty products in Grand Forks, for the first time. The operation has grown until it is now one of the largest operations of its kind between Chicago and the west coast. Product distribution covers six upper midwest states.

Under Keeley's guidance, Bridgeman greatly expanded its total operations in North Dakota, as he assisted in negotiating purchases of Kneer Dairy of Fargo and Yegen Dairy in Bismarck.

Give and take:

drug rap

By Bob Olander

He's been there.

I noticed an ad in a medical journal the other day. The ad was plugging a new kind of tranquilizer. The big type at the top of the ad said, "Life is a disease!"

There is another drug company which uses the slogan, "Better Living Through Chemistry."

I am sure there are other advertising gimmicks which make pill-taking seem perfectly normal. Maybe the most powerful gimmick of all is the good-looking gal or guy on TV, all stuffed up, looks worried and sick, pops a pill, and then breaks out into that radiant smile of relief.

Pill-taking has been made to seem the natural and normal thing to do. There's a pill for almost every ailment, some sort of available chemical. You can get little magic chemicals when you're down, to pick you up. Chemicals when you're up, to calm you down to "compoz." Chemicals for headaches or any sort of pain no matter how small. Chemicals for sinus, chemicals to change your moods, chemicals to make your party a happy, happy time.

And all these pills and chemicals are bought by normal, healthy grownups, put in their medicine chests or liquor cabinets, and used in enormous amounts. Last summer's congressional drug hearings on drug abuse in 1970 showed, for example, that eight billion "pep" pills were made during calendar 1970. It also brought to light, by the way, that only about one-half of these pills could be accounted for from medical sources, but that's a different story.

The thing to get straight is that we have been conditioned to take chemicals as the normal, natural thing to do. Pills no longer are something the doctor gives when you're sick. They're little things you can prescribe for yourself, to help you through the aches and pains of just being alive!

In such fertile soil, it's no wonder that drug abuse has sprouted and flourished, especially among young people. Kids grow up like their parents.

Mama sees a handsome TV woman become instantly cured of the blues after taking some magic potion. Daughter takes chemicals—perhaps not the same chemical, but for the same reason—when SHE gets the blues. Daddy and mommy have a drink or two before dinner, perhaps one or two more before going to bed. At parties, observed by the kids, daddy gets smashed to be "sociable." It looks like great fun. Junior takes chemicals to have fun, too. Maybe not the same chemicals, but for the same reason.

I am not knocking all drugs. There is no question that drugs HAVE made our lives better. We just don't see very many kids going around any more with leg braces. Some diseases have been practically knocked out through chemistry.

But drugs, to my way of thinking, are for abnormal conditions. Our bodies are the results of millennia of mysterious, adaptive development. The chemistry of our bodies is only dimly understood. It involves many critical balances, many processes which trigger other processes. I think we should know more about our bodies, these wonderful vessels which we have inherited from past ages. And I think the more we know, the less likely we will be to introduce foreign materials into our bodies, the intent of which is to interfere with normal processes.

'71 State Fair Set Record, Says Manager

Minnesota state fair in 1971 was one of the most successful in the 110-years history of the event, said John E. Libby, secretary-general manager, in his report to the annual meeting of the Minnesota state agricultural society in St. Paul. Admission total of 1,370,210 was the fair's third largest. He said a new attendance record probably would have been set last year had it not been for rain on four days and the fact that nearly three-fourths of the state's schools were open the week prior to the traditional Labor Day closing.

To help remedy the problem caused by early school openings, the society's board of managers has voted to extend the 1972 fair to 11 days starting Friday, August 25. Opening day is designated "Children's Day" and free admission will be offered to anyone under 16 years of age.

Income and expenses were at an all-time high in 1971. Operating receipts were $3,113,104 and operating expenses totaled $2,705,442. The operating expense figure does not include $733,964 which was spent on permanent improvements to the fairgrounds. Major projects completed last year included the creative activities building, a new bandshell, a new entry gate and additions to the natural resources area and the Mexican village complex.

Libby said the Minnesota state fair has been operating on a self-supporting basis for more than 20 years and that it is one of the very few fairs in the United States that does not received financial aid. He stressed the importance of favorable weather to a successful operation and pointed out the necessity for off-season use of the facilities as a necessary step in combating rising costs and adverse weather during the fair.

In addition to the annual state fair, 46 special events, lasting 122 days, were staged on the fairgrounds in 1971. This is the most the fairgrounds has ever been used during the off-season and Libby said that attempts will be made to increase this usage further.

In agricultural society elections, held January 19, Frank L. Mitchell, Canby, was elected president for a one-year term, succeeding Birney C. Wilkins, Brainerd. Mitchell has been a member of the society's board of managers since 1962.

Re-elected vice-president for a two-year term was Leonard F. Ramberg, Minneapolis. Also re-elected were managers Lawrence F. Haeg, Robbinsdale; Logan O. Scow, Long Prairie, and Tyrus Sincock, Owatonna.

Newly-elected board members are J. G. Tiffany, Redwood Falls, and Arthur Sprengeler, Plato. Wilkins, retiring from the board after 16 years, was elected a honorary membership in the society.

In other business, Libby was re-appointed secretary-general manager and Gerald J. Franke, St. Paul, was appointed treasurer to succeed Roy C. Sorenson, Edina, who retired after 36 years service.

THINK EMETIC

Within the next 60 seconds, at least one American youngster will be accidentally poisoned by swallowing household chemicals or drugs. Don't let it happen to your child. 1). Draw up "house rules" about medicines and enforce them. Teach children to be careful. 2). Throw away all unmarked drug and household supplies. 3). Look for safety closures on medicines like the one on St. Joseph Aspirin for Children. 4). Post a First Aid chart in your medicine cabinet and keep the number of your doctor and pharmacist handy.

Prowlers Beat Pirates 6-3 For Tenth Straight Win

Thief River Falls rifled home three third period goals last night to break open a close game and give the Prowlers a 6-3 region eight hockey triumph over Crookston in the sports arena.

The two rivals skated on even terms throughout the first two periods with a 1-1 deadlock after the first stanza and a narrow 3-2 Prowler lead going into the final period. Crookston tied the contest 3-3 at the outset of the final canto before the Prowlers scored three straight goals to increase their winning streak to 10 games and improve their season record to 13-4.

Flashy defenseman Jim Clauson surprised the Prowlers with the game's first goal to give Crookston a 1-0 lead with 4:31 remaining in the first period. Clauson led a two on one Crookston rush before stopping and blasting a hard 20-foot slap shot from the right side.

The Prowlers wasted little time to retaliate as senior center Mike Hamilton's patented breakaway rush tied the game 1-1 just 48 seconds after the Crookston score. Jon Jensen earned an assist on Hamilton's goal.

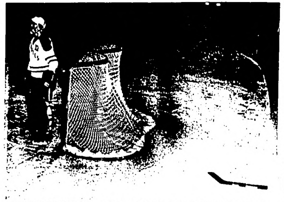
The pace picked up a bit in the second period, but neither team could mount a sustained scoring threat until Crookston's Bud Nomland scored on a hard slap shot from 15 feet with 4:40 remaining. Clauson was credited with an assist on the play, giving the Pirates a 2-1 advantage.

Once again the Prowlers responded immediately as junior center Jeff Bottem pushed in a scoring shot as he was falling to the ice with 3:49 left in the second period. Linemates John Wangberg and Tom Goddard were given assists on the score.

The Prowlers forged out in front 3-2 as Jensen faked his way around two Crookston defensemen and scored from close range on an assist from Hamilton with 2:11 remaining in the second stanza.

Crookston scored the equalizer just 1:20 into the final period as Brian Waxler tipped in Clauson's centering pass for a 3-3 contest.

As they did earlier in the game, the Prowlers bounced right back, with Jensen scoring his second goal of the contest just 16 seconds after the Crookston goal. Jensen grabbed his own rebound and, after doing a complete turnaround, flipped the puck past Crookston netminder Dale Normandin for a 4-3 Prowler lead with 13:24 remaining in the game.



CROOKSTON GOALIE Dale Normandin looks a bit helpless as he guards the Pirate net without a stick. The senior netminder played for 25 seconds without a stick after it was broken, and made a couple of nice saves, only to have the Prowlers score as soon as a new stick was relayed to him from the bench. Next action for the Prowler hockey team will be Friday night when the team travels to Baudette.

Hamilton scored his second goal of the night and 23rd of the season on another breakaway with 11:44 remaining for a 5-3 lead. Rory Anderson assisted on the Prowler scoring play.

Wangberg, on an assist from Bottem, ended the game's scoring with 1:41 left on a frustrating play for Normandin. The Crookston goalie had broken his stick and made two nice saves in a 25 second span before a teammate finally brought him a stick from the bench with play continuing to buzz around the Pirate net. Normandin just got the stick in his hand when Wangberg tipped in Bottem's centering pass for the 6-3 final.

Prowler goalie Pete Sullivan kicked out 15 Crookston shots in the game while Normandin stopped 21 Prowler drives, including 11 in the final Prowler-controlled period.

THE PROWLER junior varsity clobbered the Crookston Bees 10-0 in the preliminary contest. Thief River Falls led 2-0 at the end of the first period before turning on the steam in the second stanza for an 8-0 lead.

Scott Ree, Jeff Tunberg and Tom Barry scored two goals apeice while Mike Drury, Tim Engelstad, Mike Goulet and Rob Alquist added single scores.

SCORING—Crookston, Jim Clauson, unassisted, 4:31 remaining. TRF, Mike Hamilton, assisted by Jon Jensen, 3:59 remaining.

LHS Cagers 13-4 After 68-53 Win Over Vikings

Lee Swanson's Prowler basketball team outscored Ada 20-7 in the second quarter last night to increase a one-point, 16-15, first quarter lead into a 14-point, 36-22, halftime bulge enroute to an easy 68-53 triumph at Ada.

The Vikings surprised Thief River Falls by holding the Prowlers to just the one-point lead at the first stop, before Swanson made some defensive adjustments and limited the Vikings to just three field goals and a free throw in the second canto.

Constant fouling in the second half hindered the Prowler defense as Ada cashed in on 13 of 16 free throw opportunities. Thief River Falls led 50-37 going into the final quarter.

The win upped the Prowler season record to 13-4, which includes a current five-game winning streak. Next action for the Prowlers will be Friday night when the team travels to Bemidji. Following the Lumberjack contest the Prowlers will travel to East Grand Forks February 18 and then close out their regular season at home against Warren February 24.

The Prowlers were paced by the play of senior center Rande Smith last night as the 6-5 team captain scored 24 points and pulled down 19 rebounds. Smith connected on 11 field goals against the Vikings. Junior forward Jeff Rhoden also turned in a strong performance with 19 points and 15 rebounds, along with 5 assists. Senior forward Tom Kays was the other Prowler player in double figures with 10. Two Ada players reached the double-diget mark with Dan Balsum getting 14 and Mike Ness 11.

The Prowler defense limited Ada to just a 37 per cent shooting performance from the field (20 of 56) while the Prowlers connected on 42 per cent of their shots from the floor (29 of 68). Thief River Falls made 10 of 19 free throws while holding a 51-21 rebound advantage. The Prowlers were hampered by 18 turnovers in the game, but Ada was also congenial in that department with 16. Prowler charts credited Thief River Falls with 22 assists, led by Kent Smith's 7.

The game was a make-up contest from the January 28 postponement. There was no junior varsity game.

Pirates Tabbed Favorite For District 31 Mat Title

Defending champion Crookston, with three individual champions returning, will carry the favorite's role in Saturday's district 31 wrestling tournament with Warren, Thief River Falls and East Grand Forks vieing for the role of spoiler.

First round matches will begin at 4 p.m. in the Warren high school auditorium with the semi-finals starting at 6:30 and the championship round set for an 8 o'clock start.

Individual Pirate champions returning from last year's first Crookston title squad include Wayne Beich (119), Bruce Hanson (126) and Murray Tiedeman (132). The trio has been jumping around in weights this season and the Pirates will probably enter Beich at 112, Hanson at 119 and Tiedeman at 129.

Warren returns four individual champions from last year's runner-up squad with Laurel Wittman (112), Wayne Wrolson (138), Wayne Torgerson (165) and Rick Roley (heavyweight) back. Beich, Tiedeman and Roley will be seeking their third straight district 31 titles. East Grand Forks and Thief River Falls do not have any champions returning this year.

Thief River Falls head coach Ed Krystosek went with the concensus and labeled the Pirates the team to beat, but the coach of four straight district championship teams (1967-70) indicated his squad will have to be reckoned with. "If we get a few breaks and some good pairings we could be right up there," said Krystosek.

The Prowler line-up, with individual dual meet records in parentheses, will be as follows: 98 - junior Kurt Muzzy (12-0); 105 - either sophomore Lonnie Olson (4-8) or sophomore Lyle Swanson (0-1); 112 - senior Ron Kalinoski (6-4); 119 - freshman Daryl Myers (3-7-1); 126 - either sophomore Joe Kezar (2-2) or sophomore Lyle Olson (4-4); 132 - senior Dave Furuseth (6-3-3); 138 - junior Tim Wold (3-2); 145 - senior Perry Omdahl (4-6-1); 155 - junior Mark Kaushagen (7-4); 167 - sophomore Steve Sorvig (2-7-1); 180 - senior Steve Thorstad (11-1); heavyweight - senior Larry Panck (2-6).

"We have our best chances for individual champions at 98, 145, 155 and 180", said Krystosek, "but you never know, we could even come through at 132 and 138, or maybe nowhere."

Favorites for individual honors from each team include Jim Brockmyer (98), Beich, Hanson, Tiedeman, Randy Covett (138), Darrell Bye (167) and John Cournia (heavyweight) from Crookston; Wittman, Torgerson and Roley from Warren; Paul Garcia (112) and Joe Zak (119) from East Grand Forks; Muzzy, Omdahl, Kaushagen and Thorstad from Thief River Falls.

Thief River Falls will also host its second annual district 31 "B" squad wrestling tournament either Monday or Tuesday in the Lincoln high school gym.

MEMBERS OF THE Lincoln high school wrestling team will be taking part in the sixth annual district 31 tournament Saturday in the Warren high school auditorium. The squad will have wrestle-offs later this week to determine the tournament competitors, but squad members who wrestled against Mahnomen last night, and who are expected to wrestle at Warren include, front row, left to right, Kurt Muzzy (98), Lonnie Olson (105), Ron Kalinoski (112), Daryl Myers (119), Lyle Olson (126), and Dave Furuseth (132). Back row, Tim Wold (138), Perry Omdahl (145), Mark Kaushagen (155), Steve Sorvig (167), Steve Thorstad (180) and Larry Panek (heavyweight).

Mahnomen Indians Drub Prowler Wrestlers 41-11

Prowler wrestlers managed just three wins against powerful Mahnomen opponents last night as the Indians posted a decisive 41-11 dual meet wrestling victory in the Lincoln high school gym.

The loss ended the Prowler dual meet competition for the 1971-72 season as the squad prepares for the district 31 tournament to be held at Warren on Saturday. Thief River Falls finished with a 5-7 dual meet record.

Breaking through for wins against the aggressive Mahnomen club were Kurt Muzzy (98), Perry Omdahl (145) and Steve Thorstad (180). Dave Furuseth (132) wrestled to a 2-2 draw in his match.

Muzzy ended his junior season dual competition with a perfect 12-0 record as he gained a second period reversal for a 2-0 decision over the Indians' Charles Charboneau in the opening bout.

The Prowler lead was short-lived, however, as veteran Terry Handyside recorded a first period pin of the Prowlers' Lonnie Olson in the 105 pound match for a 6-3 Mahnomen lead.

Senior Ron Kalinsoki gained a first period takedown and a last period reversal, but in between sophomore Loran Francis earned 12 points for a 12-4 win in the 112 class and a 9-3 Indian lead.

Dave Francis gained the Indians' second pin of the night as he stretched the Prowlers' Daryl Myers with 1:13 remaining in the third period.

Pat Bruggeman made it two Indian pins in a row with a first period fall over the Prowlers' Lyle Olson at 126 for a 21-3 Mahnomen advantage.

Senior Dave Furuseth broke the Indian win streak at 132 with a 2-2 draw against Tim Roy for a 23-5 match score before Mahnomen's Steve Winter pinned Tim Wold in the 138 pound match to put the Indians on top 29-5.

Perry Omdahl gained the second Prowler win of the night at 145 when he gained a second period predicament for a 4-2 triumph over Tom Roy.

Jim Willie blanked the Prowlers' Mark Kaushagen 9-0 at 155 to push the Indian lead to 32-8 and Garry Kjos made it 35-8 with a 4-0 whitewash of the Prowlers' Steve Sorvig in the 167 pound class.

Senior Steve Thorstad recorded the Prowlers' third win of the evening at 180 with a 7-5 decision over Steve Spaeth for a 35-11 margin.

Ron Dahl broke a 2-2 third period tie with an escape and a takedown before pinning the Prowlers' Larry Panck in the heavyweight finale for the final 41-11 count.

The Prowler junior varsity wrestled to a 19-19 draw against Mahnomen in the preliminary matches.

Vikings Defeat Northmen 8-4

League leading Itasca made it four wins without a loss over Northland this season as the Vikings dumped the Northmen 8-4 in junior college hockey action at Grand Rapids Monday night.

Itasca jumped out to a 3-0 first period lead in just a short 1:43 span behind two goals by freshman center Tom Robillard and a single score by freshman wing Joe Miskovich.

Northland wing Mark Hughes trimmed the margin to 3-1 on an assist from Bob Lundbohm with 4:30 remaining. But, Itasca's Ed Bogle put the Vikings on top 4-1 at the end of the first period with a goal just 13 seconds after the Northland score.

Backed by shutout goaltending by Maurie Pearson in the second period, Northland came back with two goals in the first five minutes of the stanza to cut Itasca's lead to just 4-3 going into the final period.

The hard-skating Itasca sextet scored four third period goals to break open the close conference battle in the IRA area. The Vikings went in front 6-3 on goals by Ken Lawson and Ed Chopp, before Northland countered on Rodney Bolduc's marker with 14:00 remaining in the game. Leo Marshall and Rich Ellerbusch were credited with assists on the play.

Itasca finished the game's scoring on two goals by sophomore center Gene Gustason, spaced just 22 seconds apart.

Northland goalies Tom Matanich and Pearson kicked out 51 Itasca shots while Gene Nelson and Gary Warren combined to stop 34 Northland drives.

Itasca also won Sunday's first game of the series 8-3.

Northmen Play Host To Crookston Tonight

Northland and Crookston Tech will renew their regional athletic rivalry tonight (Wednesday) when the two schools meet in the Northland gym for a Minnesota junior college athletic conference basketball game. Tip-off time will be 7:30.

Both schools are members of the Northwest Division of the MJCAA, with Crookston holding a 6-6 league mark and Northland posting a 4-7 conference slate. Fergus Falls leads the NW Division with a 10-0 record.

Crookston carries an 10-10 overall record into the game, including an 85-83 triumph over Northland earlier this season. The Spartan attack is based around All-Conference forward Pablo Ronderos, a 6-2 sharpshooter from Bogata, Columbia, S.A. The sophomore ranks second in both the state and region scoring charts with a 28.2 points per game average in MJCAA play and a 26.6 average in region 13 action.

The remaining starting line-up for Crookston will probably find returning lettermen Bob Johnson (5-10) and Terry Swanson (5-11) at the guards, with Tony Peters (6-4) and Jim Dahl (6-4) playing up front with Ronderos. Dahl is a sophomore transfer student from St. Cloud state and is providing plenty of scoring punch from either a forward or center spot.

"They have a good solid ball club," said Northland coach Chet Engelman. "They'll probably run quite a bit on us and play a variety of defenses. They're a real good shooting club," Engelman added.

Northland's line-up will find invaluable Tony Burke (6-6) at center, with Dale Hanson (6-5) and Kent Hanson (6-2) at forwards, Willie Bayne (5-9) and either Jay Forney (5-10), Stan Leach (6-2) or Mike Rasch (6-0) at guards. Burke ranks as the fifth leading scorer in region 13 action with a 21.2 points per game average. The Bemidji graduate needs just 12 more points to set a new school single-season scoring record. Burke has 440 points this season, putting Tom Super's 1968-69 record of 455 points in limbo. Burke is also the second leading career scorer, trailing 1970 graduate Nick Neibauer's standard.

Northland will take a 10-11 record into the game with just four games remaining. Following the Crookston contest, Northland will host the Thief River Falls vocational school February 15 and end the season with road games at Hibbing February 18 and at Grand Rapids versus Itasca February 19.

Many of the Thief River Falls district fighters will be appearing in the city's next boxing card scheduled for Wednesday, February 16, in the city auditorium.

Northland Skaters Host Rainy River Six

Northland state junior college will host defending state champion Rainy River in the Thief River Falls sports arena Friday and Saturday, February 11 and 12, in MJCAA hockey action.

The Voyageurs are currently holding down second place in the conference standings, behind Itasca, while Northland is third, Lakewood fourth and Hibbing is in the cellar. Rainy River posted 7-4 and 5-3 wins over Northland earlier this season in a two-game series at International Falls.

Northland will be trying to bounce back from a double loss suffered at Grand Rapids Sunday and Monday, with 8-3 and 8-4 losses to Itasca. Swede Lund's icers carry a 10-7 season record to date, including an 8-9 conference mark.

Sophomore centers Bob Lundbohm and Leo Marshall lead the Northmen in scoring with 51 and 49 points respectively. Lundbohm, from Roseau, has scored 24 goals and added 27 assists while Marshall, a Warroad product, has collected 23 goals and 26 assists. Following Marshall in the scoring parade are Rodney Bolduc 18-13-31, Jeff Baumgartner 12-19-31, Rich Ellerbusch 16-14-30, Mark Hughes 14-13-27, John Barger 11-14-25, Leonard Kotta 7-5-12, Rick Lindegard 3-5-8, Gary Halvorson 3-3-6, Roger Erickson 0-2-2, Doug Palm 1-1-2, John Helquist 0-2-2 and Paul Johnson 0-1-1.

"Sugarfoot" Johnson Is Magician's Clown

Eugene "Sugarfoot" Johnson will be one of the prime attractions Monday night, February 14, when the Fabulous Magicians basketball team will perform in the Lincoln high school gym against Thief River Falls coaches.

With owner-coach Marques Haynes, Johnson is the most admired member of the Magicians quintet. For those who have never seen this crafty basketballer in action, and expecially the youngsters, the game is a "must" attraction.

Johnson, a 6-6 220 pounder, puts on a whale of a show with a remarkable repetoire of shots. "Sugarfoot" is always introduced as the "knock-kneed" high stepping clown of the court who wears a size 16½ shoe.

In every court there is a clown prince, and on the basketball court a "clown prince" appears in the person of "Sugarfoot." With his magical shots he entrances the youngsters and even gets the parents laughing and becoming his fans.

"Sugarfoot" and his teammates will mount a wild drive down the court, passing the ball furiously, and as the ball winds up in the clown prince's hands, he makes the final behind the back basket. Johnson will also interrupt a game, argue with the referee, then suddenly toss the ball over his head into the bucket, from any angle.

The "Sugarfoot" has many trick shots; he slams the ball to the floor, and while he is still screaming at his opponent, the ball bounces off the floor and into the basket. Johnson will also stand stock still with the ball spinning on the top of one finger, then push the ball onto the backboard. But, obediently, the ball will carom off the board and head right into the hoop. Observers say that the hook shot "Sugarfoot" has developed is the greatest the game has seen, rivaled only by the shot that was perfected by the late "Goose" Tatum.

Advance tickets for the event will be $1.50 for adults, $1 for senior and junior high students and 50 cents for children under 12. Tickets at the door will be $1.75, $1.25 and 75 cents. Advance tickets are available at all Thief River Falls schools, including the junior college and vocational school, as well as at Larson Music, Model Barber Shop, Corner Drug, Ekeren Drug and J & B Drug.

Noise Technician Tells Problem Of Snowmobiles

In a recent presentation to the physics class at Northland state junior college, Roger Anderson, a test technician in the Arctic Enterprises sound laboratory, used some of his portable equipment to demonstrate how technicians learn which engine parts cause the loudest noise and can then work to reduce the noise.

Anderson explained that due to Congressional ruling, the decibel level in snowmobiles must be decreased by approximately 100 per cent with the next five to 10 years. To reach that level, technicians are experimenting with different types of foam to aid in absorbing sound waves.

By the use of sound meters, Anderson demonstrated the decibel rating of conversation and how the rating changed according to an increase in volume, which, he said, shows the theory of logrithmic increase behind the decibel.

He explained how the sound of a running snowmobile can be tape recorded and fed into a machine which then prints out an analysis of the frequencies. By following the graph and knowing the frequencies of each moving part, the technicians can move to decrease the noise, he explained.

St. Cloud Reformatory Has Vocational Program

Bob Johnson (this isn't his real name) is attending an area vocational technical school, and is studying commercial art. This alone, of course, isn't unusual. What makes Bob different from thousands of other young adults attending vocational schools, is that Bob has spent nine of the past 11 years behind bars. He spent time at Red Wing and Lino Lakes as a youthful offender, and finally ended up being sent to St. Cloud reformatory, not just once, but to serve three different sentences.

Something happened to Bob, however, while he was serving his most recent sentence at the reformatory. He was referred by a reformatory social worker to the cooperative vocational rehabilitation program (CVRP) which has been in operation at the reformatory for over three years. After he was referred to the CVRP, a rehabilitation counselor worked with him and helped him select a job objective at work toward after he was released from the reformatory.

Because Bob demonstrated an aptitude for art, it was decided that commercial art training in a vocational school would meet his needs. When he was released from the reformatory, he immediately started school and was provided with financial assistance to pay his tuition as well as money for room and board while he attended school. His progress in training to date indicates that he is progressing satisfactorily and should be able to complete his training successfully.

Joe Gonzales (this isn't his real name) is a Mexican-American working in the Twin Cities as a barber. He learned the barbering trade while serving a sentence at the St. Cloud reformatory. He also had been seen by a rehabilitation counselor from the CVRP and subsequently aided to select a vocational objective that was appropriate for him. He was then provided with training at the reformatory, so that upon his release, he was able with the financial assistance of the CVRP to purchase barber tools to become employed as a barber.

John Smith (this isn't his real name) is working for a firm today as an architectural draftsman. Two and one-half years ago, he was released from the reformatory and was aided by the CVRP to obtain two years of training in drafting. When he finished his training, his counselor aided him to find the job which he now holds.

"These are only a few of the individuals that have been aided by the CVRP at the reformatory to become law abiding tax paying citizens of their communities," Orval K. Hage, area director for the division of vocational rehabilitation said today. "The CVRP, which is a cooperative effort between the department of corrections and the division of vocational rehabilitation, has demonstrated its value in assisting in the rehabilitation of the offender. We think that the techniques we are employing in assisting the offender prepare for his return to the community can be used nationwide in other correctional facilities to help offenders rehabilitate themselves."

A former inmate who is unable to adjust vocationally and become an employed person once he leaves a correctional facility is very likely to return to a correctional facility as a violator. Research studies indicate that former inmates who are able to make vocational adjustments once they leave a correctional facility have significantly greater chances of remaining outside of the institution than inmates who are not able to adjust vocationally. Orval K. Hage said that because vocational adjustment is so important to former inmates, every effort must be made to assist the inmate prepare for the world of work once he leaves a correctional facility.

Tom Tillemans, program supervisor of the cooperative vocational rehabilitation program at St. Cloud reformatory, said that he feels that vocational rehabilitation services have demonstrated their effectiveness because the services offered are geared to the needs of the individual inmate rather than to groups of inmates.

Tillemans said that most of the inmates at the reformatory have poor work records. Many have not held a job for more than a few months, and it is felt that the vocational maladjustment of the inmates contributed significantly to developing a pattern of criminal behavior which in turn results in incarceration.

The objective of the CVRP program at the reformatory is to help the inmate gain vocational direction so that when he leaves the reformatory, he can either seek employment directly or continue to prepare for employment through training.

Each inmate who is referred by the reformatory staff is given a series of vocational tests to determine interests, achievement levels and apitiitudes. The inmate as required is also evaluated by vocational work evaluators in areas such as electronics, drafting, auto mechanics, welding or auto body, either through work samples or temporary placement in one of 19 training areas provided for inmates at the reformatory.

Once the inmate arrives at the vocational objective he wishes to work toward, every effort is made to place the individual in a work assignment that will help him accomplish his goal.

"If for example," Tillemans said, "the individual wishes to become an auto mechanic once he leaves the institution, effort will be made to place him in the auto mechanic training program that is offered by the reformatory. Our objective is to help the inmate gain direction vocationally through counseling and evaluation and to then help the inmate get into a training program that will help him to utilize his time while he is in the institution as effectively as possible, so that when he leaves the institution, he has increased his skills so that he has greater opportunities for employment."

Tillemans also said that many inmates select job objectives that require training after they leave the institution. If this is the case, needed training is provided for the individual upon his release. Since the program started we have provided training for 179 individuals. We currently have 37 individuals attending vocational schools, and they are being trained in occupations which range from auto body repair and welding to cosmetology and art.

A number of studies have noted the relationship between occupational skill level and recidivism. Eighty-nine per cent of the reformatory population is listed as unskilled. We hope to find out if inmates who receive vocational training to upgrade their skills subsequently recidivate at a lower rate than those who receive no vocational training. A September, 1971 follow-up study of 41 men who had been paroled from three months to 2½ years and attended vocational school on a parole plan revealed that 22 per cent had violated their paroles for one reason or another. Only 10 per cent or 4 men has committed new offenses. While it may be premature to say that vocational school training will drastically reduce recidivism rates, the early returns are encouraging.

A number of individuals we work with select a vocational objective that requires college training, so we also have a number of individuals attending colleges and universities throughout the state. And finally, we have a number of individuals who receive training after they leave the reformatory on the job. The tuition for training, as well as room and board money, is provided by the division of vocational rehabilitiation.

"In addition to providing vocational evaluation, counselling and training for clients, we also provide them with job placement assistance. One of the techniques used is designed to help the inmate sell himself in the job interview. We call it our 'Job Seeking Skills Course'," Tillemans said.

"In this course we help the inmate learn how to complete a job application properly and we also do role playing with the inmate so that he can improve his ability to sell himself. When we do role playing with the inmate, we utilize closed circuit television so that the inmate can actually see himself after he has been interviewed and thus can evaluate his own performance in the interview."

"It is important to point out," Tillemans said, "that the CVRP does not operate in isolation in the reformatory. When we have some one referred to us by reformatory personnel, we work together with the individual referring the inmate." The inmate's caseworker has primary responsibility for the overall planning that is done, and any placement of an inmate within the institution is done with the approval of reformatory staff.

"It's all a cooperative effort," Tillemans said, "and it demonstrates how two agencies can work together to solve problems that neither agency could solve alone. We, of course, do have problems, the most serious problem being the size of the CVRP. Because the number of our staff is limited, we cannot serve all of the inmates that need our services. At this time, we are set up to serve approximately half of the inmate population. We are hopeful that in the future, staff and funds will be available so we can meet the needs as we know them to exist; in the meantime, we will continue to serve as many inmates as possible."

PVT. ROGER R. ANDERSON, son of Mr. and Mrs. Richard Anderson of Lake Bronson, is shown receiving final instruction from First Sgt. Harvey Hanson before leaving for basic training at Fort Leonard Wood, Mo. Anderson will later be transfered to Fort Knox, Ky., where he will undergo training as a track vehicle mechanic. He is a member of Co. B, 2nd Bn., (Mech.) 136th Infantry, Minnesota Army National Guard

Surplus Sunflower Hull Use Studied

Who knows better than sunflower seed eaters the nuisance that sunflower hulls can cause?

People who clean up after the seed fiend has done his deed know that even the tidiest seed-cracker soon loses control over disposal of the hulls as they sink into the carpet or between the sofa cushions, reappearing at the most inopportune time.

But imagine the enormous headache facing operators of plants that de-hull sunflower seeds and process them for oil. Based on present trends, this industry could have 100,000 tons of hulls on hand by 1980 at two or three sites within the sunflower-growing region, which presently includes the Red River Valley and adjacent counties in northwestern Minnesota and North Dakota.

The hulls are being made into pellets as roughage for cattle, but this is not the long range answer to the probelm, according to University of Minnesota scientists Roland O. Gertjejansen and John G. Haygreen, both in forest products research, and David W. French, a plant pathologist.

Seek New Uses

A large and expanding international industry has evolved from the growing and processing of sunflowers. A Canadian firm has pressed hulls into 7½-pound logs for fuel. Use of sunflower seed hulls in the production of the chemical furfural, for landfill, in improving soil and for fuel in sunflower seed processing plants has been considered in the United States, but actually done outside this country.

In recent University of Minnesota research, particle board was made of 50 per cent sunflower seed hulls and 50 per cent aspen wood flakes. Particle board commonly is used as floor underlayment and in furniture and cabinets.

The laboratory-manufactured particle board, met or exceeded the commercial standard requirements for medium density interior boards with the exception of screw-holding capabilities, Gertjejansen, Haygreen and French reported.

But they added that it is questionable whether a comparison of a laboratory board to the commercial standard is valid. Whether or not a commercial board made of 50 per cent seed hulls would meet the commercial standard requirements is a matter for conjecture at this point, the researchers said.

Suggest More Study

Other possibilities for using hulls in particle board remain to be explored.

If the internal bond can be improved, the hulls may well be suitable as a core for three-layer boards. Also, the effect of resin content, the shape of hull and aspen flake and the possibility of hull pre-treatments to improve bonding should be evaluated, they said.

There may be some merit in operating a particle board plant in conjunction with sunflower processing operation, considering that the processing sites will be well within range to obtain aspen wood from west central Minnesota. One sunflower processing plant can produce almost 40,000 tons of hulls a year. A plant manufacturing particle board of half hulls and half aspen, operated in conjunction with a sunflower processing operation, could consume 40,000 tons of hulls and 40,000 cords of aspen a year, the scientists observed.

The economic feasibility of such an operation has yet to be considered, but Minnesota, with its sunflower and wood products industries, might be the place where this is possible.

Forestry Student Meets Job Hazard

Instructors at the U of M forestry school never told Dave Shipper that one of the occupational hazards of the job was getting out of the way of angry moose.

But that's what happened earlier this month when Dave was working for the Minnesota Department of Natural Resources near Hovland in the Grand Marais state forest.

The Department's division of lands and forestry hires several junior and senior forestry students during the December session break to help with forest survey work and give the students some practical experience in how a public forestry agency operates.

Working with Orvis Lunke, a DNR forest technician, Dave was gathering information needed to develop forest management plans for lands under the Department's jurisdiction.

Hearing a crashing in the woods nearby, the two men went to investigate and discovered a female moose having a fit of some sort.

As soon as the moose caught sight of the two, she charged, forcing the men to scramble hastily up the nearest tree. The moose then went on a rampage tearing up the forest around them, knocking down saplings of two and three inches diameter in the process.

Finally the moose left, allowing the men to descend and report the unfriendly behavior of the animal to a Department game manager.

Although Shipper had expressed a desire to see a moose when he took his part time job, he now says he has seen all the moose he cares to for quite some time.

Life Insurance Dividends Go To State Vets

Director of the Veterans administration center at Fort Snelling announced today that 92,533 Minnesota veterans will receive government life insurance dividends totaling $6,345,000 in 1972.

Director John R. Murphy reported that the dividends are part of a record $286 million which 4.1 million veterans throughout the country will receive during the first six months of this year.

The dividends are ordinarily paid on the anniversary dates of individual policies during the course of the year, but payment in 1972 will be accelerated so that all dividends will be paid in the first six months, he said.

Murphy also announced that effective January 1 interest rates on dividends left on credit with the VA were increased from 4.25 to 4.5 per cent on dividends from World War II National Service Life Insurance (NSLI) policies and from 4 to 4.25 per cent on dividends from World War I U.S. Government Life Insurance (USGLI) policies.

Commenting on the 1972 dividends, Murphy said 3.9 million veterans with World War II "V"-prefixed NSLI policies will receive $265 million in dividend checks or credit, averaging $68 per policy.

Another 155,000 veterans with World War I "K"-prefixed USGLI policies can expect $21 million in dividends averaging $135 per policy. All dividends will be paid by about April 15, he said.

He also pointed out that USGLI policyholders will receive the largest regular dividends since 1953, and that 1972 will be the fifth consecutive year that dividends have been increased on NSLI policies.

Dividends result from increased interest earnings in NSLI and USGLI trust funds, Murphy said. He stressed that veterans need not contact the agency to receive the dividends, since they will be paid automatically.

He noted that dividends left on credit in MSLI and USGLI trust funds are used to pay delinquent premiums to prevent lapse of policies. Exceptions are made where veterans have requested in writing that their dividends be paid in cash, or have elected some other option, he said.

Large Cities Losing Residents, Study Reports

If you've ever lived in a large city, visited one or even read about one, you know that there are just too many people. Obviously, the population in large cities must be increasing tremendously. Surprise! The reverse is true, according to a major insurance company.

In a recent study on population trends in large cities, statisticians report that the rate of the population growth was much lower in a very large cities of the United States than in the country as a whole.

For cities with over 300,000 residents in 1960, the population gain between April of that year and April 1970 was 2.0 per cent, compared with a nationwide increase of 13.3 per cent. Consequently, the proportion of the country's population in these cities decreased from 20.6 per cent in 1960 to 18.5 per cent 10 years later.

Of the cities under review by the company 20 increased and 22 decreased in population. In general, the cities in the Northeast and North Central regions lost population, while those in the south and West gained.

In the Northeast, only New York recorded a gain, its population increasing by 1.5 per cent to an all-time high of 7,895,563 in April 1970. A decade earlier, the city's population had declined from 7,891,957 in 1950 to 7,781,984 in 1960.

While New York was gaining during the 1960s, the other six very large northeastern cities lost population, the decreases ranging from 2.6 per cent in Philadelphia to as much as 13.9 per cent in Pittsburg.

The population changes in the North Central cities varied with size. All cities with more than 480,000 residents in 1960 sustained losses, whereas the smaller cities, except St. Paul, recorded increases. The insurance statisticians note that Indianapolis led all 42 cities with a population increase of 56.6 per cent, from 476,258 in 1960 to 745,739 a decade later.

Most of the very large cities with substantial growth between 1960 and 1970 are in the South and West. Phoenix, with a rate of growth second only to that fur Indianapolis, increased by 32.4 per cent from 439,170 to 581,562. Houston, likewise, grew at a rate more than double the national average. Its population increased by 31.4 per cent, from 938,219 to 1,232,802. As a reseult, Houston has overtaken Baltimore and has become the sixth largest city in the country.

Three other cities—Memphis, Dallas and San Diego—recorded gains of more than 21 per cent. By contrast, there were eight cities with population declines. Birmingham and Louisville had the largest decreases, namely, 11.7 and 7.3 per cent, respectively.

The study by the insurance company also notes that migration was an important factor in the differential rate of population growth during the past decade. The largest cities, as a group, lost more than 3,800,000 persons through migration to the suburbs or smaller communities. Only five cities--Houston, Dallas, Los Angeles, San Diego and Phoenix—had a new gain of migrants within their 1960 boundaries.

In most cities outside the Northeast, the losses through migration were offset in part by the extension of city boundaries to include the adjacent newly-populated area. This was particularly marked in the North Central cities, where the 1970 population in annexed areas amounted to 572,574, or almost three-fifths of the corresponding total for all 42 cities.

We don't mean to offend any cat-lover, but we don't believe cats laugh.

Laughter is a muscular response to appreciated humor. And we're inclined to view humor as one of those high-level responses which are characteristic in humans only. And thank the Lord for humor. Without laughter this would be a sorry world.

Religion is another human characteristic not evident in animals. Our belief in and worship of God, coupled with our conscientious effort to live according to moral principles — these are not found in the animal world.

Whether cats laugh is not a question of great moment. But whether man is living up to the religious capacity God has given him is another matter. Our awakening to our spiritual potential is a great moment!

The world market for commercial aircraft during the 12 years from 1974 through 1985 is estimated at $148 billion. If the U.S. could retain its present 80 percent of this market sales would amount to $118 billion during the 12-year period. If it does not aggressively enter all segments of this market (long-range, including SST; medium-range, including the airbus; short-range, including both vertical and short takeoff and landing aircraft) it stands to lose $78 billion. This translates into the loss of 1,479,000 man-years of employment, $29.6 billion in payrolls, nearly $10.6 billion in Federal income taxes, and a negative balance of trade in aerospace products of $18.3 billion, instead of a healthy surplus.

"If the Prince of Wei were to ask you to take over the government, what would you put first on your agenda?" "The one thing needed," replied the Master, "is the definition of terms. If terms are ill-defined, statements disagree with facts; when statements disagree with facts, business is mismanaged; when business is mismanaged, order and harmony do not flourish; when order and harmony do no flourish, then justice becomes arbitrary; and when justice becomes arbitrary, the people do not know how to move hand or foot." —Confucius

Take A Look

Supt. William Corliss has prepared for us a good deal of information regarding consideration of the downtown Arctic Enterpirses building for school purposes. That information is presented in an article being published in today's issue of the Times.

Thief River Falls board of education will be giving additional consideration to his proposal at its regular meeting on Monday. We are sure that board members would appreciate individual comments prior to that time.

Personally, we are reserving judgement at this time, not having had an opportunity to study the material which is being prepared as this is being written. Neither have we been involved in prior consideration when both the board and administrative personnel have discussed the possibilities.

We encourage you to become acquainted with the situation through the news article, to talk to one or more board members if you have an opinion, and to attend Monday's board meeting if you want to have a better understanding of the alternatives. Now is the time to take a look and find out if you like what you see.

Olympic Boredom

We looked forward with some anticipation to the telecasts of the winter Olympic games in Japan. Performances of fine athletes in the intricacies of their specialties has always held us in a certain amount of awe.

But after the first week or so of competition we have to admit to a degree of boredom. Admittedly, we have seen only a portion of the total telecasts. Virtually all of that has been skiing competition, with the exception of some speed skating (equal boredom), a few minutes of hockey and a flick or two of compulsory figures in skating contests.

Monday evening, after a few minutes of eye strain trying to watch losing skiers materialize out of a snowstorm, we switched channels to watch professional boxing from California. There was enough action there to keep us interested.

Maybe the best is yet to come in Olympic coverage, but so far we have been disappointed. While we can appreciate a fine slalom run, the precise timing and poise of ski jumping and the coordination needed for downhill skiing, a look at the top five or six competitors and perhaps the U.S. entrants would be sufficient. And we certainly wouldn't object to taped re-runs if they showed event highlights. After all, due to the time variance, we are watching live events nearly half a day in advance anyway.

For some reason, we are less than trilled by watching the also-rans on the ski course while the winner is being congratulated. There must be more to the winter Olympics than that.

North and South Minnesota

Perhaps Charles Dexter of the Bemidji Pioneer had tongue in cheek when he wrote the following editorial, but we are in sympathy with the message set forth therein:

While we are neither judges nor legislators, we have come to the conclusion that we are just as capable of reapportioning the state as they. In fact, we have arrived upon a plan that we feel would make everyone up here happy.

Our plan is actually quite simple. We propose to divide the state with a horizontal line between Little Falls and Brainerd and form two separate states of what is now Minnesota.

Bemidji would become the capital of North Minnesota (we admit Duluth is larger, but we are more centrally located). The Twin Cities metro area could have the entire new state of South Minnesota to do with as they wish.

To support our proposal we could submit several pages of advantages.

The most obvious is that we could operate our new state with a smaller legislature, but representation wouldn't have to suffer. Since only six of the court's 35 proposed senate districts would be in North Minnesota, we would at the outset by relieved of supporting the 29 senators and 87 representatives the court figures we now need to represent the metro area and the southern half of the state. We would of course, need more than six senators, but even if we had one for every county in our new state, we would only be talking about roughly 25 and think that 50 representatives would do for us, about 2 in every county! We would even save on travel expenses, as our legislators wouldn't have to go so far to get to the state capitol as they do now.

Let's look to some of the issues as we find more advantages to our two-state proposal there.

Take studded tires, for instance. We would probably have no trouble convincing our new North Minnesota legislature that they are much needed. Our legislators wouldn't have to worry about what the studs do to those nice roads in the metro area and down in South Minnesota either.

Speaking of roads, our North Minnesota Highway Department could be much smaller and less expensive, as we would not have near as many miles of roads to build and maintain as South Minnesota would have.

When hunting and fishing seasons roll around, we could make a lot of money by charging high license fees to non-resident South Minnesota hunters and fishermen, in fact we could even make the cost prohibitive. Then there would be plenty of deer for a nice long season and we could all hunt without wiping out the herds. We could probably manage to pass a better predator control program to protect those herds to boot.

We could also make some gains federally. Without having to include South Minnesota, we could probably get our entire state declared a low-income, high unemployment area by EDA. We could also be declared an annual disaster area so our farmers could collect some federal coins, without having the prosperous southern famers considered part of our group. We wouldn't have to share precious HUD funds designated for our state with the Metropolitan area neither.

While we could go on and on with advantages to our two-state proposal and further supportive material, we must admit that there would be some disadvantages. The trouble is, we can't seem to think of any, as our minds are so full of advantages.

Maybe we ought to follow through with our ideas—secede from Minnesota and establish North Minnesota.

At least then, when one of our local girls marries a chap who later ends up as our governor, she could live right here at home with us and her parents.

Up To The Public

Following editorial is from the Webster, S. D., Reporter and Farmer:

Governor Ronald Reagan of California has reported on the progress of California's efforts to curb the growth of ". . .I am very pleased to announce . . .that California's welfare. He says, now declined for the seventh month in a row—an accomplishment no other state can match. Had we not pressed vigorously for welfare reform at the state level. . .our projections show that there would now be a third of a million more persons on welfare in California, or 13 per cent more than there actually are. And, the increased federal, state and local taxes this would have imposed on the people of California during these seven months would have amounted to an additional $80 million burden. . .What we are accomplishing in California to bring welfare back under control constitutes a dramatic answer to those who claim that a massive and costly federally controlled program is the only solution to the welfare problem. Handing over the welfare dilemma to the federal government is not the answer. . ."

Reportedly, other areas, notably New York, are working with a measure of success to prevent welfare from breaking the backs of taxpayers and bankrupting states and the nation. The reversal in the welfare trend has been initiated by officials who have become acutely aware of the mounting resentment of rebellious taxpayers. It demonstrates that when the chips are down public opinion becomes the deciding factor in the choice of programs proposed by elected governmental leaders from the President on down. Thus, the public, if it wishes to do so, could make economy in government a highly popular political slogan—and one that no politician would dare to ignore.

"After looking at that, I feel like shooting myself."

Dear Editor,

Oh good. Thief River Falls finally got what it needed most. A mechanized National Guard Unit with two M-54 Armored Tanks! I, for one, was somewhat at a loss to understand the excuse for these things being sent to TRF, but upon reflection their need becomes obvious.

First, they are necessary to deter any potential foreign invasion. Should there be an onslaught of hordes of barbaric Canadians swooping down from their wintery northern homes to lay waste to the countryside, we'll be ready alright. And after all, TRF is the only strategic point guarding Minneapolis from the north, and just where would this state be if Canada took possession of Metropolitan Stadium and the IDS Tower?

Secondly, there is the need for quelling civil disturbance. Never can tell when those Northland state junior college kids might get out of hand. But if they do, wouldn't a tank with a 7.62 milimeter machine gun be just the thing to restore order. That thought, I suggest, ought to make more than just a few people shudder.

Thirdly, the vehicles will bring a great economic boom to the town. Each summer we can have "Sherman Tank Days," and hold racing events. Think of all the people who will flock to town to see if either machine can break the land speed record of 32 miles an hour. And we'll give away prizes to the people who can find the 60 degree incline the machines are capable of climbing.

Perhaps, Mr. Editor, sending two armored personnel carriers complete with machine guns is someone's idea of a bad joke. I make a modest proposal. Next time the federal government decides to make a gift to our community, let's request them to use the money for something we really need. I submit that it could be better spent on such things as improving health care for our elderly, raising the salaries of public employees such as teachers, policemen and firemen, expanding our academic and technical educational facilities, job opportunities for returning veterans, cancer research. . .the list is endless.

I doubt that our community has many problems which can be cured by two tanks which, as your article pointed out, will be obsolete in just a few short years. Where, Mr. Editor, are our priorities?

Sincerely
Wayne E. Gilbert

Questions and Answers

Internal Revenue Service

Q—Do doctor's offices have to post their base prices?

A—Noninstitutional providers of health services, such as doctors, dentists, etc., and institutional providers, such as hospitals and skilled nursing homes, must maintain at each of their facilities a schedule showing base prices for their principal services and each change in those prices.

The schedules must be made available for public inspection and a copy must be furnished to the Internal Revenue service upon request. Health providers also must post a sign (minimum of 22" by 28") in a prominent place in each of their facilities stating the availability and location of the schdule.

No price may be increased before the sign is posted and the schedule is made available.

Q—Will prenotifiers and reporting firms get quicker service by submitting reports to Internal Revenue service offices?

A—No. Although the necessary forms for prenotifers and reporting firms are available at IRS offices, completed forms should be mailed to the pay board or the price commission. Price notifications should be mailed to the Price Commission, P.O. Box 19300, Washington, D. C. 20036. Wage notifications on Form PB-1 should be mailed to the Pay Board, P. O. Box 1498, Washington, D. C. 20013; Forms PB-2 should be mailed to the pay board at P. O. Box 1499.

Q—When can a retailer raise his prices?

A—A retailer may charge a price in excess of the base price whenever its customary initial percentage markup after Nov. 13, 1971, with respect to the property sold is equal to or less than its last customary initial percentage markup before Nov. 14, 1971 or, at its option, during its last fiscal year ending before Aug 15, 1971. The aggregate effect of all of its price changes must not be to increase its profit margin over that which prevailed during the base period.

Q—My apartment development plans to build a swimming pool for the use of the tenants. How much can they raise my rent to cover the cost of the swimming pool?

A—Generally, the allowable increase in monthly rent over the base rent for a capital improvement such as this may not be more than 1.5 per cent of that part of the cost of the capital improvement allocable to your apartment.

If the capital improvement increases your monthly rent by 10 per cent or more, your landlord must obtain prior approval from the Internal Revenue service before increasing your rent, unless such improvement is required by local law or the terms of a mortgage or deed of trust.

Q—Do "wages and salaries" under the stabilization program include employer contributions to pension or profit-sharing plans?

A—No. The recent amendments to the economic stabilization act of 1970 exclude from the definition of wages and salaries contributions by employers pursuant to a pension, profit sharing, or annunity and savings plan considered "qualified" under the internal revenue code; any group insurance plan; or any disability and health plan; unless the pay board determines that such contributions are unreasonably inconsistent with pay board standards.

Q—Rent controls do not apply to commercial, nonresident property, but in general they do apply to existing residential property. How is property which is used both for commercial and residential purposes treated—for example, a building which is rented for office space and apartments?

A—The portion used for commercial purposes is exempt, but the portion used for residential purposes is subject to rent control.

Q—Does a landlord have to justify a rent increase of 2.5 per cent?

A—No. However, he must notify a tenant in writing at least 30 days before a rent increase goes into effect.

Q—Can a retailer satisfy the base price posting requirement if a shopper can obtain access to Base price information only by asking the retailer for it?

A—No. Prices are not considered to be displayed "prominently" if a shopper can obtain access only through requesting base price information from the retailer or one of his employees. Retailers with less than $200,000 annual revenue are exempt from the posting requirement.

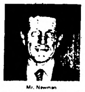
Minnesotans Get 4-H Alumni Honors

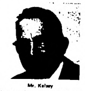
An art and music teacher, a homemaker and two farmers have been named Minnesota state 4-H alumni recognition program winners.

Announcement of the 1971 winners was made by the Cooperative Extension Service.

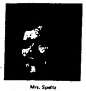
Designed to honor former 4-H members, the alumni recognition program recognizes effective community leadership, public service, service to 4-H and career successes.



Mr. Newman



Mr. Kelsey



Mrs. Speltz

Each of the four state winners received a plaque from Olin Corporation, the sponsor of the program.

They are Dale Kelsey of Lewisville, Watonwan County; Mrs. Joseph Speltz, Jr., of Utica, Winona County, Mrs. Leonard Seidl, of Hanska, Brown County, and Hiram Newman of Kandiyohi, Kandiyohi County.

Kelsey serves as an adult 4-H leader in a local club and is president of the local Farm Bureau. A farmer all of his life, he was director of the Minnesota Crop Improvement Association for 12 years and president of the Watonwan County Crop Improvement Association for 20 years.

All nine of his children followed his example and were active in 4-H work. A 4-H'er for eight years, his grandchildren are now doing likewise. Kelsey's strongest state fair competitors each year, where he has regularly exhibited and regularly earned one or more champions or sweepstakes, are often members of his own family.

Mrs. Speltz, the former Donna Marie Edwards, is an elementary art and music teacher. The year that she ended 4-H work, in 1961, after 12 years, she was elected a leader in her club, a position she still holds.

A member of the 4-H County Federation executive council for five years, Mrs. Speltz has organized a young adult citizens group in Winona County. She has served as county chairman of the annual heart drive and is a member of the Farm Bureau and the County Republican Committee.

Newman served as an adult leader of local 4-H groups for some 27 years. When he retired from the activity two years ago, his son, Randall, took over.

A successful farmer, livestock judge and buyer, cattle feeder and dairyman, Newman started farming on his own when he was 21 years old. He purchased his first farm in 1938 and has since purchased three more farms.

All three sons have worked as hard in 4-H as did their father when he was a six-year member.

Mrs. Seidl, a teacher and homemaker, has been a 4-H project leader for 10 years and a 4-H organization leader for two years.

She was a 4-H'er herself in 1929 and 1930, carrying the sewing project.

With her experience as a teacher, she uses her skills in promoting young people to join the different activities offered through 4-H.

She started a 4-H leadership program in her area and led the junior leadership contest.

The 4-H awards programs are arranged by the National 4-H Service Committee.

Cheddar Highlights

Saucy Shrimp Casserole is a tempting example of the tasty contribution natural cheese makes to countless hot dishes. The popular cheese highlights a simple sauce that's combined with hard-cooked eggs and shrimp for a hearty, protein-rich main dish. Quick and easy to assemble, Saucy Shrimp Casserole is great for hurried-up family meals and equally appealing at a casual "company" dinner. A crisp green salad and hot rice or canned chow mein noodles are interesting tablemates.

Incidentally, this time we've chosen zesty sharp Cheddar to impart a good rich cheese flavor to the basic white sauce. Cheddar's flavor range also includes mild, mellow and extra sharp, so there's one to choose to best suit your mood and menu. Natural Cheddar cheese is available in sticks, wedges, bars and rounds of varying weights as well as in slices. One of the newest forms, handy packages of shredded Cheddar, ready to lend its special character to toppings and all sorts of delicious baked dishes like today's casserole. If you prefer to shred your own, remember that four ounces of cheese make one cup shredded.

Saucy Shrimp Casserole

¼ cup Parkay Margarine
¼ cup flour
2 cups milk
2 cups (8 ounces) Shredded Cracker Barrel Brand Sharp Natural Cheddar Cheese
1 teaspoon salt
½ teaspoon Worcestershire sauce
Dash of pepper
6 hard-cooked eggs, sliced
1 lb. (2½ cups) cooked shrimp
Paprika
Parsley

Make a cream sauce with margarine, flour, milk and seasonings. Add cheese, stirring until melted. Alternate layers of egg slices, shrimp and cheese sauce in a 1½ quart casserole. Bake at 350°, 20 to 25 minutes. Garnish with paprika and parsley. Makes 6 servings.

VALENTINE DAY IS FEBRUARY 14th

A doctor who operates on himself has a fool for a patient.

It's an old saying, but it's never made more sense. There are some jobs in life that you just don't tackle by yourself. The preparation of your income tax should be one of them.

And that's where H & R Block, The Income Tax People, come in. H & R Block is America's largest tax service with more than 6,000 conveniently located offices to serve you. Your H & R Block representative is specially trained and can provide information on legitimate income tax benefits and opportunities that the average man on the street doesn't even know exists.

For instance, do you know all about deductions for child care or casualty losses? Or, that if your income increased over the last few years, you may save tax dollars by "income averaging?" And even if you did, would you know how to go about "income averaging" to begin with? Probably not. And there's no reason why you should. After all, you're an amateur when it comes to doing income tax.

H & R Block's charges start at $5 and last year averaged under $12.50 for over 7 million returns we prepared.

And, if we make any error in the preparation of your tax return that costs you any interest or penalty on additional taxes due, while we do not assume the liability for the additional taxes, we will pay that interest and penalty.

Our one time fee entitles you to year 'round tax service and assistance.

Come to the company that more than 7 million Americans placed their confidence in last year. Come to the people who will fill out your next income tax return efficiently, quickly, confidentially. Come to H & R Block.

DON'T LET AN AMATEUR DO H&R BLOCK'S JOB.

H&R Block.

Winter Survival Workshop Planned

Teachers and students, often together but often so far apart, may gain new insight and understanding of one another as a result of a new workshop planned by the Minnesota departments of education and natural resources.

Theme of the upcoming Minnesota outdoor education workshop is "Survival in the Winter Environment". The program features a number of enlightening activities designed to reveal how plants, animals and humans 'too, can survive Minnesota's severe winters.

But another important goal of the workshop, according to Roger Grosslein, DNR environmental education consultant, "is to bring teachers and students together outside the classroom and into a fascinating and intriguing winter environment".

Each participating teacher will be expected to bring one student of his or her choice to the workshop which this year, has been split into two four-day sessions, March 7-10 and 14-17. Both sessions will be held at Bald Eagle center near Cass Lake.

"We tried the teacher-student team approach at our winter workshop last year," Grosslein noted. "At first we were quite concerned because it was the first time anything like this had been tried in Minnesota. But the results were very gratifying.

"Last year we had more than 150 teachers and students who lived, worked and learned together for four days. They participated in many interesting outdoor activities and shared in some exciting experiences. There were no classrooms, no textbooks nor tests," he said.

"On the final day of each session a year ago, we asked students and teachers to evaluate the workshop. We found that many students had discovered the true, out-of-the-classroom personality of their teachers. And many teachers learned a few things about their students that they might never have discovered within the confines of a classroom."

In addition to the team concept, this year's winter workshop will be similar to the 1971 version in other ways. Again, a great deal of emphasis will be placed on involvement—to enable participants to learn by experience rather than by reading a book or listening to a lecture.

"Teachers and students will be able to design their own working programs from a variety of optional activities," Grosslein noted. "At the workshop, we try to promote a relaxed, almost leisure atmosphere, but it is still an atmosphere of learning."

Some of the activities tentatively scheduled include making snowshoes, animal and plant investigative studies and numerous experiments and activities designed to create an "environmental awareness" among participants.

Certainly one of the most exciting and popular activities will be a session on human survival. Small groups, each led by a competent instructor, will become purposely lost deep within the woods. Then, working together, group members will discuss and examine the unique problems confronting them and attempt to work out solutions. In other words, learn to survive.

"Bald Eagle center is a perfect setting for these many types of activities." Grosslein noted. "The center is located within 650,000 acres of national forest lands. It is an excellent classroom and there are many trails and lakes which can be used by those who want to ski or snowshoe."

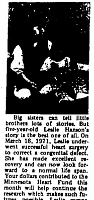
Grosslien added that most of the workshop instructors will be professionally - trained naturalists and resource managers. "We selected these people because of their experience and expertise in natural resource management and decision-making," he said. "They should do an excellent job of sharing this knowledge through activities which they have created especially for the workshop".

The 1972 workshop will be oriented specifically for kindergarten through ninth grade teachers and students. Teachers of all disciplines are asked to attend.

Total cost per session is $70 which includes tuition and fees, lodging and meals for each teacher-student combination. The workshop will offer two graduate or undergraduate credits to teachers through Bemidji state college. Basic medical insurance will be provided for teachers and students from the time they leave home until their return.

Workshop registration forms may be obtained by writing: John Miller, Environmental Education Consultant, 644 Capitol Square Bldg., St. Paul 55155 or by calling 612-221-6947. Pre-registration materials must be returned no later than February 21 for session one and February 28 for the second session.

YOU CAN HELP BUILD A HAPPY FUTURE



Big sisters can tell little brothers lots of stories. But five-year-old Leslie Hanson's story is the best one of all. On March 18, 1971, Leslie underwent successful heart surgery to correct a congenital defect. She has made excellent recovery and can now look forward to a normal life span. Your dollars contributed to the Minnesota Heart Fund this month will help continue the research which makes such futures possible. Leslie romps with brother Chris, chases her pet cat Sam around the house and giggles with her friends at nursery school.

Won't you continue to make such happiness possible by giving to the Heart Fund?

MAJESTIC is the best word to describe the United States' national bird, the bald eagle. Chuck Bindner, who appeared at Thief River Falls elementary schools and Northland state junior college last week, has the only U.S. Fish and Wildlife service permit to possess one of the national birds. This four-year-old bird will attain its fully white head and tail feathers with the next molt.

'Birds Of Prey' Are Featured In Talks

HAWK TALK is exchanged between Chuck Bindner, exhibitor of birds of prey for the University of Minnesota program service, and "Big Red", a red tailed hawk which Bindner has had for 16 years. While hawks do not show affection for man like some animals do, they do develop a familiarity and acceptance. Anyone else attempting to hold "Big Red" this close to his face would be inviting a vigorous nip on the nose.

by Marvin Lundin
Times Editor

"How many people here eat chicken? Raise your hands."

Nearly every youngster in the elementary gymnasium responded by holding a hand in the air.

"Then maybe we should call you 'chicken people'. When a hawk eats chickens, people call it a chicken hawk. I don't think that's fair. Besides, a lot of hawks that don't eat chickens are called chicken hawks, and that's wrong."

The speaker was Chuck Bindner, appearing in Thief River Falls under the auspices of the University of Minnesota program service. Topic of his program was "Birds of Prey" and he impressed both elementary students on his first visit and junior college students on his second. Naturally, the presentations were different, but the ecological message was the same.

Of the birds which Bindner exhibited during his appearances—including a great horned owl, Harris hawk, red tailed hawk and American bald eagle—the latter was the most impressive. Bindner is the only person in the United States to hold a permit from the U.S. Fish and Wildlife service for possession of the national bird.

Second Bald Eagle

"This is the second bald eagle I have had," Bindner said in a hurried interview following one of his elementary school programs. "My old bird was pretty sick and getting weaker all the time. Two days after I got the youngster, the old bird died. It was 30 years old, and almost seemed as if it had held on only until it could be replaced. Strange, isn't it?" His present bird is now four and one-half years old.

Binder has been interested in birds since early in life when he kept them as a hobby. He credits a high school biology teacher with giving him more time and encouragement than he had a right to expect, further stimulating his interest. Now he has a degree in ornithology and has been working with birds, reptiles and insects for 17 years.

Chuck worked with reptiles for the Ross Allen laboratory at Silver Springs, Fla., and was also associated with John Hamlet, animal ecologist for Arthur Godfrey at Weekie Watchie, Fla. He now makes his home in Phoenix, Ariz., where his two sons attend high school.

And while the Bindner birds travel in an enclosed trailer instead of soaring, they cover quite a few miles in the course of a year. "I make about 60,000 miles a year, and this year will have over 500 appearances in Minnesota, northern Iowa and eastern South Dakota," he said. He has covered the United States three times and made previous tours in Minnesota in 1952, 1956, 1958 and 1961.

Robert Flynn

Flynn To Head Junior College Advisory Group

Robert Flynn of Thief River Falls was elected chairman of the Northland state junior college advisory committee at its regular monthly meeting Thursday evening. Other officers elected were Dr. Orion Beich, Thief River Falls, vice-chairman; and Mrs. Mae Petterson, Red Lake Falls, secretary.

Other members of the advisory committee are Mrs. Shirley Cyr, Oklee; Orin Green, Thief River Falls; Loren Jorgenson, Argyle; Robert Parnow, Goodridge; Glenn Tasa, Trail; and Mrs. Joanne Yon, Roseau.

The committee assumes responsibility for promoting and securing support for the college programs and services in the college area and advises the college as to ways in which its programs and services can be responsive to the needs of the area.

Weatherman Smiles On 5th Annual Snowmobile Races

Saturated with black machines which captured a large share of total prize money, the States-Dominion snowmibile races were held Saturday and Sunday in Thief River Falls. Total pay-out Sunday to the winning drivers, including added money from several snowmobile related firms, totaled $4,995. Trophies were also awarded.

High point winner under the United States Snowmobile association points system was Richard Porter of Thief River Falls. Porter finished second in the Modified II and Modified III classes. There were 126 machines entered for the Sunday races and the crowd in attendance was estimated at 3,000.

Largest class Sunday was the Modified II class where Armand Westlund of Strathcona whizzed to victory on an Arctic Cat EXT. Westlund claimed the largest individual purse for the day, collecting $720 for his first place finish. His entry fee split was boosted to the $720 total by a $250 prize from Kawasaki engine company and $200 from Arctco Distributors.

Warm weather favored both days of racing with juniors and ladies racing the oval track on Saturday and men competing on Sunday. Drifting snow and strong winds added slight discomfort on Sunday but created no real problem.

In the junior division on Saturday Tom Porter of Thief River Falls won first places in Class II and Class III with Arctic Cat machines. In women's races, Karen Dick of Thief River Falls raced Arctic Cats to first place in Class IV and second place in Class I.

There were several accidents during the races but no serious injuries. One driver, Jerry Rychlock of Thief River Falls, was taken to the hospital by ambulance after being thrown from his sled and hit by another machine, but reportedly suffered no broken bones or serious injuries. Several other drivers were checked in the hospital's outpatient department.

Results of Sunday's races include the following, with first, second and third place winners listed respectively:

Stock A—Don Eide, Oslo, Arctic Cat; Roger Hible, TRF, Arctic Cat; James Burkholder, TRF, Arctic Cat;

Stock B—Don Eide, Oslo, Arctic Cat; Robert Swenson, TRF, Arctic Cat; Roger Ebert, Pequot Lakes, Arctic Cat;

Stock C—Dave Lillegaard, Bagley, Polaris; Bob Pahlen, Plummer, Polaris; and Kurt Gigstad, TRF, Arctic Cat;

Stock D—Mike Illg, Frazee, Arctic Cat; Randy Erickson, Greenbush, Arctic Cat; and Duane Lillevold, TRF, Arctic Cat;

Modifed I—Roger Hible, TRF, Arctic Cat; Dave Thompson, TRF, Arctic Cat; and Clyde Trickle, TRF, Arctic Cat;

Modifeid II—Armond Westlund, Strathcona, Arctic Cat; Richard Porter, TRF, Arctic Cat; and Kent Espeseth, Winger, Arctic Cat;

Modifeid III—John Jorgenson, Rochester, Polaris; Richard Porter, TRF, Arctic Cat; and Raymond Burgan, Alexandria, Sno-Jet;

SEVERAL SPILLS added to the excitement of racing action at the States - Dominion snowmobile races in Thief River Falls Saturday. In the photo above, Marty Fallon of Plummer rolls over high on the bank as another racer speeds past on the inside. Fallon scrambled to his feet after the mishap, righted his steaming sled (photo at right) and dragged it across the track where it was out of the way for the other racers. There were several other nasty spills but only one driver was taken to the hospital and it was determined that he had suffered no broken bones or serious injuries. A motor grader was used several times during the afternoon of racing to blade the track and banks when holes were dug by the powerful machines.

Vocational Week Being Observed At Local School

National vocational education week is being observed this week with a special invitation extended to the public to visit the Thief River Falls area vocational-technical school. No special hours for visits have been set and interested persons are encouraged to visit the school at any time to see classes in regular session.

In addition to the post high school program of classes offered at the school, vocational center school classes are offered to high school seniors from Thief River Falls and area schools. The center school program will be greatly expanded in the next several years.

Creation of the Thief River Falls vocational center school was officially approved by the state board of education last week with participating members including Thief River Falls, Goodridge and Plummer. Under the program, vocational training will be made available to interested students in the junior and senior classes within a year or two.

A HELPING HAND is given by Dennis Bakke to his five-year-old son Ryan prior to the Kitty Kat demonstration races Saturday aternoon. The Kitty Kat demonstration was part of the Jaycee-sponsored States-Dominion snowmobile races at the Pennington county fairgrounds. Bakke's coaching apparently paid off, as "Li'l Goober" came in first in his racing heat.

NSJC Students Gain First Aid Certificates

A total of 19 persons received Red Cross standard and advanced first aid certificates at the conclusion of the recent fall quarter at Northland state junior college. The class was conducted by Charles R. Samuelson, first aid instructor at Northland.

Students receiving both standard and advanced certificates were: Eileen Anton, Linda Burger, Janet Cummings, Tony Johnson, Dennis Nabben, Jacqueline Nelson and LouAnn Rondorf all of Thief River Falls; Debra Beyer, Red Lake Falls; Anthony Burke, Bemidji; Sharon Duncan, Greenbush; Margaret Fanfulik, St. Hilaire; Kent Hanson, Karlstad; Candace Hromidko and Barbara Reese, Bagley; Curtis Jenson, Erskine; Gary Johnson, McIntosh; James Kosmatka, Stephen; Robert Vesledahl, Winger; and Robin Westrum, Leonard.

ASC Guarantees Program Funds

Farmers who use the set-aside inspection and early measurement service offered by the county ASCS office will be guaranteed that their set-aside acreage in the 1972 farm programs will be of acceptable quality and sufficient acreage to earn full program payments.

The quality guarantee is new, according to Winton Knutson, chairman of the Pennington county agricultural Stabilization and Conservation service. The guarantee of sufficient acreage, provided the staked measurements are followed, has long been a major reason for widespread use of the ASCS measurement service by farm program participants.

"Guarantee means just that," Knutson said. "If a farmer gets set-aside inspection and early measurement service—and follows those measurements when he makes his set-aside—then ASCS guarantees no deductions will be made from his program payments because of insufficient set-aside acreage or because the set-aside land was not of average productivity."

The quality - and - quantity set-aside guarantee was announced at the beginning of the sign-up period for the 1972 feed grain and wheat programs. Signup opened February 3 and continues through March 10 at the county ASCS office.

Wedding Vows Spoken By Breiland and Noel

Marriage vows were exchanged recently by Peggy Lynn Breiland, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Breiland and Jeffrey Lynn Noel, son of Mr. and Mrs. Donald Noel, both of this city.

The double ring ceremony was witnessed at the Redeemer Lutheran church with Rev. Philip Lathrop officiating.

The bride was escorted to the altar by her father and was given in marriage by her parents.

Mrs. William Halbasch presided at the organ and accompanied Ronald Hanson, friend of the couple, as he sang, "For All We Know" and "The Lord's Prayer."

The bride's floor-length gown of chiffon over taffeta was designed and fashioned by her mother. It was styled with an empire waist, full sheer bishop sleeves and wide button cuffs. A beaded and sequin trim enhanced the neckline and waist and extended in three rows down the front of the gown. Sheer chiffon created a long train fastened at the waistline. Her fingertip veil was of nylon illusion and was held in place by lace petals trimmed with sequins. She carried a cascade bouquet of white roses, lavendar lace carnations and tiny purple star flowers. Her pearl earrings were a gift from the groom and she carried out the traditional something new, old, borrowed and blue. She carried a handkerchief belonging to her grandmother.

Cynthia Breiland, sister of the bride, was maid of honor and bridesmatrons were Mrs. Robert Lawson of Fargo, sister of the groom and Mrs. Bill Yonke, friend of the bride, from this city. They were attired in identical floor-length deep purple gowns, styled with an empire waist, high necklines and trimmed with silver sequin braid.

The bride's attendants each carried an arm bouquet of three lavendar lace carnations, centered with purple star flowers and fastened with lavendar colored ribbons. They wore silver earrings, gifts from the bride.

Miss Breiland had Mrs. Roger Rivera of this city as her personal attendant.

Best man was Tony Noel, brother of the groom. Groomsmen were Steve Breiland, brother of the bride and Steven Waale, friend of the groom. Ushers were John Olson, friend of the couple and Ronald Konickson, brother-in-law of the bride. Men of the wedding party all wore black tuxedos with white ruffled shirts and bow ties.

The bride's mother chose a light beige lace knit dress with beige and brown accessories while the groom's mother wore a black and brown polyester print dress with black accessories. Both were presented with identical purple orchid corsages.

Mrs. Florence Anderson of Roseau, grandmother of the bride was an honored guest.

Mr. and Mrs. Jerry Hickerson, friends of the couple, hosted the reception given by the bride's parents in the church parlors.

Mrs. Ronald Konickson, sister of the bride registered the guests and Mrs. Tony Noel, sister-in-law of the groom served the punch while Scott Hickerson distributed the groom's cake and rice packets.

Mrs. Tim Breiland, aunt of the bride and Mrs. Ray Johnson, godmother of the groom cut and served the three-tiered cake which was decorated with white icing, shaded lavendar and purple roses and sweetpeas and topped with two white doves.

Mrs. Herb Goethe of Goodridge, godmother of the bride and Mrs. Ben Heyn, aunt of the groom were in charge of the coffee servers.

Waitresses were Carol Kraemer, Cory Kloubec and Diane Kildahl and arranging the gifts were Mrs. Steve Breiland, Barbara Kees and Mrs. Jerry Marks.

The couple are both graduates of the Lincoln high school. The bride is presently employed by Drs. Nelson and Goodrich, J and B drug store and the Falls theatre. The groom is employed by Rude electric in this city.

The newlyweds reside at 213½ north LaBree in this city.

CORRECTION

One of the accidents was incorrectly reported in the accident report in the Times last Wednesday. Jim Seibel, Red Lake Falls, was attempting to make a right turn to go north on Knight. Mark Larson, Thief River Falls, was in the parking lane and was also going to turn right when the two cars collided.

Mondale Says Education Cost Biggest Crisis

Senator Walter F. Mondale told educators Saturday that the problem of how to finance education will be the biggest crisis facing education this and next year. Anita Sue Prichard, Thief River Falls school-community facility coordinator, attended the meeting.

Speaking at the twelfth annual seminar sponsored by the Minnesota chapter of the National School Public Relations (M-NSPRA), Mondale outlined the budgetary probelms of the nation's schools and some of the efforts being made to solve them.

Mondale gave the special luncheon address to 150 superintendents, principals, school communications people, and teachers meeting in the press club at a hotel in Minneapolis.

Earlier, seminar participants heard a keynote address given by State Commissioner of Education Howard Casmey on "Challenges Facing Minnesota Educators."

The theme of the seminar, "Communications: Headache or Hallelujah?" was further stressed by Dr. Alan Anderson, associate professor of educational psychology at the University of Minnesota, speaking on communications with students; Dr. Ralph Lieber, superintendent of Edina public schools, speaking of communications with the staff; and Gary Soule, director of the South Community school in Minneapolis, speaking on communications with the community.

In addition to the speakers, participants observed a slide-tape presentation entitled "The Success Stories" which featured some methods of school communications that M-NSPRA members have found successful. John Weins, publications director of Anoka-Hennepin District 11, produced the presentation.

In the afternoon, according to Mrs. Armi Nelson, M-NSPRA president, consultant for communications for the Edina public schools, special interest groups met to discuss methods for improving school communications.

393 Miles Of Pavement Joints Are Resealed

Joint sealing of 393 miles, equivalent to the motor travel distance from Baudette to Fairmont, was accomplished on Minnesota pavements last year.

Sealing of pavement joints is a preventive measure in maintaining the serviceability of roads as described in the annual activities report of the state highway department's maintenance division. More than 110 miles of so-called "edging", the joint between the pavement and the shoulder, were sealed. Bulk of the sealing is for the transverse joints in the pavement.

Resealing starts with removal of the old joint material, with a cutting tooth mounted on a small tractor or a power-wheel cutter used for the stripping operation. Following is a power-driven wire brush to clean the joint walls and slab edges with compressed air to remove particles and dust before the sealer is applied.

Nine crews were engaged in joint-sealing operations on Minnesota highways last year. A crew can reseal a section of pavement while keeping half the road open to traffic at all times.

OFFICERS of the Northwest area council of the Minnesota Federation of Teachers include Mark Schug of Thief River Falls, left, secretary, and Bill Dunham of Cass Lake, president. Other officers are Russ Horacek of McIntosh, vice president, and Mel Johnson of Bemidji, treasurer. Schug said the council has been formed due to membership growth in this region and monthly meetings are being held. Goals of the council are to facilitate communications between state and local organizations, provide widespread support for individual locals and help teachers unite to achieve mutual objectives, Schug said. "This council represents one aspect of the MET's effort to continue the struggle for decent salaries and equal bargaining rights for teachers," he added.

E. R. Giuliani, M.D., Rochester, president of the Minnesota Heart association, announced today that applications are now available for two months of study at either the Mayo graduate school of medicine or the University of Minnesota, through the Ellen D. Johnson high school fellowship program.

For the 15th year, the Minnesota Heart association is offering to Minnesota high school juniors and seniors who have demonstrated a high interest and aptitude in science, an opportunity to apply for a summer in a research laboratory.

Eighteen students will be chosen and assigned projects with heart researchers. In addition, they will be awarded a $500 stipend. Students selected from outside the Twin Cities or Rochester areas will be given additional funds to aid with room and board.

Those interested in applying should consult their high school counselor or write the Minnesota Heart Association, 4701 West 77th Street, Edina, Minnesota 55435.

Deadline for applications is March 1, 1972, and notification of scholarship awards will be made by April 1.

The fellowship honors the late Ellen D. Johnson, a Minnesota Heart volunteer, who devoted 38 years to teaching students. The summer fellowship program is made possible through contributions to the Heart Fund drive, which is conducted during Heart Month in February.

KITCHEN KARNIVAL

Features from the Kitchen of

By Norma Hanson

Flavored gelatins first shimmered their way into American dining rooms in 1897. Just how many brands in your kitchen go back 75 years? Very few, you can be sure, and fewer still have continued to grow in popularity in the way gelatin has each year.

This wonderfully light, wholesome product has become America's all-time favorite with its exciting array of fresh fruit flavors and the bright colors make it fun to serve.

Gelatin's long-time popularity comes from many good things. Its lightness is one—a big one. Gelatins are so light they seem to make any meal sit a little lighter. Fresh fruit taste, so much like the fruit that inspired them, is utterly satisfying. And they're easy to fix in all kinds of ways—some we'll wager that have never entered your mind.

The bounty of gelatins doesn't end with lightness, good taste, convenience and versatility. They are nutritious and low in calories, just 83 calories per half-cup serving. They sit as lightly on your conscience as they do on top of any meal. You can add fresh vegetables or fruit, or even a marshmallow or two, and eat and eat.

So why not have some for dinner tonight? Whether you eat lavishly or just a little. . . .there's always room for more.

The following recipe is for "Frozen Fruit Salad"—an ever popular, refreshing dessert or salad.

Ingredients-
1 package (3 oz.) mixed fruit, strawberry, lemon, or orange-pineapple gelatin.
dash of salt
1 cup boiling water
1 can (8¾ oz.) pineapple tidbits
¼ cup lemon juice
one-third cup mayonnaise
1 cup whipping cream (or use 2 cups sour cream)
1 medium banana, diced
½ cup seeded halved grapes
¼ cup diced maraschino cherries
¼ cup chopped nuts

Method: Dissolve gelatin and salt in boiling water. Drain pineapple, measuring syrup; add water to make ½ cup, if necessary. Stir into gelatin with lemon juice. Blend in mayonnaise. Chill until thick. Whip cream. Fold fruits, nuts, and whipped cream into gelatin. Pour into 2 freezing trays or a 9x5x3 inch loaf pan. Freeze until firm—at least 3-4 hours. To serve, cut in squares or slices. NOTE: Other fruits that may be uised in the Frozen Fruit Salad are drained diced orange sections, drained canned crushed pineapple or drained fruit cocktail, using a total of about 2 cups fruit.

Red Lake County GOP Chairman Airs Grain Price

Roger Eckstein, Red Lake county Republican chairman, recently met with Rudy Boschwitz, Republican national committeeman, to discuss the proposed 25 per cent increase in wheat and seed grain price support rates.

Eckstein pointed out that the income impact on Red Lake county farmers would exceed one million dollars a year after the increase went through.

Boschwitz stated that 15 Midwest Republican national committeemen recently met with Secretary of Agriculture Earl Butz to discuss this very situation together with some others. The meeting took place in late December and was arranged because of the low prices existing, particularly in feed grains.

Boschwitz reported that the secretary's attitude was very positive, but unquestionably there is some concern that an increase as large as 25 per cent would bring a return of the surplusses that existed during Secretary Freeman's era.

Boschwitz told Eckstein that farmers must also realize that an important part of the problem is the fact that the Democrats control the Congress and that means Southerners control the agriculture committees. Senator Alan Ellender, Louisiana Democrat, is the Senate chairman and is primarily interested in peanuts, tobacco and cotton. If the Republicans controlled the Senate, Milton Young of North Dakota would be the chairman.

Eckstein pointed out that Secretary Butz will be in the state on February 10, and Boschwitz agreed to renew his efforts at the time.

Options Listed For Feed Grain Set-Aside Plan

Winton Knutson, chairman of the Pennington county ASCS committee, reports that an eligible producer must make several choices in order to participate in the 1972 feed grain set-aside program.

In all cases, in order to participate, a producer must set aside a cropland acreage of average productivity equal to 25 per cent of his total feed grain base. He will receive a payment rate of 80 cents a bushel for corn, 76 cents for grain sorghum and 64 cents for barley on the established yield of the set-aside acres.

In addition, he may choose one of the following two alternatives:

(1) He may set aside an additional acreage up to 10 per cent of his corn-sorghum base, at a payment rate of 52 cents a bushel for corn, 49 cents for grain sorghum. Barley growers may elect up to 20 per cent additional set-aside at 42 cents per bushel. This is the only portion that offers additional voluntary set-aside for barley. (If a producer with a corn-sorghum base wants to make maximum set-aside under this choice, he may offer an additional five or 10 per cent of that base at the 52-cent rate for corn, 49-cent rate for sorghum, at the option of the secretary of agriculture who will announce at a later date whether he will accept this offer.)

(2) He may set aside an additional 10 per cent of his corn-sorghum base at an 80-cent rate for corn, 76-cent rate for grain sorghum, provided he agrees to reduce his corn-sorghum plantings from last year by twice the acreage of his additional set-aside. (If a producer wants to make maximum set-aside under this choice, he may offer an additional five per cent of his corn-sorghum base at the 80-cent rate for corn, 76-cent rate for sorghum, at the option of the secretary of agriculture who will announce at a later date whether he will accept this offer. If the additional five per cent offer is accepted, the producer must also reduce his corn-sorghum plantings from last year by twice the acreage of this additional offer.)

Loans will be available on all program crops grown on participating farms in compliance with program provisions.

REGION ONE meeting of the Episcopal Diocese of Minnesota was held Saturday at the former Carnegie public library building in Thief River Falls. Farmers May Have To File Tax March 1

Farm operators may have to file their 1971 tax return on or before Wednesday, March 1. If they did not file a declaration of estimated tax, this is the deadline for their final 1971 tax return, says the Internal Revenue service.

All tax owing, including any self-employment tax, must be paid in full when the return is due to be filed.

Any farm operator who filed a declaration of estimated tax and paid in advance on this year's tax liability can delay filing their 1971 tax return until April 17.

New Options Offered For Corn, Sorgum

As sign-up opened in the 1972 voluntary programs for feed grain and wheat producers, a new set-aside option was offered to corn and grain sorghum producers by the U.S. Department of Agriculture.

A higher set-aside payment rate can be earned by producers who agree to reduce their farm's corn-sorghum acreage below last year's planting.

At the same time, all previously-announced options remain open to feed grain producers, according to Elton Redalen, Minnesota farm program official. Provisions of the wheat set-aside program are unchanged. Additional set-aside options for wheat had been announced in January.

Producer sign-up in the 1972 farm set-aside programs opened February 3 and will continue through March 10 at ASCS county offices throughout the nation.

Under the new option for feed grain producers with corn-sourghum bases, the payment rate for up to at least 10 per cent and possibly 15 per cent voluntary additional set-aside will be the same as the qualifying set-aside rate—80 cents a bushel for corn and 76 cents a bushel for grain sorghum.

USDA will accept up to 10 per cent of this voluntary set-aside when offered by the producer at signup. The remaining five per cent will be at the option of the secretary of agriculture, with a later announcement on whether it will be accepted.

If he chooses this new option, a producer will hold his 1972 corn-sorghum acreage at not more than last year's acreage minus twice the additonal set-aside acreage.
